The right of appeal in a pending action is not a matter of procedure and the repeal of a statute, which was in force at the time when the action was instituted and which regulated the course of appeal, does not affect the right of appeal acquired or enjoyed under the statute unless the repealing statute expressly or by necessary implication takes away that right. ———Retrospective effect.

An Act which deliberately withdraws certain class of cases from the jurisdiction of particular courts cannot be said to declare the law and does not have a retrospective effect. A right to treat a decree as final and not open to appeal is as much a vested right as a right of appeal and cannot be taken away by new legislation. (1905) A. C. 369; 24 Q. B. D. 557; 31 B. 545 Ref. ———Retrospective effect — Processual law — Change in law—Effect.

A statute will not be construed so as to affect substantive rights acquired or transactions completed before its passing. But the mode in which a right is to be enforced is determined by the law as it stands at the time of the suit. (Per Sundara Aiyar, J.)—The right of a deft. to raise technical pleas, e. g. as to court-fee or want of notice, is not a material right and it could be affected by a new statute making changes in the processual law. INTERPRETATION OF STATUTES—Retrospective effect.

———Retrospective effect.

Statutes which take away or impair vested rights under existing laws or attach a new disability in respect of transactions or considerations already passed must be presumed to have a retrospective operation. (Dhobley, A. J. C.) LAKHMICHAND v. BAJIRAO. 69 I. C. 870.

———Retrospective effect—When given.

It is a general rule that all statutes are to be construed to operate in future, unless from the language a retrospective effect is clearly intended. It is chiefly when the enactment would prejudicially affect vested rights or the legal character of the past transactions that the rule in question operates. Every statute which takes away or impairs vested right acquired under existing laws, or creates a new obligation or imposes a new duty or attaches a new disability in respect of transactions or considerations already passed, must be presumed out of respect to Legislature to be intended not to have a retrospective operation. As a general rule, mere alterations in forms of procedure are retrospective in effect and apply to pending proceedings, but where a change in procedure is complicated with a change of existing rights the rule could not be held to apply. 18 N. L. R. 85=1922 Nag. 227.

———Retrsopective effect—Vested rights not to be affected.

When the law is altered by statute pending an action, the law as it existed when the action was commenced, must decide the rights of the parties to the suit in the absence of the intention of legislature to the contrary. (Dhobley, A. J. C.) SETH LAKHMICHAND v. BAJIRAO. 5 N. L. J. 251.

———Retrospective effect—Vested rights—Private rights—Restrictions on.

When the very purpose of the Act is to impose restriction on a particular class of owners it is no argument against the application of it that such a restriction will in particular case be effectual and defeat the wishes of some of the owners. The rule that an Act is ordinarily not taken to be retrospective applies chiefly when the enactment would prejudicially affect vested rights or legal rights of the parties. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) NILKANT v. GHULYA. 42 I. C. 384= ———Retrospective effect—Procedure.

It is a general principle that the presumption against a retrospective construction of a statute has no application to enactments which affect only the procedure and practice of courts, even where the alteration which the statute makes, has been disadvantageous to one of the parties.

———Retrospective effect—Intention to take away vested rights.

It is an established axiom of construction that though procedure may be regulated by the Act for the time-being in force, still the intention to take away a vested right, without compensation or any saving is not to be imputed to the Legislature unless it is expressed in unequivocal terms. It is not a fair reading of an enactment to hold that it was intended to impose an impossible condition under pain of the forfeiture of a vested right and an amending Act should be construed as not applying to cases where its provisions cannot be obeyed. The law, as amended, may regulate the procedure in suits in which the plaintiff could comply with its provision but cannot govern suits where such compliance was from the first impossible. 41 C. 1125, Rel. 2 P. L. W. 149.

If a provision in an enactment is declaratory in its nature the presumption always is that it is retrospective in its operation. Where the legislature allows a certain time between the passing and commencement of an Act to avoid hardships arising from change of law the inference is that the enactment is to have retrospective effect. INTERPRETATION OF STATUTES—Right and Remedy.

The rule that when a statute creates a right and provides a remedy, that remedy and no other is available, does not apply to a case where a right was not created by the Act but exists independently of it. ———Right and remedy—Remedy in ordinary Civil Courts when barred—Special tribunal.

When an Act of the Legislature gives power to any person for a public purpose from which an individual may receive an injury, if the mode of redressing the injury is pointed out by the Statute, the jurisdiction of the ordinary Court is sometimes ousted, and in case of injury the party cannot proceed by action. Under the Act of 1888 a defendant in an action for infringement is allowed to set up by way of defence all the grounds in which the grant of a patent could be opposed, grounds which are to be found in S. 20. Under S. 29 (4) it is for the defendant to show that either he or some other person through whom he claims has, before the date of delivery or receipt of the application for leave to file the specification publicly or actually used in some parts of India or of the United Kingdom the invention with respect to which the privilege is alleged to have been infringed. The two Indian Acts do not intend to follow the English practice that there should be any separate defence to the grant of a patent on the ground of want of subject-matter as distinguished from want of novelty. ———Duty of Court—Reckless remarks.

While writing judgment, the court must avoid unnecessary repetition and must not misrepresent the evidence before him, or its effects. The court must not indulge in reckless, unfair and unfounded criticisms. For it is in the nature of man to believe readily what he wishes. He confounds his belief with the thing he hears and sees a thing within his remembrance which is nothing more than a purely imaginary thing, and he does so without any deliberate intention on his part to falsify the facts. ———Suit on — Maintainability of—Principles governing.

A suit on a judgment obtained against the ostensible representatives can be maintained against the real representatives. The principle on which an action is allowed to be maintained on a judgment is that where a court of competent jurisdiction had adjudiciated a certain sum to be due from one person to another, a legal obligation arises to pay that sum on which an action of debt to enforce the judgment may be maintained. This principle is subject to the qualification that an action is permissible only where the judgment cannot be enforced in some other way. There is some divergence of judicial opinion on this matter. ———Admissibility of— Judgment vacated by subsequent order consequent on non-payment of court fee—Admissibility.

A judgment declared plaintiff's right to a certain share of the property and further directed that on his paying up the deficient court-fee, a decree should be drawn up and on his failure so to do, the suit should stand dismissed. The plaintiff defaulted to pay the court fee as directed and by a subsequent order the suit was dismissed. Held that the order virtually vacated the judgment in the case which should thereafter be treated as non-existing. The judgment should not be used as evidence in a subsequent suit. 35 B. 38 Rel. (Suhrawardy and Cuming, JJ.) SASIMUKHI CHOWDHURANI v. SARASWATI SEN. 65 I. C. 522.

———Language of — Pillorying or pouring ridicule to be restrained—Humorous judgment not necessarily bad.

A humorous judgment is not necessarily a bad judgment. Facetious comment, not contributing to the disposal of the case and calculated to wound the feelings of persons not parties to the proceedings, should not find place in a judgment. The immunity of Judges carries with it the duty of circumspection. Any temptation to pillory or pour ridicule on strangers should be restrained and comments on the conduct of parties and witnesses should not go beyond what is really necessary for the elucidation of the case. Absence of.

———Absence of—Irregularity—Distinction.

A decree can be set aside in an independent proceeding if there was absolute want of jurisdiction in the court passing it but not for any irregularities in the exercise of jurisdiction. (Lord Shaw.) Rajwant Prasad Pandey v. Ram Ratan Gir. 37 All. 485=42 I A. 171=13 A. L. J. 937=29 M. L. J. 165=2 L. W. 671=18 M. L. T. 173=17 Bom. L. R. 754=20 C. W. N. 35=(1915) M W. N. 736=30 I. C. 849=23 C. L. J. 55 (P.C).

———Absence of—Irregularity in the exercise of—Distinction.

There is a clear distinction between jurisdiction' and "exercise of jurisdiction." Since jurisdiction is the power to hear and determine a case, it does not depend either upon the regularity of the exercise of that power or upon the correctness of the decision pronounced; for the power to decide necessarily carries with it the power to do wrongly as well as rightly. The boundary between an error of judgment and the usurpation of power is this; the former is reversible by an appellate court within a certain fixed time and is therefore only voidable, the latter is an absolute nullity. So far as the jurisdiction itself is concerned, it is wholly immaterial whether the decision upon the particular question be correct or incorrect. Where it held that a court had jurisdiction to render only correct decisions, then each time it made an erroneous ruling or decision, the court would be without jurisdiction and the ruling itself void. (Mookerjee and Cholsner, JJ.) Kumar Arun Chandra Sinha Bahadur v. Manmohan Sinha Roy.
37 C. L. J. 585=1924 Cal. 154.

JURISDICTION—Absence of.

———Absence of—Transfer of pending suit or proceeding—Effect of—Decision if a nullity.

In cases of local jurisdiction the principle applies that the state of things existing at the time of the institution of the suit is sufficient to determine the jurisdiction on the theory that the progress of a suit once validly commenced in any court is not affected by change of residence or country by the defendant. (1870) L. R. 6 Q. B. 161; (1899). 1 Ch. 792; 22 C. 222 Ref. But this doctrine has no application where the question is one of jurisdiction over the subject-matter. Such jurisdiction must exist throughout the proceedings. jurisdiction has reference to the power of the court over the parties, over the subject matter, over the rest of property in contest and to the authority of the court to render the judgment or decree which it assumes to make. For the validity of a judgment in a suit the jurisdiction over the subject matter must exist throughout the proceedings, as well at the time of its institution as at the time of its disposal. A court may lose its jurisdiction during the pendency of a proceeding and in such an event if it proceeds to pronounce judgment, such judgment must be regarded as void because made without jurisdiction. Jurisdiction of the subject matter is given only by law and cannot be conferred by consent. The objection that a court is not given such jurisdiction by law cannot be waived by the parties. Cases reviewed. (Mookerjee and Chotsner, JJ.) Jyoti Prakas Chattoraj v Bagala Kanta Chowdhury.

———Absence of—Ouster—Incorrect statement in sale proclamation—Effect of.

Where the court has jurisdiction to sell a property, an incorrect statement in the sale proclamation, as to the amount due to the decree-holder, does not oust that jurisdiction. (Mookerjee and Buckland, JJ.) Pramatha v. Bhuban.
25 C. W. N. 585=64 I. C. 930=33 C. L. J. 421.

———Absence of—Sale of property—Not parties to suit—Court, power of.

A court has no jurisdiction to sell the property of persons, not parties to the proceedings before it or properly represented on the record. As to such persons a decree or sale under it would be a nullity and might be disregarded without any proceedings to set it aside. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) Rohini Nandan Ghosb v. Rajendra Nath Ghosb. 61. I. C. 291.

———Absence of — Irregularity — Distinction—Waiver.

If the Act of the court was without jurisdiction or infringed a prescribed rule on grounds of public policy the proceeding is a nullity. If it was on the other hand, only an irregular exercise of jurisdiction, a contravention of rules framed by the Legislature with a view to afford protection to the individual litigant he might waive the benefit thereof and could not be entitled to obtain a reversal of the decree except on proof that the merits had been affected. JURISDICTION—Absence of.

———Absence of—Irregularity—Distinction.

No hard and fast line can be drawn between a nullity and an irregularity, and when the provision of a statute has been contravened, if a question arises as to how far the proceedings are affected thereby, it must be determined with regard to the nature, scope and object of the particular provision violated. ———Absence of—Court having no jurisdiction—Institution of suit—Transfer.

The institution of a proceeding in a court having no jurisdiction to entertain it, is not a valid institution capable of being continued on transfer in a competent court. ———Absence of—Material irregularity—Distinction between—Omission to decide material point.

When a court of law has taken up a point of fact or law for decision and has decided that point wrongly it has acted with full jurisdiction and regularly and legally and no revision lies unless. that decision itself affects the court's own jurisdiction but when having jurisdiction, the court has failed or refused to take up the point for decision, it has exercised jurisdiction irregularly and the more the failure or refusal affects the exercise of its jurisdiction, the greater the irregularity will be. ———Civil and Revenue Courts—Test — Suit by owner for declaration of right.

The question of jurisdiction is to be decided entirely on the allegations in the plaint. Plaintiffs sued for a declaration that they were in rightful possession of the land in suit as owners; defendant set up a rival claim as the heir of a deceased occupancy tenant, though as a matter of fact he had no title to the land. Held, the suit was cognizable by Civil Court and the plaintiff's right to ask for relief from a civil court was not affected by the subsequent decree obtained by the defendant in a revenue court. ———Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit to recover income of mustajri lands—Effect of dismissal by Civil Court—Reference to Revenue Court.

The District Judge in appeal reversed the decree of the District Munsiff in a suit to recover income of mustajri lands holding that a civil court had no jurisdiction to try such a suit. It was filed in a revenue court and the Collector in appeal reversed the decision of the Assistant Collector. On reference by the Commissioner it was held, that the decree of the District Munsiff could not be restored but that the proceedings should be set aside and the plaint returned for presentation to a civil court. A suit by a mortgagee of a revenue paying land to recover its income on the ground that he gave the defendant (a representative of the mortgagor) a lease mustajri of the land leaving him to recover the rents is not a suit between landlord and tenant and is cognisable by a civil court. The mere fact that land is mortgaged with possession and the mortgagors hold it under the mortgagee, does not create the relationship of landlord and tenant. A Civil Court cannot entertain a suit by Malikan Kabze and non-proprietary residents of a village for a declaration that they were not liable to pay Bakri and Thana patti dues on account of the absence of such a custom for the realisation of such dues, 33 P. R. 1908, Foll.; 67 P. R. 1905, Dist. (Reid, C. J.) KARIM ILAHI v. SULTAN ALAM. 79 P. R. 1912 = 65 P. L. R. 1912 = 13 I. C. 812 = 144 P. W. R. 1912.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Mortgage with possession — Mortgagor undertaking to assist in collection of rent — Relationship of landlord and tenant.

Where by a mortgage, possession is given to the mortgagee and the mortgagor undertakes to assist the mortgagee in collecting produce, a suit by the mortgagee for possession is cognisable in a civil court as the mortgagor cannot be considered a tenant for the purpose but is at most an agent, 46 P. R. 1894, Dist. (Johnstone and Rattigan, JJ.) AHMAD KHAN v. RATAN CHAND. 53 P. W. R. 1912 = 50 P. R. 1912 = 13 I. C. 539 = 100 P. L. R. 1912.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit for arrears of rents by Assignee thereof—Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887.)

A suit for arrears of rent by the plaintiff to whom the right to recover rent had been sold by the landlord is cognisable by the civil court. (Chevis, J.) GANPAT RAI v. SARDARA. 67 P. W. R. 1912 = 13 I. C. 511 = 61 P. L. R. 1912.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit for eviction of trespasser—Test to find out what court has jurisdiction.

A suit for eviction of a trespasser will lie in the civil court. The test to see whether the civil or revenue court has jurisdiction is to examine the plaintiff and find whether according to the plaintiff the defendant took possession as a tenant or by means of force, and in the former case the civil court has no jurisdiction. (Chevis, J.) BELA SINGH v. LABH SINGH. 48 P. W. 1912 = 13 I. C. 298 = 51 P. L. R. 1912.

———Civil and Revenue Courts — Partition — Abadi land.

The civil courts technically have jurisdiction to inquire into the question of partition of the village sites. Each individual proprietor is not necessarily entitled to a portion of the abadi area. The distribution of such vacant land attached to the abadi should be left to the Lambardars who alone can determine whether it should be divided up or kept intact for the common purpose of the village. (Kensington, J.) HIRA SINGH v. MOHAR SINGH. 228 P. W. R. 1911 = 12 I. C. 605 = 2 P. L. R. 1912.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Test to determine.

To determine whether a claim is cognisable by a Civil or Revenue Court, is one to be determined solely by the nature of the claim as lodged, and not by the defence set up or by evidence. In suits for ejectment, the court should see whether the suit is for the ejectment of a tenant or a trespasser. If for the latter, the claim is cognizable by a civil court, but if it is found that the defendant is a tenant, the suit should be dismissed, in which case the landlord can bring a fresh suit in the Revenue Court. (Chevis, J.) GHAZAU v. BAHADUR. 236 P. L. R. 1911 = 11 I. C. 639 = 152 P. W. R. 1911.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit by occupancy tenant for possession.

The civil court will entertain a suit by occupancy tenants against their landlords to recover possession of their holding which was being cultivated by the latter on behalf of the former. (Johnstone, J.) AMIR DIN v. MEGHA. 9 I. C. 744 = 17 P. W. R. 1911.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Madras Estates Land Act.

A suit for rent between a landholder and a raiyat falling under the Act is not cognizable by Small Cause Court. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) ZEMINDAR OF TARLA v. KANDA PARIKIVADU. 44 Mad. 697 = 40 M. L. J. 466 = 29 M. L. T. 368 = 63 I. C. 8 = (1921) M. W. N. 565.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Sale for arrears of rent—Setting aside.

The civil court can set aside a sale for arrears of rent by a revenue court on the ground of fraud. (Oldfield and Hughes, J.) SURAYYA v. NARASI GADU. 29 M. L. T. 304 = 14 L. W. 232.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Ijara lease.

A claim arising from an Ijara lease is within the jurisdiction of revenue courts. S. 6, cl. 6 of the Madras Estates Lands Act (1908), contemplates only the case of middle men taking Ijara and not the case of a ryot himself claiming an ijara of his holding. It is the revenue court and not the civil that can take cognisance of rent claim in respect of land in an estate so long as the plaint does not show it to be otherwise. (Seshagiri Iyer, J.) GOPISETTI NARAYANASWAMI v. GANGISETTI. (1916) 2 M. W. N. 240 = 37 I. C. 394 = 4 L. W. 371.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Kattubadi—Suit to recover—Madras Land Revenue Act.

A civil court and not a revenue court has jurisdiction to maintain a suit for the recovery of Kattubadi from an Inamdar who is not a cultivator. (Seshagiri Iyer, J.) MUDAPATY VENKATESWARA v. NANDUM RAJAGOPALAM. 30 I. C. 927.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit for rent by Inamdar.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Grant for service—Suit by grantor for ejectment of grantee.

A contract by which a landlord gives some land rent-free to a carpenter for services to be rendered by him as carpenter without wages, is not a contract of tenancy, but one of service and a suit for ejectment of the carpenter is cognizable by a civil court, 1 C. P. L. R. 182; 3 N. L. R. 185, Rel. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) RAMAKRISHNA v. SOMA. 20 I. C. 541 = 9 N. L. R. 97.

———Civil and Revenue Courts.

A suit for possession on the allegation that the possession of the landlord is due to a sale by the guardian of the tenant, if such alienation is found to be invalid, is not one between landlord and tenant and civil courts have jurisdiction to try it. A plaint, returned by Sub-Judge on the ground that it was between landlord and tenant, but decided by an E. A. C. and Additional Judge to be not so, and confirmed by District Judge to be not between landlord and tenant, should be tried by Sub-Judge according to the decision of District Judge. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) GANPAT v. TRIMBAK. 19 I. C. 759 = 9 N. L. R. 54.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Partition of Mahal—Right to share in a Mahal.

The civil court has no power to discuss the power of willingness of a revenue court to partition a Mahal. The civil court can decide that a particular person is owner of a certain share in a Mahal but cannot direct a revenue court to separate that share by partition. Similarly the civil court has no authority to prevent partition of a share even if the proceeding of the revenue court be contrary to the rules and regulations laid down for its guidance. The question of stay of partition proceedings for want of sanction by the Local Government can be agitated only in a revenue court. (*Dalal, J. C. and Neave, A. J. JURISDICTION—Civil and Revenue Courts.

———Civil and Revenue Courts.

In a case where the revenue courts have exclusive jurisdiction, a suit for a declaration that the decree is void and ineffectual does not lie in the civil court on the bare ground that the proceedings were contrary to law. (Kanhaiya Lal, C. J.) SAT DEO v. JAI NATH.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Tenancy—Decision of Revenue Court, Civil Court, powers of.

The decision of a revenue court is final as to the nature of a tenancy, but where tenancy is denied and a rival title is set up, the decision is not final and it can be decided by a civil court. A civil court is not debarred from entering into a question of rival claims under a title derived from a common ancestor as the question is only one of inheritance. (Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.) LACHHMINI v. RAM SINGH.
61 I. C. 290=24 O. C. 15.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Status of tenant—Duty of Court.

On a question of the tenant's status being raised before a revenue court that court must decide it or must decide that he has under-proprietary rights, so that either party must go to a civil court to get its decision on the latter question. (Holmes, S. M. and Ferard, J. M.) MUKTAR-UL HUDA v. BAKHTHAWAR KHAN
60 I. C. 713=7 O. L. J. (B. R.) 669.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Decision of the Revenue Court.

The decision of the revenue court that the tenant sought to be ejected has a status superior to that of an ordinary tenant, affords a cause of action to the land-holder to go to the civil court for a declaration that the person did not possess under-proprietary rights. In order to maintain such a suit in the Civil Court, it was not necessary that the revenue court should definitely hold such person to possess under proprietary rights. (*Stuart, A. J. 34 I. C. 304=3 O. L. J. 191.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Tenancy, nature of—Proprietary or under-proprietary rights—Ejectment.

In cases to which the U. P. Land Revenue Act applies the courts of revenue have the exclusive jurisdiction to determine the status of a tenant and the special and other terms on which such tenant holds. The civil courts can decide whether or not a person holds the proprietary or under-proprietary rights, but they cannot set aside an ejectment proceeding or determine its validity if the interest affected is not under-proprietary. 53 I. C. 921.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Ejectment.

50 I. C. 915.

JURISDICTION—Civil and Revenue Courts.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit for declaration that defendant is not an under-proprietor—Cause of action.

In a suit for a declaration that defendant is not an under proprietor, the civil court will not exercise its discretion in granting the relief unless it is shown that the plaintiff has exhausted his remedy in the rent court; but he cannot be said to have no cause of action unless and until he has done so. (Lindsay, J. C.) AMRAJ SINGH v. SARAH SUKH PANDE.
46 I. C. 650.

———Civil and Revenue Courts — Validity — Documents—Decision, if final.

The proposition that the revenue courts have no exclusive jurisdiction to decide finally upon the validity of document of title, though correct as a general statement of law, is subject to the qualification that the civil courts cannot decide any matter in which jurisdiction has been exclusively reserved to revenue courts. Where a perpetual lease was upheld by the revenue courts and a suit was then brought for cancellation of such lease; held, that, the decision of the civil court could not affect the validity or otherwise of the decision of the Board of Revenue in regard to a matter with which it was competent to deal and that a declaratory decree contradicting the decision of a competent court having exclusive jurisdiction to decide the matter should not be granted. JURISDICTION—Civil and Revenue Courts.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Ejectment of lessee by landlord.

The lessees of a village whether perpetual or otherwise, cannot be ejected through a civil court, but only by a revenue court. ———Civil and Revenue Courts—Partition by Revenue Court—Interference by Civil Court.

A civil court has no jurisdiction to interfere with a final allotment made by a revenue court, of lands at a partition even if in so allotting, any of its immediate orders are not complied with. (Chamier, J. C.) JAGAN NATH v. RAM DUTT. 11 I. C. 531=14 O. C. 153.

———Civil and Revenue Courts—Proceedings of Revenue Court—When can be impeached for want of jurisdiction in a Civil Court.

The exercise of jurisdiction with which we can here interfere must relate to the subject-matter, pecuniary value, locality of the parties: these are matters which form the foundation of a court's jurisdiction, and if a court wrongly assumes that the foundation exists when in fact it does not exist then and then only it is wrongly exercising jurisdiction. But jurisdiction in its wider sense is some times understood to mean the power to do certain specific things which are ordained by statute. If the court having assumed jurisdiction correctly, that is to say, if by reason of its local situation or pecuniary authority, or by reason of the subject-matter, or the portion of the parties the revenue court had power under the statute for entertaining the partition proceeding, then, every error made in carrying out the partition in accordance with the terms of the law would not necessarily invalidate the proceeding and render it null and void. As has been often observed a court has jurisdiction to decide wrongly as well as rightly. Where the foundation of jurisdiction does not exist as in cases where a revenue sale is held though there is no arrear of revenue at all, or a certificate sale is held in execution of a certificate issued without authority, a civil court has an absolute right to declare the sale to be a nullity and to restore the property to the owner. So again where a property such as a burial ground which the Estates Partition Act forbids the Deputy Collector to partition, is partitioned a suit will lie to declare that the partition so far as the burial ground is concerned is null and void; but if the Deputy Collector simply commits an error of law, it would be contrary to the principle to hold that a civil court can interfere for the purpose of readjusting the arrangement to make fresh partition. Civil and Criminal Courts.

——Civil and Criminal Courts—Power to break open door.

Where a person who is the tenant of a house locks the same and goes away, a criminal court has no jurisdiction to direct the breaking open of the door at the instance of a person whose goods are kept locked up in the room. The remedy of the aggrieved person in such a case is by way of a civil suit and not by appealing against the order of the criminal court. ——Consent—When confers jurisdiction on court.

It is an elementary principle of law that if a court has no jurisdiction over the subject matter its judgments and orders are mere nullities and may not only be set aside at any time by the court in which they are rendered but declared void by every court in which they are presented. If a court has no jurisdiction, its judgment is not merely voidable but void and it is wholly unimportant how precisely certain and technically correct its proceedings and decisions may have been; if it has no power to hear and determine the cause, its authority is wholly usurped and its judgments and orders are the exercise of arbitrary powers under the forms but without the sanction of law. These principles apply not only to original courts but also to courts of appeal. Accordingly where an appellate court does not possess jurisdiction to review the action of the court below, jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon it by consent of the parties; and any waiver on their part cannot make up for the lack or defect of jurisdiction, 38 C. 639; 9 All 191; 11 M. 26, Ref. ——Consent—Cannot give—Waiver.

When a court has no jurisdiction over the subject matter of suit in which an order is made, such order as made is wholly void and does not operate as res judicata. Jurisdiction cannot be conferred by consent of parties and no waiver or acquiescence on their part can make up for the lack or defect of jurisdiction. ——Consent—Cannot give—Jurisdiction dependent on value of subject matter—Irregular exercise of jurisdiction—Waiver.

The consent of the parties to a litigation cannot bestow on a court jurisdiction which it does not possess, and the agreement of parties cannot empower a superior court to revise a judgment of an inferior court when it is not invested with appellate jurisdiction over such court. This principle applies to cases wherein the jurisdiction is dependent upon the value of the subject matter in controversy. Where jurisdiction over the subject matter exists, but the court exercises it in an irregular manner, the objection to the irregularity may be dispensed with, but where there is a total want of jurisdiction, the objection cannot be waived (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) RANJIT MISSER v. RAMUDAR SINGH. 17 C W. N. 116=16 I. C. 940= 16 C. L. J. 77.

———Consent—Cannot create a right of appeal.

Although parties can by consent give jurisdiction to a court with regard to the mode of determining questions, still they cannot create a right of appeal if there is none by statute. So where the parties dealt with questions as if they came under S. 47, C. P. C. in a case of partition, still they are not deprived of the right to object to the competency of the appeal even if they had taken no objection on previous occasions. Meaning of.

———Meaning of—Exercise and existence of jurisdiction—Distinction.

Jurisdiction may be defined to be the power of a court to hear and determine a cause, to adjudicate or exercise any judicial in relation to it. This jurisdiction of the court may be qualified or restricted by a variety of circumstances such as place, value and nature of the subject-matter. This classification is of a fundamental character. Given such jurisdiction, the exercise of jurisdiction must be distinguished from the existence of jurisdiction; for, fundamentally different are the consequences of failure to comply with the statutory requirement in the assumption and in the exercise of jurisdiction. The authority to decide a cause at all and not the decision rendered therein, is what makes up jurisdiction; and when there is jurisdiction of the person and subject matter, the decision of all other questions arising in the case is but an exercise of that jurisdiction. In order that jurisdiction may be exercised, there must be a case legally before the court and a hearing as well as determination. A judgment pronounced by a court without jurisdiction, is void, subject to the well-known reservation that when the jurisdiction of a court is challenged, the court is competent to determine the question of jurisdiction though the result of the enquiry may be that it has no jurisdiction to deal with the matter brought before it. 19 C. W. N. 84, Ref. Jurisdiction does not depend either upon the regularity of the exercise of that power or upon the correctness of the decision pronounced, for the power to decide, necessarily carries with it the power to decide wrongly as well as rightly. 25 Bom. 337 (347) Ref. The boundary between an error of judgment and the usurpation of a power is this: the former is reversible by an Appellate Court within a certain fixed time and is therefore only voidable, the latter is an absolute nullity. When parties are before the court and present to it a controversy, which the court has authority to decide, a decision not necessarily correct, but appropriate to that question is an exercise of judicial power or jurisdiction. So far as the jurisdiction itself is concerned, it is wholly immaterial whether the decision upon the particular question be correct or incorrect. A court may have the right and power to determine the status of a thing and yet may exercise its authority erroneously; after jurisdiction attaches in any case, all that follows is exercise of jurisdiction, and continuance of jurisdiction is not dependent upon the correctness of the determination. ———Objection to—Determination of—Duty of Court—Submission—Waiver.

If the jurisdiction of a court depends upon the existence of certain facts, the Court must decide upon the evidence whether they exist or not, and if upon the facts so found a subordinate court has assumed jurisdiction, the superior court will not interfere with its decision by way of appeal. Where an inferior court has no jurisdiction ab initio, a party by taking a step in a cause before it does not waive his right to object to the want of jurisdiction. But if jurisdiction is contingent, the deft. waives his right to object to it by omitting to raise the objection at the proper time. (Bakewell and Phillips, JJ.) ANNAMMAL v. M. V. ———Objection to—Trial on the merits when permissible—Impeaching Collector's view of the law.

In the absence of any allegation that the Collector acted Mala Fide or purported to seek the protection of the statute with the full knowledge that he was committing a mere act of aggression, it was not competent to the Court to try the suit on the merits with a view to determine whether the Collector was right in his view of the law. To uphold the objection to jurisdiction only in cases where it is proved on enquiry that the Collector acted in entire conformity with the existing laws, would be to render the statute barring jurisdiction wholly nugatory. ———Objection to—Submission.

When the acts complained of are committed or are to be committed within the jurisdiction of the court and the party proceeded against although he resides outside the jurisdiction has appeared in suit and submitted personally to the jurisdiction of the court, the court has jurisdiction to make the order. (Miller C. J. and Ross, J.)
4 P. L. T. 48=1923 P. 209.

———Objection to—When avoids judicial proceedings—Patent and latent defect..

Jurisdiction may be defined as the power and authority conferred on a court to pronounce the sentence of the law or to award the remedies provided by law upon a state of facts, proved or admitted referred to the court for decision and authorised by law to be the subject of investigation or action by that court, and in favour of or against persons who present themselves or who are brought before the court in some manner sanctioned by law as proper and sufficient. The rule is well-established that when the want of jurisdiction of a court is apparent on the face of the record any judgment rendered by such a court is null and void and incapable of ratification and subject to collateral impeachment. But it is equally well-established that the court has jurisdiction to decide whether it has jurisdiction to entertain the suit and that the decision of the court that it has jurisdiction is final and conclusive in all collateral enquiries. (Das and Adami, JJ.) DWARKA PRASAD v. JAI BARHAM. 1922 P. 322.

———Objection to—Valuation of suit—Objection taken as to its correctness—Court, power of, to decide.

Where an objection is taken as to the correctness of valuation for the purposes of jurisdiction, the court has power to decide the question. (Coutts and Adami, JJ.) MOHINI MOHAN v. GUR CHANDRA RAI. 5 P. L. J. 397=1 P. L. T. 390= ———Objection to—Waiver—Under-valuation—Whether waiver can confer—When objection should be raised.

Jurisdiction is either territorial or pecuniary. Where a court has no jurisdiction as to the subject matter of the suit, waiver on the part of the defendant cannot confer it on the court. But where a party has undervalued his claim and brought the suit in a court which would have no jurisdiction to try the suits, had it been properly valued, the court can try the suit or any issues in the suit, if no objection is taken before the court assumes jurisdiction over it. An objection to jurisdiction, on the ground of undervaluation is capable of waiver. (Das and Adami, JJ.) MABOOD BUKSH v. MUSSAMMAT MAHMOODAN. 57 I. C. 378=1920 Pat. 360.

JURISDICTION—Pecuniary.

———Objection to—Waiver—Effect, irregularities in procedure.

If a court has jurisdiction and the law requires some preliminary conditions to be observed ancillary to such jurisdiction being exercised, the parties may waive these conditions and in that event the jurisdiction cannot be impeached on the ground of irregularity in the exercise of the court's jurisdiction. ———Pecuniary — Partnership suit—Decree in excess of amount— Whether amendments can be ordered.

Where in a partnership suit, the court finds after trial, that the amount due exceeds its pecuniary jurisdiction, it is competent to pass a decree for the full amount. After a preliminary decree and an appellate decree confirming it, have been passed, the plaint merges in the decree and the trial court is incompetent thereafter to order an amendment of valuation of the plaint in accordance with its finding as to the amount due and then to return the plaint for presentation to the proper court. ———Venue— Forum of appeal— Decree for redemption on payment of a sum below Rs. 5,000—Decree in appeal on payment of a sum of Rs. 5,000.

If an appeal has once been presented and entertained in the Divisional Court, the powers of the Divisional Court on the decree to be passed are as unlimited as the powers of the Chief Court. A suit for redemption on payment of Rs. 400 was filed in a Subordinate Court having unlimited pecuniary jurisdiction. The court passed a decree for redemption on payment of Rs. 3,000 and odd. JURISDICTION—Venue.

———Venue—Suit to set aside award.

A suit to set aside an award must be filed in a court which has got pecuniary jurisdiction to the extent of the liability which plaintiff is trying to set aside. (Venkatasubba Rao, J.) VENKATACHALAM PILLAY v. SRINIVASA IYER. 18 L. W. 399=(1923) M. W. N. 747=1924 M. 84.

———Venue—Appeal to what court lies—Court passing a decree beyond its pecuniary jurisdiction—Effect.

The value of the subject-matter of a suit is its valuation at the time of its institution and the amount or value as fixed in the plaint should determine the forum of appeal. In an appeal, the suit is deemed as continued in the court of appeal and re-heard there. The mere fact that a court passes a decree beyond its pecuniary jurisdiction does not affect the court to which the appeal would ordinarily lie from the decision of that court. In every case where a court has accepted a suit, it cannot and does not lose jurisdiction over it by change in the value of the subject-matter after institution or by the precise ascertainment of its value in cases which do not admit of such valuation at time of institution, except where plaint is allowed to be amended. In suits for accounts or mesne profits, the court can award such sum as it finds due to the plff:, although such sum is above its pecuniary jurisdiction. The venue in a case is determined by the nature of the claim as laid, and it is unnecessary to consider nature of the defence set up. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) KAMA v. BHAJAN LAL CHANTAN LAL. 45 I. C. 654.

———Venue—Nature of claim.

The venue in the case is decided by the nature of the claim as brought. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) GANPAT v. TRIMBAK. 19 I. C. 759=9 N. L. R. 54.

———Venue—Transfer of case—Grounds for—Balance of convenience.

A plaintiff has an undoubted right to bring his suit in any court which has jurisdiction but there is no particular sanctity to be attached to this right. If the defendants can show a clear balance of advantage in the way of convenience and expense they are entitled to have the case transferred. (*Ashworth and Simpson, A. J. JURISDICTION—Venue.

———Venue—Suit for declaration—Cause of action—Jurisdiction of court.

A suit for declaration in respect of the title to certain property must be filed in the court which would have jurisdiction to try a suit for possession in respect of the same property. (Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.) KANTA SIROMAN PRASAD SINGH v. GAYA DIN. 25 O. C. 184=1922 Oudh 249.

———Venue — Contract — Money payable in England—King's Bench Division.

King's Bench Division has jurisdiction if the money under the contract was payable in England and the defendant, a British subject, was properly served. (Robinson, J.) S. KING v. D. J. BUCHANAN. 9 Bur. L. T. 106=35 I. C. 741.

What determines.

———What determines.

The mere fact that the ancestral home of persons who have residence abroad has not the effect of giving jurisdiction. (Walsh and Wallach, JJ.) KISHORI LAL v. RAM SUNDAR. 64 I. C. 688 (1)=19 A. L. J. 822.

———What determines—Nature of suit.

The jurisdiction of a court depends upon the nature of the suit as framed and not upon the character which it would ultimately assume. (Rafique, J.) DUKKHI v. GHURHU. 33 I. C. 768.

———What determines—Frame of suit.

Whether a suit is of the nature of a Small Cause suit or not, depends upon the frame of the suit and not upon the defence that may be set up. 20 A. 480, Foll; 6 C. L. J. 218, not foll. (Sundar Lal, J.) LALA RAM v. MAN SINGH. 26 I. C. 128=12 A. L. J. 1032.

———What determines—Frame of suit must be looked at.

The jurisdiction of a court depends upon the frame of the suit and not upon the relief which the plaintiff might ultimately be entitled to obtain from the court. (Banerjee and Ryves, JJ.) INAYAT HUSSAIN v. MUHAMMAD ASKARI. 20 I. C. 421=11 A. L. J. 542.

———What determines—Pleadings.

The nature of a suit is primarily determined by the pleadings and does not depend upon the plff's. success at the trial. (Batchelor and Rao, JJ.) GIRDHARLAL v. NARANLAL. 17 I. C. 779=14 Bom. L. R. 1135.

———What determines—Nature of plaint.

The jurisdiction of the court does not depend upon actual facts but upon the allegations made concerning them even though they may be totally false. (Imam, J.) PADAMSEE NARAYANJEE v. LAKHAMSEE RAISEE. 33 I. C. 288=43 Cal. 144.

———What determines—Value of claim—Defence if affects.

The jurisdiction of a court to entertain and adjudicate upon a cause of action depends upon the nature of the claim put forward by the plff. as his cause of action and the matter involved in it, and does not depend upon what the defendant may assert in defence. 9 W. R. 598, Rel. Therefore, the jurisdiction of a Revenue Court is not put an end to by the defendants, denial of the plaintiff's title or of the relationship of landlord and tenant. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) HIRANAND OJHA v. RAGUBAR SINGH. 16 I. C. 904.

JURISDICTION—What determines.

———What determines.

The question of jurisdiction has to be determined with reference to the claim made and not to the decision on the claim. (Martineau and Moti Sagar, JJ.) UDHE RAM v. NARAIN SINGH. 1923 Lah. 284 (1).

———What determines—Decision of Court, if affects.

The jurisdiction of a court could not depend on the decision of the court as to whether it can or will allow some of the reliefs asked for. (Ayling and Srinivasa Aiyangar, JJ.) SUBRAMANIA AIYAR v. VENKATACHALA VADHYAR. (1916) 2 M. W. N. 351=37 I. C. 688=4 L. W. 444.

———What determines—Allegations in plaint.

In disposing of a question of jurisdiction, a court is confined to the allegations contained in the plaint. (Seshagiri Iyer, J.) KANDUKURI KOTIAH v. DEVINENI REDAMMA. 33 I. C. 658=(1916) 1 M. W. N. 278.

———What determines—Cause of action—Whether affected by subsequent events.

A plaintiff's remedy in a suit should ordinarily be restricted to the cause of action with which he comes into court and the events transpiring since the institution of the suit will not enable him to add to his reliefs nor will they cut down his rights. Jurisdiction in respect of his remedy is in the forum competent to grant appropriate relief at the time of the institution of the suit. (Oldfield and Seshagiri Iyer, JJ.) NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU v. KUMARI AND RAMAYYA. 16 M. L. T. 244=26 I. C. 475=(1914) M. W. N. 713, 870.

———What determines—Valuation of suit—How far court is bound by.

For the purpose of jurisdiction the plaintiff's valuation of the relief sought must be accepted only where such valuation depends upon facts constituting the cause of action and the court cannot verify it without trying the whole case, but where such valuation is obviously a fictitious averment made for the purpose of sitting the jurisdiction of the court, the court should not permit itself to be made a party to the plaintiff's fraud, but should inquire whether it really has jurisdiction. (Bakewell, J.) MURZA HYDER ALI SAHIB v. HUSSAIN RAZA SAHIB. 24 I. C. 316=1 L. W. 398.

———What determines—Valuation of suit.

The pecuniary jurisdiction of a court is determined not by the relief awarded, but by the valuation of the suit as per terms of the plaint. 25 M. 543; 16 A. 286; 21 C. 550, Foll. JURISDICTION—What determines.

———What determines—Nature of plaint.

The true nature of a suit is essentially a matter of substance and cannot be altered by the form in which the claim is laid in the plaint. 10 I. C. 883, Rel. The forum for any particular suit must be determined by the allegations in the plaint. (Benson and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.) VARADARAJULU CHETTIAR v. PATTRA NARAYANASWAMY CHETTY.

———What determines—Nature of relief sought.

It is the nature of the relief sought that determines the jurisdiction of a court. 15 B. 400; 32 B. 35, Ref. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) BHANYA v. NAKA. 31 I. C. 5=11 N. L. R. 160.

———What determines.

Obiter dicta:—The question of jurisdiction is to be determined from the nature of the case and not from the truth or falsehood of a claim involved in it. Merits of a demand are immaterial to the determination of the question of jurisdiction and this determination must take place at the beginning of an enquiry and not at its end. (Stanyon, A. J. C.) G. I. P. Ry. COMPANY v. AMROATI MUNICIPALITY. 16 I. C. 449=8 N. L. R. 107.

———What determines—Allegations in plaint to be accepted.

It is settled law that the jurisdiction to try a suit must prima facie be determined with reference to the allegations contained in the plaint. (Wazir Hasan, A. J. C.) SHAHIDAN v. JAGANNATH.
4 U. P. L. R. (J. C.) 23=8 O. L. J. 594=

———What determines — Redemption suit—Allegations in the plaint.

In a suit between persons claiming a mutually exclusive right to redeem the mortgage, and not between co-mortgagors, one of whom has succeeded in inducing the mortgagee to allow him to redeem it, and the other of whom has brought the suit seeking to enforce his right of redemption against the heirs and transferees of the original mortgagee and the persons who are said to have redeemed the mortgage without any right. The jurisdiction of the court is determined by the allegations made in the plaint, and that being so the value of the mortgaged property cannot be taken into account for determining where the suit for redemption will lie. The questions of title or adverse possession that might arise are only incidental to the main relief claimed in the plaint. (Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.) SHANKER v. RAM BAHADUR.

———What determines—Subject-matter.

The jurisdiction of a court depends upon the nature of the subject-matter of the suit, in most cases upon the pecuniary value of the suit, and in all cases upon the local limits of their jurisdiction. (Miller, C. J. and Das, J.) GANPAT BUSAIN v. GULAM KUTUBUDDIN AHMED. 5 P. L. J. 588=

2 Pat. L. J. 394.

———What determines—Value of claim—Partition suit—Waiver of objection—Effect.

The value put upon the claim by the plaintiff determines jurisdiction, but it is not to be ousted by unwarrantable additions to the claim. In a partition suit, the value for purposes of jurisdiction will be determined upon the value of the share claimed. Accordingly where on a question of valuation of a suit for purposes of jurisdiction the parties agreed to be bound by the finding of the Commissioner, it is not open to either party to object to the reference to the Commissioner as illegal. The Memons are a sect of Mahomedans who were converted from Hinduism, some four centuries ago, but retained their Hindu Law of succession and are governed by that law throughout India, in the absence of a local custom to the contrary. Where, however, the Memons migrate from India and settle among Mahomedans in Mombassa (East Africa), the presumption that they have adopted the Mahomedan Law of succession prevailing in Mombassa, should be much more readily made. The analogy in the latter case is that a change of domicile on settling in a new country rather than the analogy of a change of custom on migration within India. Held, on the evidence that the Mahomedan family at Mombassa was governed by the Mahomedan Law. ———Hali Memons—Succession and inheritance—Hindu law—Custom—Change of domicile by Hindu or Mahomedan Personal Law—Effect on.

Hali Memons of Porebunder are governed by Hindu Law into matters of succession and inheritance. Halai Memons of Porebunder residing and carrying on business in Bombay are governed by the law applicable to Porebunder Memons and not to the Memons of Bombay. The Memons of Kathiawar, of whatever group or set follow the Hindu rule of succession and this conclusion is supported as to the Porebunder Memons particularly by large number of instances. A Hindu's or Mahomedan's possession may be distributed partly by one law and partly by another according to the locality of the possessions. They must all fall under either the law of the religion or the customary law of the community. There is no lex loci for the purpose of distribution. (*Scott, C. ———Memons converts from Hinduism to Mahomedanism.

As regards inheritance and succession Halai Memons settled in Porebunder in Kathiawar did not retain Hindu Law. ———Cutchi Memons.

Cutchi Memons have by custom the power to dispose the whole of their property by will. They have not adopted the Hindu Law of joint family, and the distinction in Hindu Law between joint and self-acquired property, though they are subject by custom to the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance as supplied to an estate of separated Hindu who has left self-acquired property. Obiter:—Just as a custom can be adopted by volition so can it be equally abandoned by volition. Cutchi Memons are governed by Mahomedan rather than Hindu Law in respect of wills and a device should conform to the essentials of gift under that law; bequests are gifts taking effect on the death of the donor and belong properly to the law governing gifts. Where a Cutchi Memon's will recited that his "Punji" should be utilised in case there is no son or the latter dies without an heir for distribution in connection with such good works of charity as the executors may think just and proper, such as sanitarium, Suvavad Khan, Musafarkhana, schools: Held that the will was good and valid and not void for uncertainty and not bad as offending the radical principle that a gift should be in presenti and not in futuro. Quaere:—Whether the law of succession and inheritance includes the making of wills? ———Law governing—Succession—Hindu Law—Law of joint family property.

In matters of succession and inheritance Cutchi Memons are governed by Hindu Law, and as under Hindu Law, there is no such thing as succession to joint family property, the law of joint family property does not apply to them, so that a Cutchi Memon does not acquire by birth any interest in property inherited by his father. ———Law governing—Succession—Hindu Law.

Khojas and Memons of Bombay are in matters of succession governed by the Hindu Law as applied to separate and self-acquired property. The incidents of a joint family under Hindu Law and the doctrine of nucleus do not apply to them. Khoja's son cannot sue for partition during his father's lifetime and a suit for declaration of his rights as a member of a joint family is premature as he may not be alive when a partition could be effected. Where a public body authorised by statute to compulsorily acquire land for certain specified purposes of public utility and benefit, includes land within the area of the scheme, not because it is wanted for purposes of the Act, but in order to exact an exemption fee from the owner, it is a misuse of the powers conferred on the body and its action would be ultra vires; and the owner of the land so proposed to be acquired could obtain redress by a suit in a Civil Court. ———Contract as to compensation—How far binding.

A proposed to purchase B's property. B claimed a certain amount but not agreeing with it. A moved the Government to compulsorily acquire it. In the meantime B agreed to accept the offer of A. The Government proclaimed by notification to acquire the property under the Act, and the Collector heard the proceedings, in which B claimed a certain price and instituted suit for the same. A brought a suit for declaration that B was not entitled for the compensation as he had made an offer and entered into a binding contract. B contended it was not binding as it was not a proposal but an invitation to make it on terms to be settled. If the invitation was construed as an offer and proposal it was void and ineffective, without binding either party. The trial court decreed A's claim. Held, that the decree was right that B's agreement was enforceable, before the Collector made an award, that A was entitled to enter into it, and that it could be specifically enforced. LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I OF 1894).

———As amended by Calcutta Improvement Act, S. 32—Investment in the purchase of other lands.

Some lands having been acquired by the Improvement Trust a sum of Rs. 2,24,400 was deposited with the President of the Improvement Tribunal. The trustees of the estate to which the land belonged applied for delivery of the money to them to erect building on the exempted portion. Held, that having regard to the definition of 'land' S. 32 includes the erection of building upon the land and hence the trustees are entitled to get the money for the purpose. (Chatterjea and Newbould, JJ.) In re GANENDRA MULLICK 67 I.C. 18= 25 C.W.N. 897.

———One holding—One notice sufficient.

The Land Acquisition Act refers only to one notice, one proceeding and one award given, taken and made regarding one holding and one ownership. But there is no objection to separate proceedings in respect of separate holdings. (Woodroffe and Walmsley, JJ.). R. C. SEN v. TRUSTEES FOR IMPROVEMENT OF CALCUTTA. 64 I.C. 677=33 C.L.J. 509.

———Scope of—No provision for refund.

There is nowhere a provision in the Act empowering the Court to order a person to refund the money awarded to him under the Act. (Martineau, J.) GOHAR SULTAN v. ALI MAHAMED. 63 I.C. 1=3 Lah. L.J. 421.

———S. 3 (a)—'Land,' meaning of—Bungalow in Cantonment limits.

Under the Act the Court can adjudicate on any question of title to the land acquired or to apportion the amount of compensation for it as between the claimant and Government. In the case of land with superstructure in which the Government have an admitted or a disputed interest, it is open to the Government to acquire that property. (Shah, Hayward and Crump, JJ.) MANGALDAS v. THE ASSISTANT COLLECTOR OF PRANTIJ PRANT AHMEDABAD. 45 Bom. 277=64 I.C. 884= 23 Bom. L.R. 158.

———S. 3 (a)—'Land'—Things attached to the earth—Acquisition of.

Things attached to the earth are included in the word "land" in S. 3 (a). However, things only without the land cannot be acquired. (Mullick and Kingsford, JJ.) DASARATH SAHU v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 35 I.C. 97.

———Ss. 3 (b) 11 and 31—Person interested.

Under S. 3 (b) of the Land Acquisition Act, the expression "person interested" includes all persons claiming an interest in compensation to be made on account of the acquisition of the land. A person may be interested in the compensation money without having an interest in the legal sense of the term. (Macleod, J.) In re PESTONJE JEHANGIR HOMMURJI. 37 Bom. 76= 15 I.C. 771=15 Bom. L.R. 507.

LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I of 1894), S. 6.

———S. 3 (b) — "Person interested"—Meaning of.

S. 3 (b) of Land Acquisition Act includes under "person interested" a party to a valid agreement for purchase of land. (Shadi Lal and Broadway, JJ.) CHHUTTAN LAL v. MULCHAND. 18 P.R. 1917=37 I.C. 822= 28 P.W.R. 1917.

———S. 3 (d)—'Court'—Additional District Judge—Power to dispose of reference—B.N.W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act, S. 8 (2).

An Additional District Judge is competent to dispose of references under the Land Acquisition Act made over to him for disposal by the District Judge under S. 8 (2) of the Bengal N.W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887. (Teunon and Greaves, JJ.) JOGESH CHANDRA SANYAL v. RASIKAL SAHA. 50 I.C. 690.

———S. 3 (f)—Public purpose—Meaning of—Residence for public officers.

Power of resumption for public purposes: (1) To constitute a public purpose, in taking land, it is not necessary that the land when taken should be made available to the public at large. It is enough, if the object or aim of the acquisition, is one in which the general interest of the community as opposed to the particular interests of individuals is directly concerned. (2) The erection of residential quarters at moderate rentals for Government officers in a very crowded city is a "public purpose" authorising the Government to resume certain lands which they had leased subject to the liability for resumption for public purposes. The Government are prima facie good judges of what is a public purpose, but not absolute judges. (Lord Dunedin, J.) HAMABAI FERAMJEE v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 39 Bom. 279=42 I.A. 49= 13 A.L.J. 117=17 M.L.T. 76= 19 C.W.N. 30d=17 Bom. L.R. 100= 28 M.L.J. 179=2 L.W. 191=21 C.L.J. 134= 27 I.C. 26=(1915) M.W.N. 603 (P.C.).

———Ss. 6, 16, Part VII—Highway—Acquisition of—Compensation to the public.

None of the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act relating to compensation cover the case of acquisition of a highway used by the public with the consequential compensation to them. (Viscount Haldane.) MUNICIPAL CORPORATION v. GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY CO. 41 B. 291=21 M.L.T. 1= 19 Bom. L.R. 48=16 A.L.J. 63= (1917) M.W.N. 83=21 C.W.N. 447= 25 C.L.J. 209=38 I.C. 923= 43 I.A. 310 (P.C.).

———S. 6—Declaration of public purpose—Finality.

The language of S. 6 of the Land Acquisition Act is perfectly plain and clearly bars the Court from enquiring into the question whether the purpose for which land in respect of which a declaration under S. 6 has been issued is public purpose or not. (Ryves and Daniels, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. AKBER ALI. 45 A. 453=21 A.L.J. 336= L.R. 41 A. 193=1923 All. 528 (2).

LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I of 1894), S. 6.

———Ss. 6 and 9—Declaration— Notice—No action taken—Suit for ejectment.

In a land acquisition case the necessary declaration under S. 6 of the Land Acquisition Act was duly made and published and the public notice under S. 9, Cls. (1) and (2) was also duly published and the plaintiff received notice of the proceedings as required by Cls. (3) and (4) of S. 9 of the Act in reasonable time to allow him time to take any action he deemed proper. He appeared and asked for a reference under S. 18 but afterwards he brought a suit for possession. Held, that the defts. had acquired title to the land in suit according to Land Acquisition Act and cannot be ejected. (Piggott and Lindsay, JJ.) SHAHJAHAN BEGUM v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

———S. 6—'Public purpose'—Accommodation of Government officials and Government of India Act (21 and 22 Vic, C. 106), S. 39.

In 1854 the E. I. Company granted 99 years' lease to the deft. with a reservation of its resumption by the Government for a public purpose, viz., for building accommodation for the Government officials in Bombay. Held, that the purpose was a public purpose within the meaning of the lease. As the term includes any object securing the good of the public by securing the efficiency of those officials of the Crown on whose service the public good materially depends. (It matters little that the Government will charge less rent than its letting value will yield in market. Chandavarkar and Heaton, JJ.) HAMABAI v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 12 I C 871= 13 Bom. L.R. 1097.

———S. 6 (3)—Declaration is conclusive—Evidence Act, S. 4.

The effect of a declaration under S. 6 (3) is only to make it conclusive that the land is required for a public purpose. It does not debar a Court from enquiring into the validity of the steps leading to that declaration. (Greaves, J.) In re MANICK CHAND MAHATAB v. THE CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA AND THE CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT TRUST.
66 I.C 600=48 Cal. 916.

———Ss. 9 and 25—Failure to claim compensation—Effect of—Interest, right to.

Where a person omits to make a claim under S. 9 the District Judge is justified in refusing to award anything more than the amount awarded by the Collector under S. 25 of the Act. Interest should ordinarily be allowed on compensation awarded. (Tudball and Rafique, JJ.) RAMPRASAD v. COLLECTOR OF ALIGARH. 40 I C. 274.

The object of calling for objections under S. 9 is to make a fair, reasonable and proper award based upon a proper and fair inquiry and the fact of previous negotiations between the claimant and the Government is no ground for not putting forward a claim. (Tudball and Rafique, JJ.) NARAIN DUTT v. SUPERINTENDENT OF DEHRA DUN.
37 A. 69=26 I.C. 795=12 A.L.J. 1319.

———S. 9—Notice—Non-service—Effect.

Although a notice under S. 9 of the Land Acquisition Act is imperative non-service of the notice is not fatal to the proceedings if the party complaining has notice of the same. 43 Mad. 280. (Chatterjee and Pearson, JJ.) BURN & CO., LTD v. SECY. OF STATE FOR INDIA. 1923 Cal. 513.

———Ss. 9, 11, 18—Compensation—Apportionment by Collector—Party dissatisfied—No right of suit.

The Land Acquisition Act creates a special jurisdiction and provides a special remedy And ordinarily when jurisdiction has been conferred upon a special Court for the investigation of matters which may possibly be in controversy, such jurisdiction is exclusive. 10 C.W.N, 991 Ref. It is an established principle that where by an act of the legislature powers are given to any person for a public purpose from which an individual may receive injury if the mode of redressing the injury is pointed out by the statute the ordinary jurisdiction of the Civil Court is ousted and in the case of injury the party cannot proceed by action. Where in a land acquisition case a person is served with notice under S. 9 of the Land Acquisition Act he is bound to apply for a reference under S. 18 if he is dissatisfied with the award and he cannot maintain a suit to vindicate his rights in the ordinary Civil Court. Similarly a person who was a party to the apportionment of the compensation cannot re-open the question by a regular suit. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) SAIBESH CHANDRA SARKAR v. SIR BEJOY CHAND MAHATAP. 26 C.W.N. 506= 1922 Cal. 4.

———S. 9—Claim for damages—When can be made in Civil Court—Market value on date of acquisition.

In a suit for enhancement of compensation for land acquired by a public body for a public purpose, a claim for damages does not lie in the Civil Court unless originally raised before the Collector The question of market value of land on the date of acquisition does not depend on the result of the acquisition. (Chevis, J.) UMAR BAKSH v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 46 I.C. 906=145 P.W R. 1918.

———Ss. 9 and 25 (2)—Omission to make claim within date fixed—Jurisdiction of Collector to consider claim before award.

In a land acquisition case the notice issued by the Collector under S. 9 of the Act directed the persons interested to appear and state their objections on the 20th July, 1912. Plaintiff failed to appear on that date, but appeared on 21st August and filed written objections, which were considered by the Collector who made his award. Held, that the plaintiff could not be said to have omitted to make a claim pursuant to the notice given under S. 9 merely because he did not make it by the date originally fixed in the notice: and that at any time before giving his award the Collector had jurisdiction to deal with any claim made to him under S. 9 (2) of the Act. (Scott-Smith and Shadi Lal, JJ.) THE SECRETARY OF STATE v. SOHAN LAL. 60 P.R. 1918=44 I.C. 883=76 P.W R. 1918.

———Ss. 9 and 11—Claimant- Government.

Claimant in the Act means claimant to compensation and does not include Government as the Government does not claim compensation. (Wallis, J.) DEPUTY COLLECTOR, CALICUT DIVISION v. AIYAVU PILLAY. 9 M.L.T 272=9 I C 341=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 367.

———Ss. 9, 11 and 18—Question of title between claimant and Government—Reference to District Judge not competent.

If the Government claims to be the owner of some land and notice under S. 9 is issued to that effect any person claiming an interest in the land can assert the same and the Collector is bound to inquire into the extent of the interest under S. 11 of the Act. If he decides dispute against the claimant, the question cannot form the subject of reference to the District Judge under S. 18. The claimant must bring a separate suit in such a case. (Daniels and Lyle, A.J.Cs.,) *MAHAMMAD WAJEEH v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 24 O.C. 197=64 I.C. 93 (2)=8 O L.J. 426.

———Ss. 9 and 12—Award not communicated to applicant—Effect—Limitation for filing objection.

An award of the Collector not made in the presence of and not communicated to the applicant is no award at all and the period of limitation for filing an objection to the award can be computed only from the date when the award is made within the applicant's knowledge. 22 I.C. 652. (Kanhaiya Lal, A.J.C.) HARI DAS PAL v. MUNICIPAL BOARD, LUCKNOW. 22 I C. 652=16 O.C 374.

———S. 9 (3)—Omission to send notice—Effect.

Where the Collector intentionally omits to give notice to the owner of land, his proceedings cannot vest the land in Government but the proceedings are not invalid if the owner did not get the notice by mere inadvertance. (Tudball and Abdur Raoof, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE v. QAMAR ALI. 51 I.C 501=16 A.L J. 669.

———S. 9, Cl. (3)—'To the same effect' meaning of—Notice—Time.

The words ' to the same effect ' in Cl. (3), S. 9 mean that in the second notice the same matters should be included as in the first and hence 15 days should be allowed to the occupier so as to enable him to make his objections. (Richards, C.J. and Banerji, J.) KRISHNA SAH v COLLECTOR OF BAREILLY. 39 A. 835=40 I.C. 76=16 A.L J. 450.

LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I of 1894), S. 11.

———Ss. 11, 12 — Award when becomes final — Filing of award — Acquiring officer duty of.

Per Macleod, J. (Shah, J. contra):—The mere signing of an award by an acquiring officer does not amount to the making of an award within S. 11 of the Act and has no binding effect where the officer himself does not intend the document to be final. To make it binding on Government it must be filed under S. 12. Per Shah, J.—The filing is only a ministerial act and does not affect the conclusive nature of the award made under S. 11. The Act gives the officer wide discretion as to the scope of the inquiry but it requires him to make an award as to the matters mentioned in S. 11 and to have regard to Ss. 23 and 24 in determining the amount of compensation. (Macleod, C.J. and Shah, J.) PADAMSI NARAYAN v. THE COLLECTOR OF THANA. 23 Bom. L R. 779=1922 B. 161.

———Ss. 11, 12—Award, is final only when filed.

The Collector has power under S 11 to inquire into the value of the land and into the respective interests of the persons claiming the compensation and after awarding a sum for compensation, he has to apportion the compensation among all the persons known or believed to be interested in the land of whom or whose claims he has information. What the Collector and the Court have to do is to apportion the sum awarded amongst the persons interested as far as possible in proportion to the value of their interest. The market value of an interest if ascertainable, may afford some guide towards ascertaining the amount to be apportioned in respect of that interest but that can only be considered in relation to the total sum awarded as compensation. Where an application for reference made to the Collector was time-barred but the Collector nevertheless made reference and the Court held that the application was time barred under proviso (a) of S. 18 the order of dismissal is not appealable under S. 54 of the Act. An award signed by the Collector as Land Acquisition Officer, satisfies the requirements of the law as regards signature and official designation, for the purposes of this Act. It is not open to a Collector to waive the objection of limitation and a Court can always hold that an application to a Collector for reference could not form the basis of reference under Ss. 18 and 19, inasmuch as they were barred by time. ——S. 18 (2) (b)—Limitation—Collector's award—When becomes complete.

A Collector's award under the Act becomes complete on the very day on which it is made, not when it is afterwards directed to be paid to the claimant, so that an application to the Collector to make a reference to the Court under S. 18 would be barred if brought more than six months after the date of the award. (Shah Din, J.) MIRAN BAKSH v FEROZE DIN. 14 I.C. 537 = 203 P.W.R. 1912.

——S. 18—Limitation—Exclusion of time in getting copy of award.

Where the award of a Collector is made in the presence of the claimant, the claimant if dissatisfied therewith, cannot exclude the time spent in obtaining a copy of the award from the period of six weeks, prescribed by S. 18. The real party to the proceeding in a land acquisition case is not the Collector but the Government. A Collector's authority to make a reference as the Agent of Government is restricted by S. 18. A Collector therefore cannot make a reference on a time-barred application and if he does so, his action is illegal and does not bind the Government. No waiver on the part of a Collector can atone for a failure of the claimant in fulfilling the statutory conditions before his right to require the Collector to make a reference can come into existence. The plaintiff was the lessor of a piece of land which was later on acquired by the City of Bombay Improvement Trust. In the compensation proceedings before the Special Collector the plaintiff was silent, and the amount of compensation was amicably settled between the Improvement Trust and the lessees. The amount was apportioned among the lessees, the lessor, the mortgagee of the lessor and the Municipal Commissioner. The lessees and the mortgagee, received their amounts from the Collector; the plaintiff not satisfied with the amount given to him, applied to the Collector to make an apportionment reference under S. 18 to the Tribunal of Appeal. On reference the plaintiff was declared entitled to a certain sum out of the moneys received by the lessees; but the Tribunal could not make an order of refund against the lessees. Therefore the plaintiff filed the present suit for the amount. Held, (1) that the plaintiff has not accepted the award by not adducing any evidence before the Collector and by his mortgagee accepting the sum given to him; (2) that he need not deposit the amount in Court to entitle him to make a reference by the Collector under S. 18 and that the Tribunal of Appeal could entertain the reference; (3) that the suit was not premature although the plaintiff did not appeal under S. 48 (11) of the City of Bombay Improvement Trust Act, 1898; and (4) that the Court could entertain the suit by its inherent powers. Sub-section 2 of section 31 requires that the Collector shall when making reference under S. 18 and when the parties to the acquisition do not receive the amount tendered by him, deposit the amount of compensation in the Court to which reference is submitted. The Collector should not permit the money to be withdrawn before the expiry of the term fixed by S. 18 for objecting to the award and applying for reference. The District Judge has a right to demand the deposit of the money in Court when the reference is made and to insist upon its being done before disposing of the reference so that the money would be ready for payment forthwith in pursuance of the decree passed by him. 35 C. 1104, Ref. Scope of.

——— Ss. 18, 32 and 55—Scope of — Nature of proceedings under — Area of land — Extent of compensation — Decision on — Award — Appeal — Title to compensation money — Disputes — Decision not an award.

Under the Land Acquisition Act there are two perfectly separate and distinct forms of procedure contemplated. The first is that necessary for fixing the amount of compensation and this is an award from which a limited right of appeal to the High Court is given by S. 54 of the Land Acqn. Act. The second is when a question of title arises between conflicting claimants as regards the title to the compensation money in Court. When the Collector on such dispute arising between the parties places the money under the control of the Court and the parties proceed to litigate their right to the money, the decision of the Court on such dispute is a decree and is appealable to the High Court and the Privy Council. It is in no sense an award and the restriction on the right of appeal imposed by S. 54 does not govern the case. 40 C. 21 (P.C.), dist. ; 23 Cal. 526 ; 17 C.W.N. 935, disapproved. Although there might be a public right of way over a portion of land it does not follow that the claimant is entitled to no compensation at all for his rights as a proprietor. By reason of the Government acquiring a part of the frontage of the land belonging to the claimant, the land behind the plot acquired would by reason of such acquisition be injuriously affected. It is difficult to say because there will be some building occupied by the Police on that piece of land acquired by Government a purchaser wishing to buy the rest of the claimant's land would consider that the Police lines was a drawback, which would reduce its value. The value of the interest of the superior holder must be included in the award and not deducted from the value of the occupant's

The market value of land may be arrived at by means of the average of the prices realised at previous sales of land in the more or less immediate neighbourhood ; but this is not an absolutely reliable test of arriving at the market value though it may afford a basis for calculation. It is difficult to lay down any hard and fast rule as to the proportionate value of back and frontage land ; but in seeking to fix the proportion it is reasonable to bear in mind how far the land stands back from the road. On a question arising as to the mode of valuation of the interest of the government in toka lands on a lease of 50 years which would expire in 1929, the Court fixed four per cent. as the rate of assessment on the present value of the land and six per cent. as the rate at which the assessment should be capitalised. ———Ss. 23 and 24—Basis of compensation—Quarries—Apportionment of—Interest of Government—Toka tenure.

The mere fact that there is stone underneath the land sought to be acquired does not mean that the land should be valued on a quarrying basis, whether it would pay a purchaser to extract it would be purely problematical. Where Government has a partial interest in the land sought to be acquired, the valuation of the Government interest is a question of considerable difficulty. The total value arrived at after valuing the land as freehold, must be apportioned between the various parties who have interests in the land, because if an attempt is made to value each of these interests according to the market value the total value of those interests valued in that way would be most unlikely to correspond with the market value of the lands as a freehold. Where the Government has a right to enhance the rent on land, a method which has been generally used to arrive at the present value of that rent is to capitalize at a certain rate and then write it back to the date of acquisition, the rate of capitalisation and the rate of writing back being the same. ———S. 23—Basis of compensation—Test—Market value.

Market value affords a good test for calculating the value of lands to be acquired and the calculation should be based upon a prudent business method such as the nature of the land and the purpose for which it was used and for which it is acquired. A claimant must show that it is a building land or is likely to become building land at an early date before he can claim compensation on that footing. (Johnstone, J.) The price should be assessed with reference to the probable use which would give the owner the best return. ———S. 23—Distinct interests—Apportionment—Hypothetical grounds.

The market value of the land acquired may be determined on many hypothetical grounds. But the question of apportionment of the sum awarded as between the landlord and his tenant must be based not on hypothetical ground but on an accurate determination of the value of their respective interests in the land. The moment the land is acquired it ceases to be the property of both the landlord and the tenant, and it is consequently erroneous to bring into consideration the hypothetical assumption that the land would continue to be covered by the huts for several years and that at the end of that period would be delivered by the tenant to the landlord. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) NAYAN MONJURI DAS v. HEM LAL DUTT. 68 I.C. 417=32 C. L.J. 137.

The value of land should ordinarily be determined as a whole and the question of apportionment of the compensation awarded amongst claimants of different degrees should thereafter be taken into consideration, In this case, however, interest of different degrees were valued successively and independenly of each other as convenient. The market value of land is the price when it is offered for sale by one who desires but is not obliged to sell and is bought by one who is under no necessity of having it. In the determination of the question of market value of tenancies of a precarious nature a Court has to look to the commercial value rather than to abstract legal rights. Though the interest of the tenant may be so precarious that he and his transferee may be compelled to leave the land at the will of the superior landlord, his interest cannot be said to have no market value. LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I of 1894), S. 23 —Market value.

———S. 23—Market value—Considerations —Speculation.

The market value of a plot of land is to be determined as a whole, having regard to the sales in the vicinity. The mere fact that it was purchased by a speculator in land with the aim of selling it again at a profit is no footing for disregarding the sale for assessing the compensation. The expression "market value" means the value which a parcel of land would realise if sold in the market. The seller must be one who is willing to sell standard a forced sale affords no criterion of market value. The purchaser must be a prudent purchaser, i.e., one who makes his offer after making necessary enquiries as to the value of the land; an offer made by one knowing nothing of the value of the land in the locality and who makes no enquires about it affords no test of market value. The state of the market at the material date is an important item in determining the market value. (Mulla, J.) THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY v. MERWAR MOONDIGAR AGA.

Where a property has been recently purchased by the claimant, the purchase money would be a fair test of its market value. It would however be open to the claimant to show that in the neighbourhood there has been a general rise in the value of property since his purchase, by adducing evidence of subsequent sales in the neighbourhood. On the other hand it would be open to Government to show that the claimant when he purchased the property, had taken a far too sanguine view of its possibilities in the future. The two most important questions are (1) whether the claimant has paid so high a price that the court may caution that he has not displayed the ordinary caution which a purchaser of land should display; (2) whether there has been any increase in the value of property in the neighbourhood within the short period between the purchase and the Govt. acquisition, (Macleod, C.J. and Shah, J.) Orchard Land.

LAND ACQUISITION ACT (I of 1894), S. 23 —Quarry.

(1) to the recent selling price of similar land in the neighbourhood; (2) to the suitability of the land for orchard purposes; and (3) to its situation with regard to the market. A calculation of the valuation of the ordinary occupancy rights in the neighbouring plots and of the value of the trees of which the orchard is composed is not a satisfactory method of arriving at the proper compensation for orchard land, and should only be adopted where there is no possibility of ascertaining the value of the lands as orchard lands. (Sharfuddin and Roe, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. BASNI LAL SAHU. 43 I.C. 17= 2 Pat. L.J. 615.

Quarry.

——S. 23—Quarry—Adventitious value of land.

Under the Land Acquisition Act if the land has an adventitious value in the sense that it is something beyond being merely agricultural and applicable for a particular purpose, the Court has to consider it in assessing compensation. Where land is acquired for quarrying, its special adaptability for the purpose must be taken into consideration. (Batchelor and Shah, JJ.) DAYA KHUSHUL v. THE ASSISTANT COLLECTOR, SURAT 38 Bom. 37= 21 I.C. 320=15 Bom. L.R. 845.

——S. 23—Quarry — Mode of assessing compensation for.

Per Fletcher and Greaves, JJ.,—(Huda, J. dissenting). The compensation payable in respect of quarry, must be based on the amount of workable stone likely to be gotten therefrom taken at a rate to be determined from the evidence. Per Huda, J.—In cases of this kind it is generally necessary to take two or all the methods of valuation available in order to arrive at a fairly correct valuation as exact valuation is practically impossible and approximate market value is all that can be aimed at. (Fletcher, Greaves and Huda, JJ.) MAZAFFAR ALI KHAN v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA. 45 I.C. 1.

——S. 23—Quarry—Basis of compensation —Present value of expected output.

Special adaptability of a land as quarry is an element for consideration when the land is compulsorily acquired and the basis is the present value of the expected output. ——S. 23—Quarry—"Land consisting of gravel and laterite."

In assessing compensation, the Court has to ascertain the market value, that is the value which would be paid in the market by a purchaser of good ability and well qualified to put the land to the best advantage. On the acquisition of land from which gravel was quarried, held that twenty times the annual income derived from the land was a proper basis of assessment of compensation. (Chapman and Roe, JJ.) Vacant Land.

In awarding compensation for vacant land, the existence of a tenant was supposed and the amount of possible rent with the value of landlord's interest on it was taken to be the sum of compensation. It was held that the principle was unsound. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) HEMCHANDRA v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 56 I.C. 738=31 C.L.J. 204.

Miscellaneous.

———Ss. 25, 3, 9 and 18—"Applicant," meaning of—Object and policy of section—'Widows' claim before Acquiring officer does not preclude reversioners from claiming larger amount before District Judge.

The word "applicant" in S. 25 is used to describe the person who puts in a written application under S. 18 for having his objection to the award referred for decision to a Civil Court. He is not necessarily identical with the person who makes a claim after notice under S. 9. All that S. 18 requires is that he should be "a person interested" within the meaning of S. 3, who should not have accepted the award. S. 25 is designed with the purpose of holding claimants to their own bargains and of preventing demands being increased at every stage from the Collector to the High Court. Claimants are estopped from getting more from the judge than what they claimed before the Collector and on the same principle their legal representatives will also be bound. Where a Hindu widow claimed compensation at a certain rate before the Acquiring officer, but afterwards surrendered the estate to the reversioners, the latter are not precluded by S. 25 from claiming a higher amount before the District Judge; for, though a widow represents her husband's estate for certain purposes, the reversioners are not her legal representatives. Nor are they bound by her acts on any principle of estoppel. (Spencer and Kumaraswamy Sastry, JJ.) ———S. 29—Apportionment of compensation—Khot and occupant—Occupant in possession of specific area of warkas.

In the case of warkas or bhati land in Salsette, it has been a recognised custom to divide the compensation between the occupant and the Khot in the proportion of 2 to 1. But that has been due to the fact that in the case of such lands it is extremely difficult to define, and ascertain the value of the respective interests of the Khots and the occupants, with the result that a rough and ready method of division has been adopted for want of a better one. In many cases the claimants against the Khots can hardly be called occupants. The claims are based on the fact that they are occupants of certain defined plots of land for the purpose of cultivating them so that by reason of such rights as occupants, they are entitled to other rights over the adjacent lands either for the purposes of grazing or of gathering rab materials. It is not generally shown that in such cases the occupants of cultivated lands have any defined area of warkas or bhati lands allotted to them, and so in order to divide the compensation between the Khot and the persons who have the right of user, owing to their position as cultivators, it has been found a convenient compromise to divide the compensation between them in that proportion. But it is entirely different where you find a tenant in occupation of a defined area of land, and paying assessment for it. Then undoubtedly he has a right to possession of all that area. the certificate executed by the Collector at the time of granting loan and registered under S. 12 stated that for repayment of the loan with interest, the immoveable property specified in the margin and the land on which the improvement was to be made was hypothecated to the Government, the Government obtains a perfectly good charge on the land and is entitled to enforce the charge by sale, in the ordinary manner. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Abadi.

Abadi.

———Abadi—Erection of building by tenant—License implied from conduct.

Erection of building for purposes of agriculture by a tenant and its use by him for more than 12 year's on an abadi raises the presumption of a license. So long as that tenant continues to be the zamindar's tenant the license cannot be revoked. (Stuart, J.) CHAUDURI BALWANT SINGH v. NET RAM.

———Abadi—Death of tenant without heirs—Escheat—Crown and landlord.

Held, on the evidence, having regard to the settlement of 1850 the proprietor of the Mahal was entitled to the abadi on which the tenant had erected a residential house, on the death of the tenant without heirs. The Crown's prima facie right was displaced by the evidence in the case. (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) BHARTPUR STATE v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

47 I.C. 823=16 A.L.J. 653.

———Abadi—Right to live in a house built by tenant—Ejectment.

In the United Provinces the Zamindars are under Government owners of every inch of ground within the Mahal, whether cultivated or waste, within his Zamindari and if any one other than the Zamindar seeks to establish a title to any portion whether through adverse possession or otherwise, the burden is on him of proving such title. The general law of the land is that if a tenant is ejected from the tenancy or abandons it, then, unless there be some special custom to the contrary, the site on which he has built his house reverts to the Zemindar and the tenant must remove the materials therefrom. (Knox, J.) SHOHRAT SINGH v. JHAGRU.

30 I.C. 782=13 A.L.J. 745.

———Abadi—Tenant's right to reside in house in abadi—Partition, effect of.

If prior to the partition of a village, the cultivating tenant possessed a right of residence on the land, the fact that in the partition, his cultivating holding was assigned to one Mahal and his residential house to another, would not in any way affect his right to reside in the house. 12 A.L.J. 588; 30 A. 282, Fol. (Piggott, J.) MUKHRAM SING v. KOTA.

24 I.C. 22=12 A.L.J. 488.

Structures built by the tenant of the abadi site could, in the absence of custom, be demolished by the landlord but the tenant could not be ejected. (Rafique, J.) KEHARI SINGH v. HOLASI. 21 I.C. 967 = 12 A.L.J. 175.

———Abadi—Occupation of land — Well—Construction of—Injurious to the right of Zamindar.

A landlord cannot restrain his tenant who has been in possession of the house for generations without paying rent, from constructing a well in the compound of his house for his convenience and comfort. (Griffin and Chamier, JJ.) BHAGWAN DAS v. MUHAMMAD YAHIA. 35 All. 292 = 18 I.C. 928 = 11 A.L.J. 301.

———Abadi — Ground rent — Transfer of site and house.

In a town it is impossible to start with the presumption that the occupiers of houses have no power to transfer the right to occupy the sites no which their houses stand. 30 A. 311, Dist. The payment of a small ground rent to the landlord is not necessarily inconsistent with the right to transfer the houses with the right to occupy sites. (Chamier and Rafique, JJ.) JAMNA KUER v. ABDUL NABI. 16 I C. 853.

———Abadi—Adverse possession — Ancinus possidendi.

The question of adverse possession depends upon the circumstances of each case; in a case where an innkeeper in an agriculturist village has been using his house for purposes other than those of an ordinary agricultural village paying no rent for the use of the site in abadi his possession of the site is adverse to that of the Zemindar. (Richards, C.J., Banerjee and Chamier, JJ.) INCHA RAM v. BANDE ALI KHAN. 38 All 757 = 11 I.C. 52 = 8 A.L.J. 877.

———Abadi—Tenant-at will.

When a non-proprietor has occupied common land (generally abadi) for several years with the consent of the proprietary body he cannot be ejected so long as he uses that area for the purpose for which it was granted, but the case of tenants-at-will is different. Their possession has been on sufferance and they have no occupancy right in land. (Le-Rossignol, J.) NIHALA v. SHAHAB DIN. 1923 Lah. 413.

———Abadi—Shamilat—Onus of proof.

The onus of proving that there is Shamilat in the Abadi which can be partitioned is on the person claiming partition. (Shadi Lal, C.J. and Leslie Jones, J.) MANJI v. GHULAM MAHOMMED. 61 I.C. 415 = 2 Lah. 78.

———Abadi—Alienation by non-proprietor—Status of alienor—Malik qabza.

A non-proprietary resident in a village, cannot in the absence of well-established custom, dispose of the site on which his house is built or his right of residence in the house without the consent of the proprietors of the village. The status of the person making the disposition must, however, be determined with reference to the time when he occupied the site. A Malik qabza having full proprietary rights over the cultivated land in his possession as Malik has the same rights in the absence of proof to the contrary and the proprietors who are entitled to a share in the shamilat are not entitled to interfere with the sale of his house by such Malik. (Shadi Lal, J.) LADHA RAM v. BAHADUR KHAN. 39 P L.R. 1918 = 43 I.C. 695 = 29 P.W.R. 1918.

When a non-proprietor diverts the site used by him as a Ghatwal to other purposes, setting up adverse title in himself, he forfeits his right of user and is liable to ejectment at the instance of the proprietor. (Chevis, J.) GIRDARI LAL v. NAND RAM. 98 P L R 1917 = 42 I C. 275 = 154 P.W.R. 1917.

———Abadi—Village abadi if undivided shamilat.

The entire village abadi cannot be looked upon as undivided shamilat of the original proprietor. (Robertson and Sharfuddin, JJ.) SAWAN SINGH v. JAFER KHAN. 7 P.W.R. 1912 = 39 P.R. 1912 = 13 I.C. 405 = 13 P.L.R. 1912.

———Abadi—Mortgage of house in abadi of village, by occupant—Right of proprietary body to take possession.

A mortgage by an occupant of a house in the abadi of a village, does not by itself entitle the proprietary body of the village to take possession of the house as against both the mortgagor and the mortgagee; the mortgagor has at any time, the right to redeem the mortgage. (Shah Din, J.) BAGGA SINGH v. HARNAM SINGH. 95 P.L.R. 1911 = 11 I.C. 317 = 213 P.W.R. 1911.

———Abadi—House—Transfer of—Occupation by transferee—Consent—Sinking of well.

Where no objection is made by the landlord to the occupation of the abadi site by the transferee of a house standing thereon, it must be presumed that such transferee had permission to occupy it on the same terms as the transferor. The sinking of a well on a premises in the abadi occupied by an agriculturist is not always inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was granted, especially where there is no indication of any injury to the interests of the landlord. (Drake-Brockman, J.C.) RAMDAYAL v. JAGRANI. 51 I.C. 304.

———Abadi—Rights of tenant—Permission of malguzar.

A tenant's right to a site for his house free of charge is subject to the permission of the malguzar as to the position and extent of the site, but failure by a resident malguzar to object to the occupation of a site by a tenant for even two or three years would be conclusive evidence that the permission had been given. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) MUSSAMMAT DEOKI v. MUKUNDA KUNBI. 43 I.C. 508.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Abadi.

———Abadi—Status of a tenant and his transferee occupying abadi site in Central Provinces.

A tenant, occupying an abadi site which in Central Provinces belongs wholly to the landlord, is a licensee, protected in occupation by the terms of the wajib-ul-arz; and any transferee, unless expressly or impliedly allowed by landlord, is liable to be ejected by the landlord as the right is not transferable. A transferee is presumed to occupy on the same terms as transferor subject to the wajib-ul-arz, if his occupancy is objected to by the landlord. If the transferee ceases to use it for a dwelling house then he becomes liable to be ejected at the will of the landlord losing the protection of wajib-ul-arz, if no prescriptive title is earned which however cannot be earned by bare possession for 12 yeare. (Stanyon, A.J.C.) NARAIN v. BEHARI. 31 I.C. 807=11 N.L.R. 126.

———Abadi—House of tenant — Termination of tenancy—Right of tenant to house.

Where a tenant is found occupying a house in the abadi of an agricultural village, there is a presumption that he holds the site as appurtenant to his tenancy. He has no right to retain it against the wishes of the landlord on ceasing to be a tenant in the village. (Lindsay, J.C. and Daniel, A.J.C.) RAM HARKH v. BHAIYA AMBIKA DATT RAM. 21 O.C. 257= 48 I.C. 420=6 O.L.J. 642.

———Abadi—Tenant ejected—Right of.

Where a tenant is ejected from the agricultural holding in a village, he has no right to occupy a house in the village abadi against the will of the Zamindar. (Lindsay, J. C.) GHARRAO v. KARAM SINGH. 47 I.C. 645= 5 O L.J. 453.

———Abadi—Sinking well—Injunction.

A tenant having a house on the abadi land sinks a well on that land as an appurtenance to his dwelling house. The land lord cannot sue him for possession of the site or for an injunction. (Lindsay, J. C.) MAHABAL KUMRI v. SARJU. 42 I.C. 51=4 O.L.J. 454.

Abandonment.

———Abandonment—Fixed rate—Tenancy—Simple mortgage—Dispossession by Zemindar—Rights of mortgagee.

A tenant made a mortgage of his fixed rate holding and died thereafter. Upon his death his nephew succeeded to the holding. The zamindar took forcible possession of the holding but the nephew took no steps to recover it from the zamindar. In a suit against the zemindar for recovery of the money, held that the inaction as to the recovery of the possession of the holding was equivalent to a surrender by the tenant but that surrender did not affect the rights of the mortgagee to enforce his mortgage. (Mears, C.J. and Banerji, J.) RAM KHELAWAN v. BRIJ LAL. 21 A.L.J. 296=L.R. 4 A. 169 (Rev.)= 1923 All. 295 (1).

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Abandonment.

———Abandonment—Ex parte decree against tenant's heir.

An ex parte decree obtained by a landlord against the heirs of the tenant is evidence to show that the tenancy was subsisting at that date and negatives a plea of abandonment of the tenancy. (Greaves and Panton, JJ.) ANUKUL CHANDRA DHAR v. KAMALA KANTA ROY. 1923 Cal. 270.

———Abandonment — What constitutes — Payment of rent—Offer of payment—Effect of.

Where there has all along been payment or offer of payment of rent by the tenant, the question of abandonment of the holding cannot arise. (Woodroffe and Ghose, JJ.) SARAT CHANDRA DE v. MONORAMA DEBI. 1923 Cal. 181.

———Abandonment — Occupancy holding—Usufructuary mortgagee—Right of mortgagee—Dispossession by landlord.

Where there is a transfer of an occupancy holding not by way of sale, the landlord, though he has not consented, is not ordinarily entitled to recover possession of the holding unless there has been an abandonment. Where therefore an occupancy tenant usufructuarily mortgages his holding and delivers possession to the mortgagee who was dispossessed by the landlord, in a suit by the mortgagee for possession against the landlord, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to possession in view of the finding that there was no abandonment of the holding by the tenant. (Greaves and Ghose, JJ.) AMBICA DEBI v. SWARNAMAYI DASI. 49 C. 989=1922 Cal. 135.

———Abandonment of tenancy—Plea of.

It is not open to a landlord, taking possession of the tenancy with a view to cultivate it, under an agreement with his tenant, to set up the plea that the land has been abandoned by the tenant. (Mookerjee, A.C.J. and Fletcher, J.) KHETRA NATH MONDAL v. LAKHAN SARDAR. 59 I C. 442.

———Abandonment—Transfer by raiyat—Sub-lease—Non-transferable occupancy.

Where a tenant having a non-transferable right of occupancy, sells such right to a third person, and having obtained a sub-lease from the purchaser remains in possession of the land and cultivates it, the landlord (in the absence of repudiation by the tenant of his relation to the landlord as such) is not entitled to recover possession, inasmuch as it does not amount to abandonment. 33 Cal. 531; 34 Cal. 689; and 24 C.L.J. 113, Ref. (Chaudhuri and Cuming, JJ.) SEPARAN v. RAMDEB RAI. 55 I.C. 360=24 C.W.N. 117.

———Abandonment—Evidence of non-payment of rent—Non-occupation—Effect of.

Where a raiyat goes away without giving notice from land which he has occupied and neither cultivated nor pays any rent, the landlord is justified in assuming that he has relinquished it and the raiyat has no right to ask to be re-installed on the ground that he never formally relinquished the land. Mere non-payment of rent is not evidence of abandonment, but non-payment of rent coupled with non-occupation of land shows an intention to abandon it. (N. R. Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) GOBER SHEIKH v. ALIPUDDIN SHEIKH. 31 I.C. 356=30 C.L.J. 13.

——Abandonment — Evidence— Non-payment of rent—Submergence of land.

A tenant's title to a holding is not necessarily lost by rent not being paid during the time the land is submerged. Whether from the non-payment of rent during submergence of the holding or from the conduct of the tenant, abandonment or surrender should be inferred is a question of intention. (Teunon and Cuming, JJ.) DINANATH CHANDA v. NAWAB ALI. 39 I.C. 984.

——Abandonment—Essentials.

There is no abandonment of an occupancy holding where a tenant executes a usufructuary mortgage of a portion of the holding and leaves the village temporarily and his heirs come back and resume possession of a portion of the land. (Chatterjee and Richardson, JJ.) RAJAB ALI v. PANDU MULLICK. 41 I C. 396.

——Abandonment—Waiver—Suit for rent without knowledge of abandonment.

Where a landlord, without knowing that a tenant has abandoned the lease, sues him for rent, he does not thereby waive the abandonment. (Chatterjee and Walmsley, JJ.) PRIYANATH MITTER v. ANANTH NATH DEY. 37 I.C. 942.

——Abandonment—Execution of usufructuary mortgage of his holding by the tenant—Whether abandonment.

The mere execution of a usufructuary mortgage by the tenant of his holding, is not sufficient to establish abandonment by him. Where a raiyat, who had executed a usufructuary mortgage of his holding but consented to pay rent, had left the land owing to ill-health, intending however to come back and the landlord had received rent after the notice of the raiyat's leaving the place, there has been no abandonment of the place. (Woodroffe and Walmsley, JJ.) GOUR CHANDRA DAS v. ASIMUDDI. 23 I C. 646.

——Abandonment—Intention.

Whether in any particular case, there has been an abandonment of holding by a tenant, is a question of intention to be determined upon the facts of each case. (Holmwood and Sharfuddin, JJ.) MAHADEO PERSHAD v. DURGA SAHNU. 23 I.C. 868.

——Abandonment — Ala malika—Failure to recover malikanam dues whether.

Mere waiver of his rights by an ala malik does not imply abandonment of the rights and an adnamalik's failure to pay dues does not establish adversity on his part. (Rossignol and Abdul Quadir, JJ.) LEKHURAM v. MT. RAMZAN. 1923 L. 32.

——Abandonment—Evidence—Inference.

The fact that the plaintiff's ancestors gave up the whole of their holding and quitted the village for good, showed that they abandoned all the rights they had in the village including rights in the Shamilat. On such abandonment their share passed to their co-sharers. (Shadi Lal and Martineau, JJ.) MIRZA v. KAHAN SINGH. 52 I.C. 839=96 P.R. 1919.

——Abandonment —Evidence—Land left in possession of persons not related to owner.

A person left his land in possession of a person not related to him, had no intention of resuming possession for over 20 years, and lived at another village seven or eight miles off and owned other lands. Held, it was too late to plead that there was no abandonment. (Kensington, J.) AMIR v. JIWAN. 38 P W.R. 1913= 19 I.C. 3=72 PL.R. 1913.

——"Abandonment"—and relinquishment —Meaning of.

(Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.).—"Abandonment" denotes a unilateral act which does not necessarily imply that the act has been or has to be brought to the notice of any other person whereas an act of "relinquishment" or "surrender" implies that the act is brought to the notice of the landlord. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) VENKATA RAMIAH APPA RAO v. LANKA LAKSHMINARAYANA. (1921) M.W.N. 616=15 L.W. 218= 42 M.L.J. 161=30 M.L.T. 186=48 M. 47= (1922) M. 281.

——Abandonment — Trespasser—Right to contest.

A person, if he is not an agent or a transferee of the interest of a tenant cannot set up the plea of non-abandonment of tenancy against the landlord. (Batten, A.J.C.) SAHASRAM v. SHEONATH. 31 I.C. 303=11 N.L.R. 124.

——Abandonment—Grove—Escheat.

Where the proprietors of a village sued for possession of a certain grove from the transferee from the original grove-holders on the ground that it had escheated to them even before the transfer, by reason of the abandonment of the groves by the holders and it appeared that the plaintiff had not tried to recover possession for a long time, held, that it could not be said that the grove-holders had absconded and the plaintiffs were therefore not entitled to sue for possession on the ground of escheat. (Piggott, J. C.) KUNJ BEHARI v. RAMESHWER. 20 I. C. 40.

——Abandonment—House land.

The abandonment by a tenant of his house in a village does not amount to an abandonment of the land on which the house stands. (Adami, J.) GOPAL JEE SINGH v. RAM NANDAN SINGH. 54 I.C. 644.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Abwab.

Abwab.

See also (1) B. T. ACT, S. 74.
(2) MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT, Ss. 3 (11), 143, 144.

——Abwab:— Repair of embankment—Long payment.

An annual sum levied by Government for the upkeep of the embankments is not an Abwab. Long continued payment from time immemorial is in itself a title in favour of the recipient to the payment. (Jenkins, C. J. and Holmwood, J.) UDOY NARAIN JANA v THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.
47 I.C. 297=22 C.W.N. 823.

——Abwab—Test of.

Where a Kabuliyat after stating that the annual rent was to be Rs. 3,351-4-0 recited that the lessee was to pay also Rs 15 as Mamuli, Held that the sum of Rs. 15 was not part of the consideration for the use and occupation of the land or part of the rent but was an Abwab and therefore not recoverable. Per Sanderson, C. J.—Each case must depend on the proper construction of the contract before the Court and if upon a fair interpretation of the contract, it can be seen that a particular sum is specified in the contract or agreed to be paid as the lawful consideration for the use and occupation of the land, i.e., if it is really part of the rent though not described as such, the landlord can recover it. Per N. R. Chatterjee, J.—Though more sums than one may constitute the rent, it is not every sum forming part of the consideration of the lease that is rent, and recoverable as such. In determining whether an item did or did not form part of rent, the fact that it has been stipulated to have been paid separately from the rent and also the fact that it is not included in the instalments of the rent have a material bearing on the question. 17 C. 726 at p 759, App. (Sanderson, C.J. and N. R. Chatterjee, J.) BEJOY SINGH v. KRISHNA BEHARI.
43 Cal. 259=41 I.C. 561=21 C.W.N. 959.

——Abwab—Uttarayan.

A voluntary payment like Uttarayan made by tenants at one pice per rupee of their rents for expenses in connection with basthu puja on the Uttarayan Sankaranthi Day, is an Abwab. (Mookerjee, A. C. J., Fletcher and Walmsley, JJ.) MAHARAJAH BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADUR v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA. 25 C.W.N. 81=32 C.L.J. 433.

Abwab means an arbitrary and indefinite imposition levied by the landlords on their tenants. An item which forms part of the consideration for which the lease is granted is not an abwab. (Jenkins, C. J. and D. Chatterjee, J.). KALI KUMAR ROY CHOWDHURI v. KAILASH NATH ROY CHOWDHURY. 27 I.C. 470.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Accretion.

——Abwab—Rent—Tahwari—Salami.

On a construction of the Kabuliat, in which there was a stipulation for paying 'tahwari' and 'salami' in a distinct form payable not in consideration of the lease but in accordance with the zamindari practice, these charges were held to be 'abwabs' and not recoverable. (Coxe and Chatterjee, JJ.) KALANAND SINGH v. SAIRA. 25 I.C. 540.

——Abwab—Batta—Long payment of—Inference.

It is open to a Court to infer, as a matter of fact, from the circumstance of long payment of batta that it was lawfully payable. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) KAMLESHWARI PERSHAD SINGH v. KANAISINGH.
17 C.W.N. 1159=20. I.C 171=19 C.L.J. 348.

——Abwab — Permanent tenure — Consideration for tenancy.

Sums described as "Salami Towji" and "Tehwari Drshera" though not described as rent were part of the rent and are not illegal. (Chitty and Teunon, JJ.) KALANAND SINGH v. EASTERN MORTGAGE AGENCY & CO., LTD.
19 I.C. 701=18 C.L.J. 83.

——Abwab.

Where sum is agreed to be paid in consideration of the land occupied by the defendant and also in view of the remission of the Selami which would otherwise have been payable, it cannot consequently be deemed in any sense an illegal cess. (Harrington and Mookerjee, JJ.) SARAT CHANDRA GHOSE v. SHAM CHANDRA SINGH ROY. 16 C.L.J. 71=14 I.C. 701=39 C. 653.

——Abwab—Test.

To find out whether a certain payment in a lease is an abwab, the test is to see if the particular item is the lawful consideration for the use and occupation of the land. If it is really part of the rent, it is not an abwab. 31 Cal. 834; 18 C.L.J. 83, followed. (Mullick and Atkinson, JJ.) SADANAND TEWARI v. DEBI NATH MANJHI. (1922) P. 184=1922 Pat. 154.

——Abwab—Sikka rupees—Batta claim.

The consent to pay rent in Sikka rupees was a valid contract, as a party is entitled to contract to pay rent in any form he pleases and the date of the contract to pay in Sikka rupees is immaterial. The question of batta being an abwab only arises when the contract to pay in rupees, without the mention of the description of rupees and the contract bears date subsequent to 1836 (Roe and Imam, JJ.) RAJADAKESHWAR PRASAD NARAYAN SINGH v. RAMA PRASAD SINGH. 4 P.L.W. 47=43 I.C. 753=1918 Pat. 218.

Accretions follow the estate where the taluq is separated from the Zamnidari, the legal position of the taluq is altered and the question of adverse possession to malikana does not arise. Acoretions to the taluq form part of the taluq and the Zamindar ceases to have any right to the malikana. (Richardson and Huda, JJ.) Appurtenance.

——— Appurtenance— Question of fact.

What is an appurtenance to a holding of an agricultural tenant must be decided according to the circumstances of each case. (Knox, J.) GAJADHAR v. BHIMAN. 42 I.C. 896.

———Appurtenances—Holding—Question of fact and law.

The question whether or not certain buildings are appurtenances to the holding of a particular tenant in the sense that the tenant cannot be ejected therefrom so long as his tenancy subsists is a mixed question of law and fact. ——— Building by tenant—Residential purposes—Hut.

A tenant, permanent or otherwise, of agricultural lands, may erect a building, on his holding in order that he may live there himself when he wants to be on the land for cultivation purposes. ———Building by tenant—Right to remove.

Where the plaintiff removed a lease of a suit house granted to her husband and having erected during the first lease a building with the knowledge of the lessor, tried to remove the same after expiry of the second lease. Held, that (Per White, C.J.):—The plaintiff could neither remove the building nor claim compensation for the same. The mere fact that an opportunity for removal after the completion of lease was given by the lessor does not affect his rights. (Per Sankaran Nair.):—That as the building was not erected during the second lease and as the plff. had already become owner of the house S. 108 (b) of the T. P. Cess.

See also TENANCY ACTS (LOCAL).

——— —Cess— Artisan cess abadi.

A cess levied by the zemindar on the weavers at the rate of one rupee per hand-loom is not really a cess. It is really ground rent charged from the various artisans in the village according to the number of hand-looms they have kept and is really a ground rent of the occupation of the site of the abadi. 1 A.L.J. 597, Foll. (Gokul Prasad, J.) ———Cesses—Custom—Payment to Zamindar by villagers—If ground rent or cess.

Payment made by occupiers of a village abadi under a local custom, to the Zamindar on the occasion of any marriage in their family, is ground rent for the use and occupation of the site in the abadi and not a cess. (Banerje, J.) SUGHRA BEGAM v. NAROTAM. 11 I.C. 217.

——— Cesses—Agreement to pay— Tenure-holder.

Where a landlord let out a tenure "at Rs. 90 per annum including the cesses" it is clear that as between him and the tenure-holder, the former agreed to pay the cesses. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) JOGENDRA NATH v. APARA PRASAD MUKHERJEE. 45 I.C. 615.

——— Cesses—Right to—Adverse possession by tenant.

Defendant's becoming owner of the sites occupied by him by adverse possession, in the areas of plaintiff's patti, does not lead to the inference that the defendants became jointly entitled with plaintiffs to the dues and cesses that are levied within that area. The presumption is that the right of collecting these dues ———Cesses—Liability to pay—Zemindar and Ijaradar.

The Government levied water cess for cultivation of land not allowed by Government to the Zemindar, and the Zemindar sued the holder of the village under ijara patta, for the same. Held, the defendant was not liable, not being bound under the contract, to recover the cess from the ryot. Where the ex-proprietors of a village included in a Taluka, got a settlement decree against the Talukdar for their right to receive 'dhara' dues in the village, the latter was liable under the decree to render the said dues to the former whether the dues were collected by him or not. ———Co-sharer Landlords—Supersession of one lease by another.

Where a usufructuary mortgagee executed a lease to the mortgagor and was succeeded by two persons, one having three fourths and the other one fourths of his mortgagee rights and later on the mortgagor executed a mortgage to one of them it was held that the second mortgage could not affect the original lease. ———Co-sharer — Sale of a share in an undivided Patti.

Where a patti is undivided and a co-sharer sells his share, he becomes an exproprietary tenant of the entire body of co-sharer and the buyer has not an exclusive right of collecting rent from him. (Griffin, J.) BHAGWANDIN v. DEBI PRASAD. 12 I.C. 630.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Co-sharer.

———Co-sharer landlords— Suit for rent by one.

———Co-sharer—Lease of undivided share in land--Rights of lessee.

Where the lessee of a piece of land had a valid lease only in respect of a six-annas undivided share in the land, the mere fact that the owners of the remaining 10 as. share did not object to the erection by the lessee of a hut on a small portion of the land could not preclude them from claiming joint khas possession of the land, although they would not be entitled to disturb the possession of the lessee so far as the hut was concerned. (Chatterjee and Newbould, JJ.) HEM CHANDRA ROY v. SASHI BHUSAN. 63 I.C. 863.

———Co-sharer—Demolition of structures.

Co-sharer landlords who are in possession of their shares only cannot have a decree directing demolition of structures on lands belonging to all co sharers, unless all of them join in asking for the same relief. (Newbould and Suhrawardi, JJ.) TABRIJ v. KEDAR NATH DUTTA. 62 I C. 778.

———Co-sharer landlords— Tenancy—Separation.

If a tenant allows himself to be treated separately by some co-landlords, there is a separation of tenancy; so also where a co-sharer landlord creates higher rights in a tenant, there is a separation as regards his share. (Beachcroft, J.) PRIANATH NAICK v. PROMATHA NATH ADHIKARI. 57 I.C. 895.

———Co-sharer landlords—Tenant—Injunction.

One of several co-sharer landlords, if he can make out a case, has a right, to obtain an injunction against a tenant especially where the rights of the landlords will be jeopardized. (Chaudhuri and Walmsley, JJ.) ISHWAR CHANDRA SAHA v. SHASHINATH DAR. 55 I.C. 951.

One of several joint landlords may sue to recover the balance of rent from a tenant or in the alternative to recover sums collected by other co-sharers in excess of their shares. ———Co-sharer tenants—Decree — Tenants unrecorded—If represented by recorded tenants —Symbolical possession, when affects persons not parties to suit or execution proceedings— Suit for possession by execution purchaser of holding—Limitation.

Where the tenants elected to be represented in their relations to the landlord by their brother, they must be deemed to be parties to the suit in the name of their brother and could not be heard to say that they were strangers to the suit and therefore as against them the symbolical possession got by auction purchaser gave start to a fresh period of limitation. As against strangers to the suit the delivery of symbolical possession does not affect their possession. Unrecognised purchasers of a portion of the holding are bound by the result of the rent suit and are not liable to be turned out by a separate suit brought within 12 years from date of the execution sale but within 12 years of delivery of possession. (D. Chatterjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) SADOULA MRIDHA v. JOYNABTNUSSA BIBI. 32 I.C. 703.

———Co-sharer tenants—When bound by decree against registered tenants.

Where some tenants allow themselves to be represented by their co-sharers in their dealings with their landlord, they will be bound by a rent decree obtained by the landlord against these co-sharers even though they were no parties to the suit. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Co-sharer.

———Co-sharer — Separate Kabuliyat— Effect.

The mere fact that a separate Kabuliyat is given by a tenant agreeing to pay rent separately to each co-sharer does not constitute a separate tenancy because it may be perfectly consistent with the continuance of the original lease of the entire lands. (Chatterjee, J.) IMAM-UD-DIN CHAUDHURI v. DANESH MAHAMMAD. 14 I.C. 738.

Where on a partition between lessor of a house and his sons, the house was not expressly allotted to the sons, the lessor is entitled to sue for the rent, though the lessor's sons recovered the debt on the mortgage in pursuance of which the lessor was in possession. (Kensington, J.) NARPAT RAI v. HARI RAM. 176 P.L.R. 1913 = 19 I.C. 638 = 180 P.W.R. 1913.

———Co-sharer — Lambardar — Suit for profits against—Mortgagee of a share in a plot.

A suit for a half-share of the profits against lambardar was brought by the plaintiff assignee of a possessory mortgage executed by the owners of a half-share in a village in respect of their share in an abadi plot in the village. Held: The suit as framed against an agent was not maintainable at the instance of the plaintiff alone and in respect of one plot. The principle enunciated in the English statute 4 Anne, C. 16, does not apply to malguzari villages. (Mittra, J. C.) BABU NARIDAS v. MST. GAHENABAI. (1922) Nag. 161.

———Co-sharer — Surrender by lessee from —Effect.

Where a lessee of a fractional co-sharer of his sir land surrenders the land to the lambardar who puts in another person as an occupancy tenant, held that on the extinction of the lessee's interest the land became the khudkasht of the co-sharer and that the lambardar was not entitled to grant a lease to any third person. A co-sharer holding unpartitioned land under a private arrangement cannot encumber it so as to bind the other co-sharers on partition. (Ross, J.) LAL DAS v. RAM NARAIN SUKUL. 68 I.C. 2.

——Co-sharer—Right to realise entire rent.

One co-sharer landlord can sue for the entire rent due to him and other co-sharers if the others do not join in the suit but he cannot maintain a suit for his share only, unless there is such an arrangement between himself, his co-sharers and tenants. Covenants.

See also T. P. ACT, SS. 10, 108 and 102.

——Covenant running with the land—Liability of transferee.

A covenant by the tenant not to transfer the land without the landlord's consent is a covenant which sufficiently attaches to and concerns the demised premises and consequently is a covenant running with the land and consequently a transferee or the lessee is bound by such covenant. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) SARADA KRIPA LALA v. BEPIN CHANDRA PAL. 37 C.L.J. 538=1923 Cal. 679.

——Covenants—Breach—Damages.

In case, where a tenant surrenders before expiry of lease the landlord is entitled to a suit for damages and not for rent. (Mr. Mookerjee and Buckland, JJ.) JOGENDRA KRISHNA ROY v. KURPAL HARSHI AND CO. 49 I.C. 345= 1923 C. 63.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Covenants.

——Covenant against alienation — Involuntary transfer—Effect.

To a case of involuntary transfer a condition in a lease restraining transfer is not applicable unless there are words in the covenant which clearly make it applicable to such transfer. (Newbould and Suhrawardy, JJ.) KUMAR MON-MATHA v. CHUNI LAL GHOSE. 1922 C. 96=26 C.W.N. 173.

——Covenant for possession—Limits of doctrine.

In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the lessor is deemed to contract with the lessee that if the latter pays the rent reserved by the lease and performs the contracts binding on him, he may hold the property during the time limited by the lease without interruption. This doctrine does not include a case of disturbance by persons having no lawful title or right of entry. Like the express covenant, the implied covenant protects the lessee against all disturbance by the lessor whether lawful or not, save under a right of re-entry, but as against other persons it protects the lessee only against lawful disturbance. (Mookerjee, Newbould and Pearson, JJ.) UDAI KUMAR DAS v. KATYAYANI DEBI. 35 C.L.J. 292=(1922) Cal. 87= 69 C. 948.

——Covenant for renewal—Assignee from tenant—Right to enforcement—Stipulation as to rent being increased—Vague and unenforceable.

An assignee of the interest of a lessee is entitled to take the benefit of a covenant for renewal contained in the lease. The renewed lease can be claimed on the same terms and for the same rent as the original lease except for the covenant to renew. Where the covenant for renewal provides that the lessor could enhance the rent without any limit and without any objection on the part of the lessee the covenent is too vague and therefore unenforceable. (Ghose, J.) NAVAKISHORE DAS v. MADAN MOHAN DAS GOSWAMI. 69 I.C. 600.

——Covenant for renewal—Terms of renewal—Implied condition.

Where there is a covenant for renewal, if the option does not state the terms of the renewal, the new lease would be for the same period and on the same terms as the original lease in respect of all the essential conditions thereof except as to the covenant for renewal itself. 20 C.W.N. 948 ; 16 C.L.J. 217, Rel. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) GURU PRASANNA BHATTACHARJEE v. MADHUSUDAN CHOWDHURY. 26 C.W.N. 901=64 I.C. 824=35 C.L.J. 87.

——Covenant—Agreement to let—Possession given—Right of parties.

Where B agrees to let land to A who takes possession and the agreement is one of which specific performance could be granted, A and B have the same rights as between themselves as if a lease had been executed provided the rights of third parties are not affected, (Mookerjee and Fletcher, JJ.) AMINULLA CHOWDHARY v. MAHABAT ALI. 60 I.C. 457= 25 C.W.N. 715.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Covenants.

———Covenant for renewal—Terms of.

If there is a stipulation for renewal, the tenant is entitled in the absence of other facts to a renewal on the original conditions contained in the lease. (Beachcroft, J.) EPASAN ALI v. RAM KUMAR DE. 38 I.C. 376.

———Covenant against alienation—Breach—Sub-lease.

Where the terms of lease give the lessor a right of re-entry in case of a breach of covenant against alienation in the lease, unless and until that right is exercised, a sub-lease granted in breach of the terms of the lease would operate as valid. (Newbould, J.) BROJABASSI RUDRA PAL v. SARAT CHANDRA 33 I.C. 555.

———Covenant for renewal—Omission to give proper notice of intention to renew—No provision in lease for notice—Effect of.

Where there is an unconditional covenant for renewal before the termination of the term, the lessee loses his right if he fails to give notice in time. But relief will be granted against failure to give notice in time under special circumstances. 27 All. 96, Ref. Where renewal of a lease is made conditional on the observance of certain covenants but not otherwise, such observance is a condition precedent to the right of renewal. The right of renewal is not enforceable if at the time of the renewal there is a subsisting breach of covenant. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) RAM LAL DUBEY v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA. 51 I.C. 690=29 C.L.J. 315.

———Covenant against alienation—Enforceability.

In the absence of a condition of forfeiture in a lease a covenant by the tenant not to transfer his interest cannot restrain the latter from transferring the same. (Fletcher and Smither, JJ.) ANNODA CHARAN NAYA v. DASARATH HALDAS. 40 I.C. 415.

———Covenant for renewal — Option or covenant to obtain new lease on expiry of Kabuliyat—Holding over—Term and rent of new settlement—Rights of tenant.

Where a covenant for renewal in a lease is uncertain both as regards the term to be granted and the future rent, the tenant holding over, after expiry of the Kabuliyat, is liable to be ejected, there being no contract which the tenant can enforce. No notice to quit is necessary and there is no presumption either that the new lease is to be for the term and rent mentioned in the old lease. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) AZIMUDDIN CHOUDHURI v. PEER MAHOMED BEPARI. 39 I.C. 137.

———Covenant against alienation—Involuntary transfer.

A covenant reserving the right of re-entry to the lessor on the deft., lessees, transferring their interest by sale gift or mortgagee is enforceable when the lessees mortgage their interest and allow the leased land to be put up for sale,

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Covenants.

but not when the assignment was in invitum and not due to a voluntary act of the lessees. (Sanderson, C J. and Mookerjee, J.) DWARAKANATH ROY v. MATHURA NATH ROY.
24 C.L.J. 40=34 I.C. 833=21 C.W.N. 117.

———Covenant for renewal—Renewal of leases—Construction.

Where there is a covenant for the renewal of a lease at prevailing rates, the renewal will be presumed to be for the same period and on the same terms as the original lease in all essentials, except as to the covenant for renewal. Absence of the settlement terms did not render it unenforceable. A landlord could not eject the tenant until there is an offer to pay at the current rate and a refusal by the tenant. (Newbould, J.) RASUL GAZI v. ABDUL KHAN. 33 I.C. 450.

———Covenant against alienation—Execution sale.

A purchaser at an execution sale of the right, title, and interest of tenants holding under a Nim Bowla tenure which is expressly made non-transferable to any one except the landlord and containing no covenant against involuntary alienation or for re-entry, acquires a good title by his purchase and the landlord cannot proceed against the original tenants or against the purchaser. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) PROMODE RANJAM GHOSH v. ASWINI KUMAR NAG. 26 I.C. 23=18 C.W.N. 1188.

———Covenant for renewal—License to carry fixtures.

A license in a lease giving the lessee the right to carry away fixtures on expiry of lease cannot operate as a covenant to renew the lease, if the fixtures are not removed. 13 C.L.J. 262. (Fletcher and Chatterjee, JJ.) BENGAL COAL CO., LTD. v. RAJENDRA LAL MITRA. 21 I.C. 920=18 C.W.N. 420.

———Covenant for pre-emption—If runs with land.

A stipulation in a lease that the lessee would sell the tenure to the lessor if he wanted to sell it, on payment by the latter of the proper price, is not a covenant running with the land. (Holmwood and Chapman, JJ.) CHANDRA KANTH v. ABDUL GAFOOR KHAN. 18 I C. 237.

———Covenant for renewal—Option—Who can exercise—Ejectment.

If the lease does not mention who is to exercise the option, it is exercisable by the lessee only. Such option is exercisable by the representative-in-interest of the lessee as well as by the lessee himself. In the absence of a contract to the contrary the renewed lease will be for the same period and on the same terms as the original lease in respect of all essential conditions except as to the covenant for renewal itself. Though there is no legal presumption against a right of perpetual renewal, the burden of strict proof is on the person claiming such a right which cannot be inferred from ambiguous expressions. The intention must be clearly expressed. Otherwise the agreement is satisfied with a single renewal. The position of the lessee who has always been ready and willing to accept a renewal on proper terms is as if a proper lease had been granted. Where the covenant is especially enforceable at the commencement of an ejectment suit, the position of the lessee is the same as if it had been specifically enforced. 17 I.C. 180=16 C.L.J. 217.

———Covenant against alienation—Simple mortgage.

A covenant by the lessee in a lease against alienation by gift or sale, does not cover the case of a simple mortgage, but if the simple mortgage by the lessee results in sale, then the act of the lessee would come under the prohibition. (Jenkins, C.J. and N. Chatterjee, J.) NARENDRA BHUSHAN ROY v. BANHU BEHARI GHOSE. 14 I.C. 293.

———Covenant for renewal—Tenant holding over.

A lease by a Mulgeni tenant contained the clause "If, while, without alienating the land in any manner, I am enjoying the said land through posterity, I find that I do not require the said land, I shall relinquish the land to you and obtain from you the value of the improvements which I have made thereon". Held, the clause did not work a forfeiture but was intended to secure for the tenant a right to relinquish his holding at his option and that the case in which the tenant alienated the land was in terms excluded from the conditions upon which he was allowed to relinquish it. ———Covenant for enjoyment — Breach—Liability to refund.

A lessor is bound to secure to lessee the possession of the land leased with reference to its intended use which was made known to him at the time when the lease was granted. If he is unable to secure possession to the lessee with reference to the use he wanted to make of it, he is liable to refund any money which he may have received from the lessee. ———Covenant for renewal—Exercise of option.

A suit brought six months after the expiry of the lease to eject a non-occupancy raiyat is barred by limitation. There is a limit to the exercise of an option to renew and a tenant's failure to come to terms within 3 years of the expiry of the old lease amounts to a failure to avail himself of the option. ———Ejectment—Exproprietary tenant out of possession—Absence of proof that vendee occupied as sub-tenant—Effect of.

A person, who has exproprietary rights but who is not in possession, cannot arrest them 12 years after the sale, and cannot eject the vendee in possession unless he proves that the person in possession occupied it as his sub-tenant. (Baillie, S.M.) NAGESHER v. RAM THAL. 26 I.C. 722 = 1 O.L.J. 692.

———Ejectment—Notice—Heir of tenant—Occupation by—Landlord's conduct—Acquiescence—Effect of.

Where the heirs of a deceased tenant continued to hold for three years after the right to hold had ceased and the landlord's conduct shows acquiescence but the landlord eventually issued a unstamped notice of ejectment, held, that the landlord's conduct amounted to acquiescence and that the unstamped notice was insufficient. (Baillie, S.M.) UDIT NARAYAN SINGH v. GUR CHARAN.

26 I C. 719=1 O.L.J. 717.

———Ejectment—Notice of—Tenant contesting notice of ejectment—Prima facie case—Proof of.

A tenant contesting a notice of ejectment has simply to make out a prima facie case before the Revenue Court, that he has an under-proprietary right in the holding. (Baillie, S.M. and Tweedy, J.M.) RAGUNATH KUAR v. COURT OF WARDS. 26 I.C. 683=1 O.L.J. 587.

———Ejectment—Notice—Tenant holding at favourable rate.

A tenant holding at a favourable rate of rent cannot be ejected by notice. (Tweedy, J.M.) COURT OF WARDS, ESANAGAR ESTATE v. GAURI SHANKAR. 26 I.C. 624=1 O.L.J. 697.

———Ejectment—Right to — Thekadar—Powers of.

A notice of ejectment signed by the landlord alone without the signature of the Thekedar is insufficient where the power of ejecting is not absolutely reserved and provision is made for the consent of the landlord in issuing notice of ejetment by the Thekadar. (Baillie, S M.) BHAGWATI PRASAD SINGH v. SURAJ BALI.
26 I.C. 263=1 O.L.J. 579.

———Ejectment—Co-sharer tenant—Notice.

Notice of ejectment must go to all co-sharers in a tenancy who are tenants in-chief and not merely to the person who is recorded in the Patwari papers so that all of them may appear in a suit to contest the notice and questions may be properly decided. (Baillie, S.M.) ABBAS BANDI BIBI v SARJU PANDE.
26 I C. 95=1 O L J. 531.

———Ejectment — Shikmi tenant — Civil Court's finding.

A person entered in the patwari papers as shikmi tenant but having a Civil Court decree declaring him to be the proprietor of the holding, and entitled to redeem it, cannot be ejected so long as the decree holds good. (Baillie, S.M. and Tweedy, J.M.) SANVAL SINGH v. PRAG DAT. 26 I.C. 86=1 O.L.J. 517.

———Ejectment— Raiyat holding — Claim of—Onus.

Where in a suit for possession of lands by a landlord the defendant sets up that they are his raiyati holdings if the plaintiff establishes his title which prima facie entitles him to possession, itis on the defendant to identify the land which he claims as his raiyati land. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) BHAIYAN SUNDARABAS KUERI v. DILWAR SAHU. 1 P.L.T. 30=52 I.C. 701=1920 Pat. 39.

———Ejectment—Proof of tenancy.

A plff. in a suit for ejectment on the ground of determination of tenancy must prove the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant. (Mullick and Thornhill, JJ.) KUBER NATH SINGH v. GOPAL NARAIN RAM. 46 I.C. 238.

———Ejectment — Right to — Landlord's right to enter—Assignee from tenant.

A deft. claiming that he is the assignee from the tenant and is not bound to quit, must show his right to oppose the landlord's entry in a suit for ejectment by the landlord; and the Court must give a definite finding as to whether the deft. has such a right, in spite of the plff.'s failure to prove a special case set up by him. (Chapman, J.) KARU SINGH v. BIBI NASIBAN.
37 I.C. 357.

———Ejectment—Part of holding—Plaintiff, not entitled to immediate possession—No right to sue.

An ejectment suit must be for the whole and not for a part of a holding. An action for ejectment is based on the right to immediate possession, so that a reversioner cannot sue for ejectment. 11 C.W.N. 828, Diss. (Atkinson, J.) BHAGLOO SHAH v. MAHADEO CHAUDHURI. 36 I.C. 283.

———Ejectment — Co-sharer landlords—Execution of lease to one of co-sharer landlords—Lessor's right to recover rent or sue in ejectment.

Sticking cowdung, erecting a kàcha hut, on Banjar and such other acts by a tenant, do not constitute adverse possession. (Knox, J.) GAJADHAR v. BHIMAN. 42 I.C. 896.

———Encroachment—Benefit of landlord.

An encroachment made by a tenant upon the contiguous land of another enures for the benefit of the landlord from the time the tenant takes possession, and not from the time when the tenant executes a kabuliyat in respect of that land in favour of his landlord. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) RAKHAL CHANDRA GHOSE v. MOHENDRA NARAIN SEN. 51 I C. 797.

Where a suit is brought to recover possession of a plot of land from a tenant on the ground that the land was not included in the holding but was encroached upon by the tenant the onus is upon the plaintiff to prove that the land sued for is outside the land demised to the tenant. 12 C.L.R. 457, Foll; 19 C.L.J. 408. Dist. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) NARENDRANATH SANYAL v. SHEIKH EMAMAN.
51 I.C. 785.

LANDLORD AND TENANT — Encroachment.

———Encroachment—Suit for possession of land contiguous to holding—Burden of proof.

Where a landlord brings a suit for possession of land which is contiguous to the holding the burden of proof is upon the plff. to show that the land was not within the tenant's holding. (Chatterjea and Richardson, JJ.) SHYAMA CHARAN v. MASTAFIZAR RAHMAN.
41 I.C. 769.

———Encroachment—Neighbouring land of landlord—Permanent tenant.

Where a permanent tenant was treated as a tenant of the land encroached by him the new tenancy is of the same nature as the old one. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) SARADA KRIPA LAHA v. AKHIL BANDHU BISWAS.

———Encroachment—Presumption.

The doctrine which entitles the landlord to say that there is presumption that all encroachment is for his benefit has no application whether the encroachment is not claimed as annexed to the holding. (Jenkins, C.J., Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MAHARAJA BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADUR v. RAMCAHRAN DAS. 30 I.C. 942 = 22 C.L.J. 147.

Where there is an encroachment on the adjoining land by the deft. the adjoining land becomes the subject of the original tenancy and a suit framed for recovery of possession or in the alternative for assessment of fair rent is not maintainable as being one inappropriate for the purpose of raising and procuring a decision of the question whether or not there should be an enhancement in respect of the particular holding encroached upon. (Jenkins, C.J., Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) KADIR BUX v. MAHARAJA BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADUR.
30 I.C. 914 = 22 C.L.J. 119.

———Encroachment—Waste land belonging to landlord—Intention of parties—Adverse possession.

Encroachments made from the waste, by a tenant, whether the land taken belongs to the landlord or to a stranger are presumed to have been made for the benefit of his landlord unless it is clearly apparent from some act done at the time that the tenant intended to make the encroachment for his own benefit and not to hold it as he held the farm to which the encroachments were adjacent. As a general rule, the intention of the tenant to make an encroachment for his own benefit must be shown at the time when the encroachment was made, but a subsequent severance of the encroachment from the demised premises may have the same effect if brought to the knowledge of the landlord, although if the landlord is allowed to remain under the belief that the encroachment was held as part of the holding, the tenant might be precluded from denying it. 10 Cal. 823, Rel. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MAHARAJAH BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADUR v. LAKSHMI.

30 I.C. 896 = 22 C.L.J. 129.

——Encroachment—Right of landlord

Where a tenant of a certain person encroaches on the adjoining land of another as between the landlord and the tenant, there is a presumption that encroachment enures to the landlord's benefit and becomes an accretion to the tenant's holding. He will ordinarily hold the land upon which he has encroached as tenant of his landlord and in that case the landlord may perhaps be described as his de facto landlord. (Richardson and Mullick, JJ.) TEPU v. TEFAYIT.
29 I.C. 216 = 19 C.W.N. 772.

——Encroachment——Tenant's possession of accretion to his original holding—Denial of landlord's right to separate rent of such accretion—Limitation.

Where a tenant comes into possession of land other than his holding and he denies his landlord's right to separate rent for such land, limitation for a suit by the landlord for possession of such land is 12 years from the date of such denial. (Woodroffe and Carnduff, JJ.) TARAN CHANDRA v. GANENDRA NATH.

——Encroachment — Presumption — Adverse possession.

The true presumption as to encroachments made by a tenant, during his tenancy upon the adjoining land is that the land so encroached is added to this tenure and forms part thereof for the tenant's benefit and after the expiry of the lease, for the benefit of the landlord. In this case, the trespasser is not bound to prove that the landlord had knowledge of the trespass. (Benson and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.) MUTHURAKU THEVAN v. ROHERT GORDEN OBR. 35 Mad. 618 = 21 M.L.J. 615 = 10 I.C. 875 = 10 M.L.T. 12.

Where a tenant encroaches upon land of his landlord not included in his holding, the latter is not bound to recognise the former as tenant of such land and may re-enter on the land unless he has lost his right. If the tenant has been in possession of the encroached portion for more than 12 years, it is a question if possession is adverse as against the landlord and whether interest claimed is limited or absolute. (Mullick and Atkinson, JJ.) MIDNAPUR ZEMINDARY Co. v. PANDEY SARDAR.

———Encroachment—Possession of tenant of land adjacent to holding—Presumption.

When it is found that a tenant is in possession of land adjacent to the holding, paying rent for the whole area and cultivating without objection of landlord, the presumption is that Escheat.

———Escheat—Tenant's right inalienable—Death of tenant issueless—Tenancy if escheats to crown or lapses to landlord.

An inalienable right of a tenant, such as a right to occupy a house, does not, on the tenant's death leaving no issue, escheat to the Crown but lapses to the Zemindar; it is only an absolute and alienable right that escheats to the Crown in the event of the person owning the right dying issueless. (Rafique, J.) NATHU RAM v. LAXMI NARAIN. 22 I.C. 891.

———Escheat—Abandonment.

The removal from one to another house, is no sufficient evidence of abandonment entitling the landlord to claim a right by escheat. (Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.) GAURI SHANKAR v. ABBAS BEG. 46 I.C. 12=5 O.L.J. 165.

———Escheat — Iqrar Malikan—Mafrur—Application.

If under an Iqrar-Malikan, a house occupied by a tenant escheats to the Zemindar in case the former becomes Mafrur, the expression Mafrur, as used in Iqrar Malikan does not apply to a person who is entitled as a heir to occupy the house of a deceased tenant but never actually occupied it. (Lindsay, J. C.) SHEO NATH v. SAMPAT. 35 I.C. 848 (1)=3 O.L.J. 274.

———Escheat—Zemindar entitled to tenant's rights by escheat—If legal representative of latter.

——Escheat—Right of—Residence, change in, effect of.

A landlord claimed possession of a grove on the ground that the grove holder has changed his residence and relied on a wazib ul-arz which provided that if a tenant became mafrur or farar ho jana the grove escheats to the landlord. It was held that the provisions of the wazib-ul-arz were loosely used and that a person who has changed the residence permanently and has given up his right over the grove is a mafrur or 'farar ho jana'. Exproprietary Tenancy.

———Exproprietary tenancy—Appurtenance—Meaning of.

An appurtenance is something which belongs to another thing as principal and passing as an incident to it; it is an appendage, an adjunct, an accessory or something annexed to another thing more worthy. A house in the occupation of a tenant before he became an exproprietary tenant or acquired an occupancy tenancy, is not an appurtenance to the holding and could be mortgaged by him. (Tudball, J.) BUDHI MAL v. BHATI 30 I.C. 549=13 A.L.J. 846.

———Exproprietary tenancy — Relinquishment of—Effect of.

Where exproprietary rights are relinquished the effect is the same as if the rights had never come into existence at all. The person in whose favour the relinquishment is made cannot subsequently claim those rights. (Chamier, J.) DHANI SAHU v. RAJMAHAL KUNWARI. 30 I.C. 893=13 A.L.J. 651.

An exproprietary tenant interfering with the possession of the landlord after ejectment is a trespasser. The interest of the mortgagee of the exproprietary right ceases from the date of ejectment of the tenant. (Piggott, J.) RAM RACHA DUBE v. GOKUL RAI. 26 I.C. 201.

———Exproprietary tenancy—Right to use tank for irrigation.

Merely being an exproprietary tenant of a certain field does not create a right to irrigate the field with the water of a tank with which the tenant used to irrigate the field as proprietor. (Bannerjee, J.) BAHADUR v. KHUSPI RAM. 22 I C. 879=11 A L.J. 990.

———Exproprietary tenancy—Adverse possession for twelve years.

Adverse possession for 12 years, is sufficient to confer on a person the status of the exproprietary tenant since a right short of full proprietorship can be obtained by adverse possession. (Piggott, J.) ULAFAT RAI v. BALDEO. 22 I.C. 269=12 A.L.J. 93.

A Zemindar can claim rent against an exproprietary tenant at the rate fixed by the Rev. Courts not merely from the date on which the rent is so fixed but from the date on which the ex-proprietary tenancy arises. (Rafique, A.J.C.) BHAN PARTAB v. SHEO DUT BAHADUR SINGH. 15 I.C. 189=15 O.C. 45.

———Exproprietary tenancy — Sale of—When valid.

A deed of relinquishment of exproprietary rights executed on the same date as the deed of sale of proprietary rights is entirely void and inoperative. The vendor retaining possession of the land can claim exproprietary rights in respect of it in spite of the relinquishment. (Baillie, S.M. and Tweedy, J.M.) MUHAMMAD ASHRAF v. GAYA PRASAD. 27 I C. 835= 2 O.L.J. 42.

Forfeiture.

———Forfeiture—Denial of title—Refusal to perform ceremonial service — Effect of—Resumption—Overt act—Right of landlord—Transfer of Property Act, Ss. 2 and 111 (g)—Principle of justice, equity, etc.

Forfeiture of tenancy on denial of the landlord's title is governed by S. 111 (g) of the T.P. Act which itself reproduces the English law on the subject. Consequently the principle of S. 111 (g) of the T.P. Act might be applied as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience to leases granted before the T.P. Act. The denial of title which operates as a forfeiture must now be in clear and unmistakable terms. 28 C. 135, Ref. Admission of tenancy coupled with an unfounded assertion of more favourable terms does not forfeit the tenure, 15 Bom. 407; 20 Bom. 354; 17 Mad. 218; 27 Mad. 28, Cons. There must be an overt act showing the landlord's intention to avail himself of the forfeiture before the institution of the suit. Semble.—The breach of ceremonial observance prescribed in a lease, e.g. attendance by the lessee with a retinue at the Court of the lessor, is not a cause of forfeiture or resumption, at any rate where the grantor is a subject and not the Govt. ———Forfeiture—Relief against—Non-payment of rent—Period of grace—Relief.

The Court will ordinarily relieve a tenant against a forfeiture clause in a lease, unless the tenant has done something to forfeit his right to bring himself within the principles of equity. The mere fact that a period of grace is provided and rent has not been paid within that period is no bar to relief against forfeiture. (Macleod, C.J. and Fawcett, J.) KRISHNAJI v. SITARAM. 22 Bom. L.R. 1439=59 I C. 769= 45 Bom. 300.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Forfeiture.

———Forfeiture—Non-payment of rent — Effect of—Overt act.

Non-payment of rent at a stipulated rate month after month is a continuing breach and therefore the landlord's waiver to forfeit one such breach for any particular month or months does not destory his right to forfeit on similar breaches in a subsequent month. The mere presentation of plaint in a suit for ejectment is a conclusive declaration of intention to determine lease. (Setalvad, J.) KASTUR BHAI MANIBHAI v. HIRALAL DAHYA BHAI. 22 Bom. L.R. 926=58 I.C. 69=45 Bom. 535.

———Forfeiture—Waiver—Receipt of rent.

The contention that receipt of rent subsequent to the service of notice to quit operated as waiver is fallacious. Subsequent receipt of rent due prior to forfeiture is not waiver. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) PURNA CHANDRA DAS v. ALI MAHOMED. 37 C.L.J. 548=1923 Cal. 520.

———Forfeiture—Waiver — Acceptance of rent.

Where subsequent to an alleged forfeiture by reason of the transfer of an occupancy holding the landlord sues the original tenant and obtains a decree for rent it amounts to a waiver of the forfeiture and the landlord cannot sue to eject the tenant on that ground. (Mookerjee, A.C.J. and Fletcher, J.) RASH BEHARI CHOUDHURI v. UPENDRANATH SAHA. 64 I.C. 711.

———Forfeiture—Denial of landlord's title.

Where the defendants chose to fight the case in both the lower Courts on the footing that the plaintiff had no title whatever, they cannot urge in second appeal that by their denial of the plaintiff's title in the rent suit they did not incur forfeiture of property. (Walmsley, J.) SARBESWAR BEZ MADAK v. GAGANCHANDRA MANNA. 64 I C. 631.

———Forfeiture—Transfer of a part of holding—Holding if forfeited.

Where a tenant has transferred a part of his holding, the holdings are not to be forfeited. (Petheram, C.J. and Macpherson, J.) DURGACHARAN v. PANDALE. 33 C L.J. 518.

———Forfeiture—Attornment to stranger—Possession of stranger adverse.

The landlord can evict a tenant if during the subsistence of a tenancy the tenant attorns to a third person but the landlord must indicate his intention to put an end to the tenancy the mere act of attornment to a third person does not transfer possession from a landlord to the third person. (Newbould, J.) HARI KANTA DAS BARMAN v. BIBI NURANNESSA. 53 I.C. 628.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Forfeiture.

———Forfeiture—Covenant against alienation—Breach—No provision for re-entry—Permanent lease.

A condition in a permanent lease restraining alienation is not void by itself, but the lessor cannot eject the transferee from the lessee, unless the lessor either reserves to himself the right of re-entry or if it is provided in the lease that it would be void if there is a breach of the covenant against alienation. 12 C.L.J. 126 and 17 Cal. 826, Rel. ———Forfeiture—Waiver — Acceptance of rent—Protest.

Acceptance of rent under protest also would operate in favour of the payer as a waiver of any forfeiture incurred. 9. Cal. 843, Rel. ———Forfeiture — Conditions in default fulfilled—Purchaser under an invalid certificated sale—Lessee's rights.

The rights of a lessee (or his assigns) who after having forfeited his rights on account of failure to comply with certain conditions as to clearing in pursuance of a Kabuliyat executed by him in favour of Government but who satisfied another provision prescribed therein as following in default, prevails over the rights of a purchaser in a certificated sale, rendered invalid for lack of observance of statutory requirement. ———Forfeiture—Denial of title.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Forfeiture.

———Forfeiture—Denial of title—Registered tenant—Ejectment against other tenants.

When one of several tenants, whose name alone was registered in the books of the landlord repudiated the tenancy, he acts beyond the scope of his authority; therefore his disclaimer could not operate as a forfeiture of the tenancy in so far as the other tenants were concerned. There could not be forfeiture of a tenancy in part, and the claim for possession is not maintainable. (Harrington and Mookerjee, JJ.) BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADUR v. BHUBANESWARI. 15 I.C. 620=39 Cal. 903.

———Forfeiture—Title—Denial of—Interpretation.

Where a tenant, in the memorandum of appeal in a Land Acquisition case described himself as the owner of the portion acquired and the question was whether that amounted to a disclaimer of landlord's title: Held, it did not amount to "a distinct unequivocal renunciation of the tenancy" which is essential to constitute a disclaimer such as the law contemplates. The Court has to bear in mind not only the nature of the document in which the expressions occur, but also to the nature of proceeding in regard to which the document was drafted. In considering whether what has taken place amounts in law to a denial of the landlord's title, the Court must have regard not only to the language used and the circumstances under which it came to be used, but must also consider what the tenant intended by using the particular words under the particular circumstances, (Shadi Lal, C.J. and Fforde, J.) ZIA-UD-DIN v. FAKHR-UD-DIN AHMAD KHAN. 4 Lah. 160=1923 Lah. 484.

———Forfeiture—Denial of title—Overt act—Necessity for.

It is a well established rule of law that the denial of landlord's title in clear and unmistakable terms, whether by matters of record or by certain matters or pais will operate to create a forfeiture of tenancy and enable the landlord to resume possession. This principle which has been embodied in S. 111 (b) of the T.P. Act and though the section itself does not apply to the Punjab the principle therein enacted does. Denial in a suit will not work a forfeiture of which advantage can be taken in that suit, because the forfeiture must have occurred before the suit was instituted. The denial therefore must not only be of a clear unambiguous nature but must be antecedent to the suit for possession. The suit must be founded upon the denial, and the denial cannot be expected from the pleading in the suit itself, even if such denial by inference could be held to be one made in clear unmistakable terms. (Bevan Petman, J.) KHEM SINGH v. ALI SHER. 54 I.C. 263=8 P.W.R. 1920.

The occupancy tenant of the Punjab is more than a mere permanent tenant; he is an individual who in many cases would have been the landlord, and he enjoys a permanent tenancy subject to certain conditions, at a concession rent. The English rule of forfeiture on denial of the landlord's title is inapplicable to the case of an occupancy tenant though applicable to a permanent lessee. (Le Rossignol, J.) FAKIR WAZIR KHAN. 45 I.C. 105= 32 P.R. 1918.

——Forfeiture—Waiver—Suit for possession by landlord — Limitation Act, Sch. I, Art. 143.

A landlord can condone the forfeiture of his tenant's right caused by the latter's denial of his proprietary title and afterwards to bring a suit for possession within 12 years from the time when a separate and entirely distinct act occasioning forfeiture occurred. (Leslie Jones, J.) LOCHA RAM v. JINDWADDA KHAN. 56 P.W.R. 1916=36 I.C. 235= 141 P.L.R. 1916.

——Forfeiture— Denial of title—Permanent tenancy.

In deciding a question of forfeiture by denial of title, a distinction should be made between a lease and permanent tenancy. In the former case denial of title involves a forfeiture and in the latter does not, as a permanent tenancy is in the nature of an inferior ownership. (Barton, J.) ABDUL MANAN v. SHAHBAZ. 169 P.L.R. 1915.

——Forfeiture—Denial of title by tenant —Ejectment—If notice necessary.

No notice determining a tenancy, even if one is required by the lease, is necessary for maintaining a suit in ejectment when the tenant has denied the landlord's title and the validity of the lease before the institutions of the suit. 17 A. 45, Foll. (Reid, C.J.) ZIAUDDIN v. GOBIND RAM. 76 P.R. 1911=13 I.C. 323= 289 P.W.R. 1911.

——Forfeiture—Setting up a permanent tenancy.

The mere assertion of a permanent tenancy of occupancy right by the tenants does not work a forfeiture of the tenants' right to a due notice to quit. (Spencer and Devadoss, JJ.) MULLAI THAYAMMAL v. SUBBARAYYAN PILLAI. 16 L.W. 802=(1922) M.W.N. 763= 31 M. L.T. 430=1922 Mad. 514.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Forfeiture.

——Forfeiture—Relief, when to be granted.

Where a tenant incurs forfeiture for non-payment of rent, he can be relieved only on paying the full arrears including arrears barred by limitation; the landlord can also claim interest on the arrears. (Abdul Rahim and Oldfield, JJ.) ADYAPADI VASUDEVA UDPA v. KRISHNA UDPA. 44 Mad. 629= 40 M.L.J. 460=13 L.W. 420= 29 M.L.T. 235=62 I.C. 593= (1921) M.W.N. 246.

——Forfeiture—Mulgeni lease—Breach of conditions.

Where a mulgeni lease was granted under the express stipulation that no alienation shall be made by the lessee and the latter subsequently made a gift of a part of the property in favour of one of her sons. Held, where a condition restraining alienation has been infringed, there can be no relief against forfeiture. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Moore, JJ.) VITTAPPA KUDVA v. DURGAMMA. 11 L.W. 116=38 M.L.J. 190= 55 I.C. 781=(1920) M.W.N. 188.

——Forfeiture—Covenant against alienation—Breach—Knowledge- Waiver.

Prima facie alienation of any portion of a holding will offend against the rule of inalienability unless it can be shown that under the custom which imposes the rule of inalienability, the rule does not apply to partial alienations. A partial alienation will be sufficient to work a forfeiture. Ignorance on the part of the alienee as to the inalienability and forfeitability of such a tenure cannot raise any estoppel against the landlord, if he was in no way responsible for such ignorance. Nor can the fact that the landlord did not exercise his right of enforcing forfeiture in the case of previous alienations lead to an inference of waiver. (Ayling and Krishnan, JJ.) ZAMORIN OF CALICUT v. UNIKAT KARNAVAN SAMU NAIR. 36 M.L.J. 275=55 I.C. 380= 27 M.L.T. 111.

——Forfeiture—Denial of title—What is—Determination of lease—Ejectment suit.

In order to entail a forfeiture, the disclaimer of the landlord's title by the tenant must amount to a direct repudiation of the relationship of landlord and tenant and nothing short of a complete identification with an adverse claimant to the landlord will do. In cases not governed by the T. P. Act the institution of a suit in ejectment is a sufficient determination of the lease where the lessee has forfeited the lease by denial of the landlord's title. (Abdur Rahim and Oldfield, JJ.) RAMA IYENGAR v. ANGA GURUSAWMI. 35 M.L.J. 139=16 I.C. 62=8 L.W. 109.

Since the terms of a lease which has terminated regulate the relations between the parties to the lease when the tenancy becomes one sufference, a condition of forfeiture inserted in such a lease for non-payment of rent holds good after expiry of the lease under the circumstances. ———Forfeiture—Overt act.

In leases executed before the T. P. Act, no act is necessary on the part of the landlord showing that he elects to take advantage of the forfeiture for non-payment of rent. (34 M. 161, Foll.; 31 M. 403, Dist.) Whether a tenant is entitled to relief against forfeiture for non-payment of rent depends upon the circumstances of each case. A stipulation that the tenant failing to pay rent, shall lose the value of his improvements ought to be relieved against. 6 M. 159; 6 M.H.C.R., 258. Fol. 15 M.L.J. 210, 21 M.L.J, 960, Dist. ———Forfeiture—Overt act—Suit.

To entitle a landlord to sue in ejectment he need not show that he chooses to take advantage of forfeiture in the case of leases prior to T.P. Act. If the lessee has agreed to give back the property without demanding compensation for improvements, no period of grace being fixed for payment, he should be relieved against forfeiture and need not be debarred from getting it because he sets up a plea of payment but fails to prove it. (White, C.J. and Sankaran Nair, J.) RAMKRISHNA v. BABRIRAJA. 23 M L.J. 715 = 17 I.C. 947 = 12 M.L.T. 656.

———Forfeiture—Relief against—Non-payment of rent—Period of grace—Overt act.

Plaintiff and deft. had two separate interests in the land, plff. claiming the Kudivaram right under a Patta from the Zemindar and the deft. having a right of permanent occupancy, held, the latter would not forfeit his right by denying the plff.'s title. The owner of a subordinate interest will not lose it by denying the title of the owner of the superior interest. Only a person, who has been let in occupation of land by another on a lease, forfeits his rights under the lease by repudiating the landlord's title. ———Forfeiture — Re-entry — Forcible re-entry not justifiable.

A lessor cannot justify a re-entry by force under cover of a clause in the lease reserving to him a right of re-entry with or without resort to the Courts, in case of a breach of all or any of the conditions mentioned in the lease inasmuch as a condition justifying an entry by force is void as being contrary to the public policy. A license by a tenant to a landlord to ejectment without process of law is void and can be no answer to a charge of forcible entry. (Stuart, A.J.C.) HABIBULLAH SHAH v. SUJI.
15 I.C. 857=15 O.C. 295.

———Forfeiture—Licensor and licensee—Transfer of holding—Sale or mortgage.

According to the general principles of law applicable to leases, the forfeiture of a lease is not involved in the case of the breach of any condition for which forfeiture is not prescribed as the proper penalty under the terms of the lease or agreement under which the lessee holds. There is no reason why a similar principle should not apply to the case of a licensor and licensee generally. There is an essential distinction between a transfer by way of lease or mortgage and a transfer by way of sale in which case, different considerations would apply. (Piggott, J.C. and Rafique, A.J.C.) ALI MUHAMMAD KHAN v. CHHEDAN.

———Forfeiture—Covenant against alienation—Mortgage and sale—Breach.

Where there is no express penalty of forfeiture, a mortgage by the lessee or licensee does not give a cause of action for ejectment but a sale does, as it involves an entire abandonment of the transferor's rights in favour of another person. 15 I. The question as to when a grove ceases to retain its character as such is more or less one of inference to be drawn from the surrounding circumstances. The fact that the landholder took no objection to the grove-holder's planting new trees when the grove began to lose its character as such must be taken into account. The mere fact that a portion of the grove has become devoid of trees does not entitle the landholder to resume that portion of it, since the land had been granted as a whole and the tenure must therefore, stand or fall in its entirety. ——Holding over—Acceptance of rent by one of the co-sharer landlords.

A tenant holds over if there is acceptance of rent (on the expiry of lease) by all the co-sharer landlords or if they otherwise assent to the continuance of a tenancy. If one of the co-sharer landlords alone accepts rent a new tenancy is created only with respect to his share but not with respect to the shares of other co-sharer landlords. (*N. R. ———Ijaradar—Lease of the entire mauza including the man lands—Claim of tenancy in man lands, whether tenable—Notice to quit—Necessity of.

The defendant got Ijara of a mauza including the man lands from 1291 to 1296 and having also remained in possession from 1297 to 1305 F., he got another Ijara from 1306 to 1313 and a fresh Ijara from 1314 to 1323. The plaintiff was lessee of the entire mauza. He brought a suit in ejectment against the defendant. The latter did not give up his possession over the man lands in which he set up a tenancy and claimed a notice to quit before ejectment ; Held, (1) that the defendant could not claim any sort of tenancy in the man lands and on the expiry of his Ijara he was not entitled to retain possession of them, he having neither an occupancy nor non-occupancy rights therein ; and (2) that no notice was required before the suit for ejectment was brought. The man lands were held as remuneration for the collection of rents when the period of the Ijara expired and so the Ijaradar was bound to deliver up possession of the subjects of the Ijara not only the lands held by the tenants but also the man lands. (Coutts and Macpherson, JJ.) CHIGGU CHAUDHRI v. SRIMATYA CHAND MONI DEBYA. 2 P.L.T. 777 = 64 I.C. 698.

An ijaradar can induct a tenant on to the land which is the subject of his ijara apart from any stipulations in the document of title preventing him from so doing. In the absence of such stipulations and when the persons inducted are settled raiyats of the village in which the land is situated, they acquire an occupancy right in the lands. (Miller, C.J. and Foster, J.) SHEO BALAK SINGH v. RADHEY SINGH. 52 I.C 501.

Improvements.

———Improvements—Compensation for.

A tenant is ordinarily not entitled to compensation for improvement or structure on land. He should take it away at the expiry of the term or it becomes landlord's property. (Macleod, C.J. and Heaton, J.) RAMACHANDRA v. VISHNU. 22 Bom. L.R 943=58 I.C. 828=41 B. 950

———Improvements—Tank dug by a tenant.

Where in contravention of the terms of the lease, the tenant digs a tank, without the landlord's permission, the landlord can claim compensation, but the amount to be awarded as damages should be merely nominal if the tank is beneficial to the inhabitants. ———Improvements—Right of a tenant to remove buildings.

The right of a tenant to remove buildings, if he has not removed them before the termination of his tenancy is an equitable one and is to be determined according to the customs and usages of the country. (Fletcher and Chatterjee, JJ.) KANAI JALAN v. RASIK LAL SADHU KHAN. 28 I.C. 762=19 C.W.N. 311.

———Improvements—Compensation—Decree for ejectment.

In executing a decree for ejectment of the tenant from land on which the latter has built a structure, the landlord is bound to pay the value, of the materials which is not the same thing as the value of improvements. (Leslie Jones, J.) LOCHA RAM v. JINDWADDA KHAN. 56 P.W.R. 1916=35 I.C. 235=141 P.L.R. 1916.

———Improvements — Tenant's claim for compensation—If allowable.

A tenant on ejectment is not entitled to any compensation for materials of the structures unless the lease was a permanent one or the lessee was encouraged by the landlord's acquiescence. The distinction between carelessness and acquiescence must be kept in mind. (Chevis and Le Rossignol, JJ.) KISHEN SINGH v. CHURCH MISSIONARY TRUST ASSOCIATION. 26 I.C. 936.

———Improvements — Compensation for — Custom of South Canara.

Under the Customary Law of South Canara a tenant is entitled to the value of improvements ———Improvements—Effect of—Estoppel.

The conduct of landlord who allows a tenant to erect a permanent structure might estop him in three ways in favour of the tenant. It might estop the landlord from denying that the tenant has a permanent right of occupancy or from evicting the tenant without paying him compensation or from denying the tenant's right to remove the superstructure. ———Improvements — Compensation—Tenant believing lease to be permanent.

A tenant who was induced to believe by the landlord's conduct that his lease was permanent is entitled to compensation for improvements when evicted. (Ayling and Tyabji, JJ.) GOPALAKRISHNA v. SUKIRTHA THEENTHARA. 24 I.C. 790.

———Improvements—Well sunk by tenant without landlord's consent—If landlord entitled to sue for mandatory injunction.

A suit for a mandatory injunction to restrain a tenant from constructing a well upon the landlord's land is not maintainable by the landlord merely on the ground that the tenant did not get his consent but the landlord must prove some special damage to himself which could not be compensated for by money. The construction of a well by a tenant should be held prima facie to be beneficial until the contrary is proved and such an act cannot be considered as destructive, injurious or one amounting to the use for a purpose other than that for which it was intended. (Evans, J.C. and Piggott, A.J.C.) RAGHUNANDAN SINGH v. JARAO. 18 I.C. 554=15 C.C. 170.

———Improvements — Compensation — Estoppel.

Even though a landlord allows his tenant to build on his land and allows the sale of the building and recognizes the purchase as tenant, yet it does not give the tenant any right of occupation and does not act as estoppel and the landlord not liable for compensation at the time of ejecting the tenant. family and a patni lease of the same land granted to some other members of the same family if it appears from the document and accounts that the two are kept alive. Merger is not a thing which occurs ipso jure upon the acquisition of what for the sake of a just generalisation, may be called the superior with the inferior right. There may be many reasons —conveyencing reasons,—reasons arising out of the object of the acquisition of the one right being merely for a temporary purpose, family reasons and others in the course of which, the expediency of avoiding the coalescence of interest and preserving the separation of title may be apparent. In short the question to be settled in the application of the doctrine is, was such a coalescence of right meant to be accomplished as to extinguish that separation of title which the records contain. The English doctrine of a merger has never been held to apply to land tenures in India in their entirety. The decree-holder purchased the tenure. Held, that judgment-debt in respect of the rent-decree must be deemed to have been extinguished and that the landlord could not execute the decree. LANDLORD AND TENANT — Nature of tenancy.

———Nature of tenancy—Terms of contract—To be determined by long user and possession—Right of tenant to build on land.

Long user and possession may be good evidence of what the terms of the grant were. These terms the tenant cannot overstep. A tenant has no right to build on land which has been given to him for other purpose. (Tudball and Sulaiman, JJ.) BUDDHU v. BANWARI LAL. 57 I.C. 655=2 U.P.L.R. (A.) 339.

———Nature of tenancy—Squatter cultivating land—His possession, if adverse possession.

Mere cultivating possession, which does not necessarily imply any claim to proprietary right is not adverse possession against the landlord. A squatter's possession of patti land is consistent with a claim to be a tenant or a proprietor on the fact of his being a mere squatter. A squatter is not to be allowed the benefit of the maxim that possession is Prima Facie adverse. A mere squatter or intruder who does not set up any claim of right cannot plead adverse possession. ———Non-transferable holding—Transfer—Consent.

The consent of both the landlord and the tenant is necessary to make a valid transfer of a non-transferable occupancy holding. No part of it can be sold in execution of a money decree if the raiyat objects to the sale even if the landlords consent to such a sale to the decree-holder. This principle does not apply to a sale in execution of a decree on a mortgage or charge voluntarily made by the raiyat in which case the transfer though involuntary operates against the raiyats. 42 C. 172; 19 C. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Non-transferable Holding.

———Non-transferable holding—Transfer—Recognition by landlord—Evidence of—Burden of proof—Acquiescence.

Per Das and Adami, JJ. (Chief Justice dissenting.—On a question arising as to whether the transfer of an occupancy holding has been recognised by the landlord, unless it is shown that an assertion by the tenant was made to the knowledge of the landlord and the latter acquiesced in that assertion with full knowledge, there is no recognition of the transfer by the acquiescence on the part of the landlord. Mere payment of the rent by the transferee of an occupancy holding does not prove recognition of the tenant as such by the landlord unless it is further established that the landlord accepted rent from him as a tenant. The burden of proof of recognition of the transfer is on the tenant. Per Chief Justice.—It is well established that the receipt of rent by the landlord from the transferee of a holding, not transferable by custom will validate the transfer. But the gomastha or Patwari of the landlord although authorised to collect rent on his behalf has no authority by taking rent from a transferee to create the relationship of landlord and tenant between his master and the transferee. Where the plaintiff purchased a holding from the original tenant and subsequently a co-sharer landlord obtained a decree for his share of the rent against the original tenant and attached the holding and the plaintiff laid a claim under O. 21, R. 58, Civil Procedure Code but his claim having been disallowed, brought a suit for a declaration that the co-sharer landlord was not entitled to sell the holding in execution of his decree which must be regarded as a money decree against the original tenants: Held, that the decree detained by the co-sharer landlord against the original tenants was a money decree and did not affect the holding and the plaintiff having purchased the holding long before the attachment could not be regarded as the representative in interest of the judgment-debtor. 32 Cal. 1031 (1905), dist. Notice to Quit.

———Notice to quit—Requisites of a valid notice—Test of its sufficiency.

Notices to quit served by landlords upon their tenants may be good and effective in law, even though not strictly accurate or consistent. The test of their sufficiency is not what they would mean to a stranger ignorant of all the facts and circumstances touching the holding to which they purport to refer but what they would mean to tenants presumably conversant with such facts and circumstances. Such notices are to be construed so as to effectuate the intention of the parties ut res magis valeat quam pereat. (Lord Atkinson.) HARIHAR BANARJI v. RAMSASHI ROY.

———Notice to quit—Waiver—Receipt of rent.

On receipt of an increment of rent for a period of 6 months in advance after termination of the tenancy by notice for quitting, the landlord waives notice. A landlord may recover rent of the statutory tenant without waiving the notice to quit. But to collect 6 months' rent in advance is conduct inconsistent with an intention to enforce the notice. ———Notice to quit—Portion of holding.

A notice to quit is a notice intended to terminate the tenancy. A notice relating only to a portion of the holding is not valid so far as the portion is concerned. If he terminates a portion of the tenancy he terminates the whole contract and if the tenant retains any portion that in like manner breaks the bargain and is the commencement of a fresh contract. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Notice to Quit.

———Notice to quit—Essentials of—Non-agricultural land—B.T. Act.

To determine whether on a notice the plff. is entitled to a decree for ejectment two questions are to be investigated. First what is the nature of the tenancy held by the deft. and secondly, if it is a terminable tenancy, has it been terminated by the legal notice to quit. The mere fact that rent is paid annually is not conclusive proof that the tenancy is annual. 20 C.L.J. 448; 20 C.L.J. 455; 44 Cal. 403, Ref. The liability to ejectment of a deft. who is not a cultivator does not depend upon the Bengal Tenancy Act. (Mookerjee, C.J. and Fletcher, J.) GAYA NATH OJHA v. ANUKUL CHANDRA OJHA. 36 I.C. 835=32 C.L.J. 6.

———Notice to quit—Co-sharer landlords.

No single landlord or group of them as representing others can terminate the tenancy by notice to quit when the tenant is inducted by all the landlords. When there is a trespasser in place of tenant, the case is different. (Beachcroft, J.) PRIANATH NAICK v. PROMATHA NATH ADHIKARI. 57 I.C. 895.

———Notice to quit—Service of—Despatch by post.

In a suit for ejectment where the posting of a regd. notice is duly proved and the registered envelope with the endorsement of the Postal peon is produced the Court ought not to dismiss the suit on the ground that service of notice has not been legally proved. The Court ought to give the plff. a fair opportunity to prove actual service of notice on the deft. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) KALAMNA KADIM AMIR v. ALIKHEYA. 45 I.C. 917.

———Notice to quit — Tenancy-at-will — Ejectment, right of.

To determine a tenancy-at-will a reasonable notice to quit should be given; what is a reasonable notice is a question of fact but a tenant at will cannot in any event claim a notice of six months. (Fletcher and Newbould, JJ.) DHUKI RAM DHOK v. METABI BIBI.

———Notice to quit—Ejectment.

———Notice to quit—Managing member—Claim for double rent on refusal to vacate—Sub-tenant—Suit for ejectment by landlord.

A notice to quit given by the sons of the deceased lessor is valid and the grandsons of the lessor are not co-parceners with their fathers and even if they are their fathers as managers are competent to give the notice. The notice to quit was valid and legal notwithstanding the addition of a clause that if the tenant did not vacate, he would be liable to pay an enhanced rent. The sub-tenants, having themselves recognised the plaintiffs as landlords and paid them rent, could not defeat the suit on the ground that there was no privity of contract between them and the plaintiffs. ———Notice to quit—Right to—Assertion of permanent rights of occupancy by tenants—Effect of—Notice not acted upon.

The mere assertion of a claim of permanent occupancy right does not deprive the tenant of his right to a notice to quit by the landlord. A notice to quit given a long time before the suit and not acted upon does not relieve the landlord from his obligation to giva a fresh notice to quit before ejectment. (Spencer and Devadoss, JJ.) The onus of proving a permanent tenancy under a ryotwari pattadar is on the person setting up such tenancy. The mere assertion by the tenants that they were Kudikani mirasdars or ulavadaikani mirasdars in the village could not invest them with occupancy rights under the pattadar. Permanent Tenancy.

——Permanent tenancy—Ryotwari land—Government pattadar—Tenants holding under—Claim of occupancy right—Onus—Rebuttal.

In suit by a ryotwari pattadar to eject his tenants on the expiry of a six months' notice to quit, the tenants pleaded a permanent right of occupancy. It was proved by the evidence that the tenants had been in possession for a very long period at uniform rents, without proof that they had been let into possession by the pattadar, that they had reclaimed the land and dug wells in the gardens at considerable expense, that they had been alienating the wells and the lands irrigated thereby and that they had cultivated the lands as they pleased. Held, that the title of the plaintiff as landlord and the giving of the notices not having been disputed, the onus lay on the tenants to prove that they had permanent rights of occupancy, but that upon the facts established, the onus was discharged. Permanency is not a universal and integral incident of an under-ryot's holding; if claimed, it must be established. In a suit by a landlord to eject his tenants, it was found that the holding was created in 1845, that it had ever since been held at a fixed permanent rent and that the plaintiff's predecessor had taken a benami mortgage of the holding treating it as permanent, transferable and heritable. In certain rent receipts granted by the landlord to the tenants the holding was a tenancy-at-will. Held, that no importance could be attached to the wording of the rent receipts describing the nature of the tenancy, as there was nothing to show that the tenants had consented to the insertion of those words in the receipts or that they even knew of them. The facts established by evidence were conclusive that the holding was a permanent, transferable and heritable one. (Mr. Ameer Ali). SURENDRA NATH ROY v. DWARKA NATH CHAKRAVARTHY.

——Permanent tenancy—Inference from facts—No evidence of terms—Long possession—Uniform rent—Erection of costly structures—Estopped—Rent of permanent holding—Not to be enhanced except when authorised by statute.

In a suit by plaintiff to eject defendants from land situated in the suburbs of Delhi and covered by a masonry building it appeared that about 1859, plaintiff's predecessor-in-title invited the defendant's predecessors to occupy the land in question for building purposes. There was no document evidencing the terms of occupancy. It was proved in evidence that from 1859 onwards, a fixed and uniform rent was paid, that in some the receipts given by the landlord the rent was described as "permanent" that the defts. and their predecessors had erected substantial buildings on the land without objection from the landlord, that they had dealt with the properties by way of sale and mortgage and that the properties had passed by succession. Held, that the chief Court was right in holding that the deft.'s tenancy was a permanent one at a fixed rent and that the validity of the inference was not affected by the fact that there was no permanent settlement by the Government in the Punjab. 28 C 738, approved. Where the origin of tenancy was unknown, but the original tenant and his successor had been in occupation of the land for over sixty years on payment of rent which was never varied, and the tenancy was treated by the landlord as heritable and the land was set out for residential purposes, the inference may well be drawn that the tenancy was in its inception permanent. The presence of a permanent structure on the land is not essential to establish that the tenancy in its inception was of a permanent character. "Istimrari Mokarari" does not per se confer an estate of inheritance but an Istimrari Mokarari Patta, even in the absence of words denoting heritability such as Bafezandan, Naslan Badnastan or Al Aulad may mean a perpetual grant if the other terms of the instrument, the surrounding circumstances or the subsequent conduct of the parties, disclose an intention with sufficient certainty. A restraint on transfer and on the cutting down of fruit bearing trees and an obligation on the lessees to plant another tree in place of any that might fall down by itself, the recital of a substantial premium, these are surest indications of a permanent grant. On the other hand the clause which throws the costs of improvements on the lessees is not such an indication. The meaning of words in a document is a question of fact, though the effect of words is a question of law. The rights of the parties to a contract are to be judged by that law by which they may justly be presumed to have bound themselves. Where in a lease in favour of two persons the duration of Pattas is to be measured not by the continuance of the joint lives but also by the life of the survivor, no question of limitation can arise before the death of both. ——Permanent tenancy — Evidence — Ryotwari—Presumption of—Temple lands—Occupancy right in—Recognition of.

LANDLORD AND TENANT — Permanent tenancy.

The Courts below inferred occupancy right from the facts that the tenants had been in possession of the lands for nearly 50 years paying a uniform rent, being equivalent to the Government assessment on a single crop land, that the tenants had been selling and mortgaging their lands to the knowledge of the landlord without any objection, that there had been devolution of the property from father to son, the landlord recognising the son, as tenant in the father's place and that there has been no successful attempt to raise the rent during all the period. Held, that the presumption that the tenancy was a permanent one was properly raised. It does not follow that because the lands were unoccupied Government ryotwari lands at one time cultivating tenants can never acquire occupancy rights in them. 21 M.L.J. 845 and 24 M.L.J. 659, Rel. ——Permanent tenancy — Mirasidars — Ryotwari land.

When tenants are in possession for a very long time paying a uniform rate of rent after they had reclaimed the lands and Mirasidars are not in possession, it raises a presumption that the tenants have occupancy rights. There is no statute that every raiyat under a pattadar, is a tenant from year to year. (Benson and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) ——Permanent tenancy—No presumption of—Lease for building purposes.

The fact that the tenancy is one for building purposes, that a substantial building has been erected and that the property has descended from father to son or has been sublet or alienated need not be taken into consideration in determining whether the tenancy was a permanent tenancy, on the face of an instrument defining its terms. There is no presumption of a permanent tenancy where land is let for building purposes and the tenant cannot get the value of buildings on ejectment. (White, C.J., Sankaran Nair and Tyabji, JJ.) ———Permanent tenancy — Determination of—Lease for specific purpose—Purpose not carried out.

In the case of a perpetual lease it is determined by the death of the lessee. The principles enunciated in 4 B. 424 apply to a case like the present when the Company to whom the land was given for a specified purpose is defunct. Where a lessor has leased his land for a specific purpose and that condition is broken, the lessor had the right to claim his land back. Where land was given for the purpose of having a Factory on it, and it had no factory now standing on it the landlord is entitled to possession. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) GOWARDHANDAS v. WAHID KHAN.

———Permanent tenancy—Onus of proof—Lease of jungle—Reclamation — Improvements —Equitable estoppel.

If in a suit for ejectment the right of the landlord depends upon a lease granted for clearing a jungle, settling a village in the village area, and settling agricultural tenants on the land, and the lessees plead that they have permanent rights, the onus is on them to prove their allegations. If the lessees have made only such improvements as were necessary for the opening of the village, they cannot be said to have been induced to believe that their tenure would be permanent. The presumption is that it is not permanent. If permanent works, beyond those agreed upon at the time of the lease are constructed and the landlord encourages their erection in circumstances which lead the lessees to believe that they are accepted as permanent tenants, the landlord would be equitably estopped from ———Permanent tenancy—Length of occupation—Improvements.

The lengh of the periods for which a tenant has been in possession of the land does not, in the absence of proof that the rent was uniform, raise any presumption that the tenancy is a permanent one. To raise an equitable estoppel against a lessor precluding him from suing for possession on the determination of the tenancy, the tenant must show facts sufficient to justify a legal inference that the lessor has by implication contracted that the right of the tenancy should be changed into a right of permanent occupancy. ———Permanent tenancy—Creation of tenancy—Resumption.

Where the landlord reduced the rent in lieu of service by a jeth raiyat, the landlord could resume lands on cessation of service. Neither duration nor devolution from father to son can in such cases create a permanent tenure so as to prevent landlord from resuming on cessation of service. (Das, J.) ———Permanent tenancy — Evidence of—Long possession—Non-payment of rent—Effect of.

Where the origin of a tenant's possession of certain land used as a house-site is shown to be permissive and derivative from the land the tenant cannot acquire by prescription a title adverse to the landlord unless he openly asserts his permanent right and definitely challenged the right of the landlord to evict him: Mere non-payment of rent is in these cases of very little value as showing any right to permanent residence. In many cases no actual right is placed by tenants of this class except such incorporeal rent as is illustrated by a general position of dependence upon the ground landlord as one of the village proprietors. It is not sufficient for a tenant to show that he has not actually delivered cash or even manure or has not rendered certain definite and specified services, as his position as a temporary tenant may equally well be illustrated by the mere fact of recognising a certain feudal dependency upon the landlord. ———Proprietary right — Encumbrance—Dealing with land by tenant.

Anything which interferes with the unrestricted rights of the proprietor as they existed at the time of the creation of the tenancy would be an encumbrance upon the land. Even the granting of a lease of zerait lands, that is to say the land which the landlord is entitled to hold in direct possession and to cultivate for his own purposes would be an encumbrance. A lease of such lands granted to an occupier in circumstances which would give him a right of occupancy over the land would amount to an encumbrance. (Miller, C.J. and Jawala Prasad, JJ.) ———Relationship — What constitutes — Demand for rent—Effect of.

Where the evidence indicated that the plaintiff demanded rent from the defendant, with full knowledge that the latter was in possession as purchaser of the tenant's rights in the land, prima facie this is evidence of an intention, unless otherwise explained, to recognise the title of the purchaser and unless repudiated, would constitute the relationship of landlord and tenant Where the defendant purchased the holdings on the assumption that they were transferable and professed to be the tenant in occupation, in such circumstances, demand by the plaintiff for rent is good evidence of mutual consent to the creation of a tenancy, unless the plaintiff is able to explain that the demand was not unqualified and should be differently interpreted.(Mookerjee, and Rankin, JJ.) ———Relationship—Rent—No covenant to pay—Burgadar.

Where there is no covenant to pay rent and no interest in land created in favour of the lessees there is no tenancy. A burgadar is not necessarily a tenant. A burgadar is a person who enters into a profit-sharing arrangement; he cultivates the land gives a share of the profits to the owner and keeps the remainder as his remuneration. In individual cases, the terms of the contract may indicate that the intention of the parties was to create in the grantee an interest in the land in other words, if there is a demise, a tenancy is created. ———Relationship—Proof of — Receipt of rents by agent.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the ordinary presumption would be that a Gumasta of a landlord who collects rent, duly pays it to the landlord. Even though the Gumasta had no authority to grant an amalanama or settle a holding, the mere fact of receipt of rent by the Gumasta on behalf of his employer from the occupier of the holding is sufficient to prove the tenancy of the latter. ———Relationship — Evidence of —Entry into possession—Receipt of rent.

A landlord who enters into an agreement with a tenant to lease out his lands and in pursuance of that agreement receives payment and lets the tenant into possession cannot afterwards grant a subsequent lease to a third person. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Relationship.

——Relationship—Khabuliyat executed by one of two brothers—Effect.

Where one of two brothers executed a Khabuliyat, the question whether the other becomes a tenant depends on the intention of the parties. If the landlord knew that he was letting the land to both but took the Khabuliyat in the name of one for the sake of convenience then the relation of tenancy was created with the other brother. But if the landlord knew nothing of the arrangements made between the two brothers and believed himself to be contracting with the brother executing the Khabuliyat then those arrangements would not bind him and would not create any relation between him and the other brother. (Coxe and Richardson, JJ.) SARAT CHANDRA ROY v RATUBUDDIN.

——Relationship — Pattan—Settlement—Adhi Proja, whether tenant or servant—Burden of proof.

In a Pattan Settlement, the Adhi Proja is generally a tenant and the burden of proving that he is a mere servant rests upon the landlord. (Coxe, J.) BIROJ MUHAMMED v. MOHABUT MUHAMMAD. 11 I.C. 32.

——Relationship—Proof of—Ambiguous Clause—Surrounding circumstances.

The Court should take into consideration the surrounding circumstances and should not only depend on an ambiguous clause in the lease deed to ascertain the terms of the tenancy. (Caspersz and Dos, JJ.) MIDNAPORE ZEMINDARI & CO., LTD. v. BAPAPADA ROY. 10 I.C. 430=18 C.L.J. 485.

——Relationship—Determination of tenancy—Tenant's possession becoming adverse.

Tenant's possession does not become adverse until he openly repudiates the tenancy. Payment of rent by the tenants to third persons and attornment to them would not cause dispossession of the landlord unless such payments were made under circumstances so as to amount in law to an eviction of the tenants as tenants of the landlord. Non-payment of rent by the tenant and payment of rent to third persons cannot by themselves constitute dispossession of the tenant. Non-payment of rent for any number of years does not determine the tenancy. (Chatterjee, J.) RAM NEWAZ v. SHASHI BUSHAN.
9 I.C. 119.

——Relationship—Proof—Dispute whether particular plot is included—Onus.

When the tenancy is admitted and proved, any further question as to the area held by the deft. refers to the contract of tenancy and not status of tenancy. The onus is therefore on the plff. landlord to establish that a particular plot is not rayati but khas patit. (3 C.W.N. 743, Foll.) (Caspersz, J.) DINA NATH DAS v. GANESH CHANDRA SAHA. 9 I.C. 2.

——Relationship — Adverse possession — Defendants recorded as tenants—Onus.

If in the revenue records the defendants were shown as tenants paying rent, the onus is on them to show that they are not tenants, and that onus is not discharged by the fact that the amount of the rent which they paid did not exceed the amount of the revenue and cesses. ——Relationship—Sanjidar — Position of —Denial of title by—Effect.

A Sanjidar is one who performs certain services and is given land to hold as a tenant. A Sanjidar who has repudiated the landlord's title in a previous suit is liable to ejected from the holding if the landlord acquiesces in the repudiation and the Sanjidar cannot afterwards be heard to support the landlord's title in a subsequent suit. ——Relationship—Decree in ejectment—Effect.

A decree in ejectment recognising termination of tenancy and decreeing possession to the landlord puts an end to relationship between the parties as landlord and tenant. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Relationship.

———Relationship — Re-entry — Right of lessee.

A Talukdar leased the right of collecting rents to the plff. for a certain period and before the expiry of the term the Talukdar took forcible possession of the village and began to collect rent from the tenants. Held, that the lessee was entitled to obtain decrees, inasmuch as the relation of landlord and tenant had not ceased between the lessee and the tenants and inasmuch as the lessee had not been in due course of law, ejected and the lease only provided for re-entry in case the lessee agreed to give up the possession and not for re-entry by force. (Stuart, A.J.C.) HABIBULLAH SHAH v. SURJI. 15 I.C. 867 = 15 O.C. 295.

———Relationship—Recorded tenant—When a representative of the tenure.

So far as tenures are concerned, the Bengal Tenancy Act makes it obligatory upon the tenants to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista whenever they become entitled to them by succession. In the case of a tenure therefore, where only one tenant takes the trouble to have his name recorded in the landlord's sherista, and the others either by design or negligence fail to do so, it may be presumed that the tenants who failed to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista consented to the tenant who had his name recorded representing them both in transactions and in suits affecting the landlord and the tenants. But other principles arise where the Court has to deal with the case of the sale of a holding as to which there is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act compelling raiyats to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista. It is a question of fact in each case whether the recorded tenant does in fact represent the holding in dispute and that the fact that only one tenant is registered is an item in the evidence upon the question whether he is or is not the representative tenant qua the landlord. ———Relationship—Lessee for a term of years cannot create tenancy extending his term.

Nor does the fact that the tenant's occupation of the land was acquiesced in for 9 years without remonstrance amount to recognition. (Ross and Coutts, JJ.) ————Relationship—Proof of by kabuliyat—No reference to prior lease—Satta—Non-production of—Effect.

The generic meaning of the word satta is mercantile traffic or exchange for money and satta is merely a commercial agreement regulating the condition under which a tenant agrees to grow indigo or do any other thing. The question of the status of the tenant or the origin of the tenancy does not depend upon its production or non production. (Ross, J.) HENRY HILL & CO. v. BHAVAN THAKUR. 2 Pat. L.T. 605.

Rent—Abatement of.

———Rent—Abatement of—Onus—Lease of area within boundaries—Deficiency in extent—Tenant deprived of portion of land by erroneous form of injunction.

It is for the tenant to make out a case, if he has one, for abatement of the fixed rent. Where the rent for an area described to be 400 bighas within specified boundaries is fixed, the lessee cannot adduce evidence of prior negotiations to show that the rent was to depend on the acreage and claim an abatement of rent as on a deficiency in the acreage.

A permanent mining lease authorised the lessee to cut and dispose of all the coal beneath "400 bighas of land in Mouzah Dobari" within specified boundaries. Subsequent to the lease the lessor sued to restrain the lessee from trespassing on his own private land but the Court passed a decree restraining the lessee from dealing with property lying outside the mouzah "as delineated in the amin's map." The lessee preferred no appeal. In a subsequent suit by the landlord for arrears of rent, the lessee claimed abatement of the rent as on a reduction of the area. Held, that it was not intended by the prior decree in the landlord's suit to reduce the area of the land demised and even if in fact the order of the Court was in wider terms than were called for, the lessee having submitted to the decree, without appealing, could not plead it as having taken away the area originally demised. The lessee was therefore not entitled to abatement of rent. (Sir John Edge). DURGAPRASAD SINGH v. RAJENDRA NARAYAN BAGCHI. 40 I. A. 223=26 M. L. J. 23=15 M. L. T. 68=19 C. L. J. 95=18 C. W. Where it has found that the abatement claimed by the deft. had not been fluctuating but was uniform throughout, and had been uniformally allowed every year since 1868, that it was not a deduction allowed to the tenants personally, but allowed to particular holdings. Held, a legal origin has been made out and the apportionment among the lands was proper. ———Rent—Abatement of—Ouster by title paramount.

The Government wrongfully purported to resume portion of the lands comprised in a tenure in a diar proceeding and formed it into a separate estate. The Government subsequently settled it with the tenure-holder and realised the rent from him in respect of the same. The landlord did not object to the redemption but accepted malikana. In a suit for rent by the landlord against the tenure-holder held, that the act of that Government was an ouster of the defendant by a title paramount and such title having been admitted by the landlord, the tenant was entitled to an abatement of rent in respect of the tenure to the extent of the amount payable by him to the Government. ———Rent—Abatement — Claim for—Eviction by title paramount.

In a suit for rent by a landlord a lessee is entitled to an abatement of rent, if, upon a claim by a third party, by a title paramount, he attorns to him and holds under him. For that a forcible expulsion is not necessary and the tenant need not actually go out of possession. Before the deft.'s purchase the plff. was in possession of a plot of land included in one of the jotes and he settled it with another party after the deft.'s purchase and after his recognition as a tenant. Held, that this not being the case of a demise by the plff., the latter could not be held responsible for giving possession to the deft. and the question of suspension of rent did not arise. The plff. was not entitled to rent of the plot of land of which the deft. had not got possession. (Chaudhuri and Cuming, JJ.) PRAVAKAR MAJUMDAR v. UPENDRA NATH CHANDRA. 53 I. C. 564.

———Rent — Abatement of — Diluvion—Contract—Contravention of.

A lessee is entitled to abatement of rent in proportion to the loss of lands through eviction by title paramount. To make him liable for the whole rent, notwithstanding eviction, there must be a clear and unambiguous provision in the lease to that effect. A claim for rent as it accrues from year to year is a recurring claim and to each such claim, the ———Rent—Decree for—Purchase in execution sale—Subsequent sale—Validity of—Estoppel.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Rent—Decree.

It is settled that after a holding has been once sold in execution of a rent decree and has passed out of the possession of the tenant it cannot ordinarily be again sold in execution of any other decree for rent due by the same tenant. An exception, however, has been made in cases where execution Court, though irregularly allows the holding to be sold subject to a liability to satisfy another outstanding decree; in such cases the auction-purchaser is concluded by res judicata and the landlord is competent to proceed in the first instance against the holding and to call upon the auction-purchaser to discharge the liability which he has undertaken. But that principle has no application where the decree-holder is himself the purchaser. The judgment-debtor cannot resist the attachment of his other properties if after the sale the decree holder had changed his mind. The law gives the decree-holder an option and there is no question of estoppel. In order to create an estoppel the representation must be a statement of fact and not of a proposition of law. Unless the landlord is precluded from the exercise of the right of enhancing rent by a contract binding on him, or the lands in question can be brought within one of the exemptions recognized by Bengal Reg. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Rent—Liability.

Where a tenant has raised vanpayar crop on nanja lands in respect of which he had executed a muchilika agreeing to pay waram, the presumption is that they agreed to pay nanja rates. The onus is on the tenant to show that the obligation to pay nanja rates was put an end to by a contract between the parties. Rent—Liability.

———Rent—Liability—Possession not given—Remedy of lessee.

Where a lessee of an agricultural land is not given possession of a portion of the demised land it is open to him to sue in the Civil Court for damages for breach of contract but there is no possible method by which he can obtain a reduction from his lease money from the Rent Court. The Rent Court can certainly not award him damages. It is not a question of set off because a set off must be for an ascertained sum. LANDLORD AND TENANT—Rent—Rate of.

———Rent—Rate of—Intention of parties—Construction of document.

A mukarrari and mourasi kabuliyat provided for rent at Rs. 1-6-8 per bigha and 7 aris of paddy the market price whereof is Rs. 15. It further contained a statement "taking the cash and the price of paddy together" the total rent being fixed at Rs. 16-6-8 gandas. This was followed by a clause that there shall be no increase or abatement in the jama.

Held (Newbould, J., dissenting):—(1) Inasmuch as this was a mourasi mukarrari kabuliyat, the parties intended to fix the total rent to be paid in the event of non-delivery of paddy, viz., Rs. 16 6-8 gandas and that the rent being thus fixed once for all, the fluctuation in the price of the paddy will not affect the amount to be paid as rent. (2) That the parties should be held to that which they say in the contract and the Court should not speculate and arrive at the conclusion that the provision regarding the total yearly rent had been inserted merely for the purpose of determining the registration-fee. Per Mookerjee, J.—The court has to give effect only to such intention as the parties were able to express by the language used in the document and it is not concerned with any unexpressed intention which they might have entertained. The suggestion that the quantity of paddy deliverable might have been valued for the purpose of the registration-fee is a speculation for which there is no foundation either in document or in evidence.

Per Newbould, J.—The recovery of the paddy rent at its cash value, as it varies from year to year is not inconsistent with the tenure being a mukarrari one. When the value of the paddy varies the value of the cash may also be said to vary in comparison with the paddy.

In the absence of any agreement in the kabuliyat to pay the total rent in cash the statement fixing the total rent at Rs. 16-6-8 gandas can only be taken to mean as a statement added to the document for the purpose of fixing the stamp duty and the registration-fee. ———Rent—Rent free grant—Malikanadari rights how created—Thakbast map and Khasra, meaning of—Claim for holding rent free—Onus—Non-collection of rent by Thekadar—Adverse possession.

It is only by an arrangement with the village proprietor, that a malikanadari right comes into existence. Regular surveys are preceded by a preliminary measurement by an amin who lays down on a rough map the locality, without any guarantee of scientific accuracy and enters in a register particulars regarding the plots gathered from people, who collect to watch the proceedings. The map is called the Thakbast map and the register the Thakkhasra. The latter as its name implies, is a rough register and statements entered in it have by themselves no evidentiary value. So, when a statement is made before an amin to the effect that within a mauza there are certain persons who hold malikanadari rights, the entry made in the Khasra, to that effect, cannot be treated as an evidence to support the claim unless it is proved that it was noticed by the person affected thereby and that he knowingly acquiesced in the assertion made before the amin. Once the landlord has proved that the land which is sought to be held rent free lies within his regularly assessed estate or mahal the onus lies upon those who claim to hold the lands free of the obligation to pay rent to show by satisfactory evidence that they have been relieved of this obligation either by contract or by some old grant recognised by the Government. Where a mahal has all along been held in theka, if the thekadar collecting rent and paying fixed sum to the proprietor fails to collect rent from any individual tenant, it would not create adverse possession against the proprietor. Mere non-payment of rent or discontinuance of payment of rent does not by itself create adverse possession. (Ameer Ali). JAGDEO NARAIN SINGH v. BALDEO SINGH.

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Rent—Suspension of.

A landlord dispossessing a tenant from portion of the land demised of the holding cannot recover any part of the rent as the suspension of the entire rent is a punishment for the dispossession and as the rule will be rendered nugatory if any part of the rent is allowed to be recovered. (Chitty and Teunon, JJ.) ASUTOSH DHAR v. JOY LAL SARDAR.
18 I. C. 621=17 C. L. J. 50.

———Rent—Suspension of—Eviction, what constitutes.

To constitute an eviction entailing forfeiture of rent it is not necessary that there should be actual physical expulsion. Any act done with the intention of depriving the tenant permanently of the benefit of the enjoyment of any part of the demised premises is sufficient. The fact that an evicted tenant has obtained a decree for mesne profits does not revive the claim for rent which was extinguished by the landlord's action. A decree for mesne profits obtained by the tenant does not necessarily restore him to all the advantages he would have enjoyed had his possession not been illegally disturbed. Consequently a landlord whose claim for rent is dismissed on the ground he had caused the eviction of the tenant cannot recover the mesne profits decreed to the tenant against a trespasser. 13 W. ———Rent—Suspension of—Partial eviction —Estoppel—Set off—Damages.

Both under the English and Indian law non-delivery of possession of the premises is a good answer to a suit for rent. Actual or constructive eviction of the tenant from the entire holding is a good plea in answer to a suit for rent by the landlord, but partial eviction is no answer to a suit for rent to the extent of the portion in enjoyment. The tenant may, on partial eviction, repudiate the whole lease but if he does not and remains in possession he is estopped from pleading nonliability of the rent for the portion in his occupation. He is entitled to damages for the portion evicted and can set it off for the amount due from him. (Benson and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.) MEENAKSHI SUNDARA NACHIAR v. CHIDAMBARAM CHETTY. 23 M. L. Certain Khoti lands were acquired under the Land Acquisition Act. The Khot claimed the whole of the compensation. The grass lands having passed from hand to hand under sale deeds the Khot was perfectly aware that the villagers were enclosing these grass lands and were treating them as if they belonged to them. Held, it was impossible to say that the villagers could not acquire by such action proprietary rights in the lands so enclosed and dealt with. They were entitled to compensation along with the Khot according to the custom of the villages. The acquisition of right by prescription is open in law to these villagers against the Khot whatever his rights under the lease may be. (*Macleod, C. various contingencies, including the following: "If the yield be carried away...without acting in accordance with the condition specified in para 1, in that contingency" you shall pay at the rate specified in para herein our malvaram paddy in respect of the total yield calculated at an average of 170 kalams and 4 marakals per rate of nanja, the Kadappu and Kar produce being payable within 15th December and Samba Pisanam produce by the 15th March. Held, the whole question turned upon the meaning of the term "total yield of the produce." The payment of 170 kalams was not for the total yield of the portion, nor was it penal as contended by the appellant, but a substituted rent. Cl. 8 imposed no penalty as such but simply set forth a figure which upon the whole might be reckoned a reasonable practical substitute for the actual percentage which owing to the tenants' conduct had been rendered unascertainable. The substituted rent applied to the yield of each portion of the crop, exactly as the setting aside on the threshing floor was applicable to each portion. (Lord Shaw.) RADHA KRISHNA AYYAR v. ———Sub-tenancy — Ejectment of head tenant—Effect of.

It is convenient that actions for possession based on forfeiture should be brought against all the parties interested in the premises. The effect of not making every sub-tenant a party is not to limit the right which the landlord would have, on obtaining his decree, to obtain possession of the premises by executing the decree against the tenant. Once the owner obtained a decree in ejectment against the head lessees and that decree having been obtained by S. 115 of the Transfer of Property Act, all rights of sub-lessees who held under the head lessees were at an end, for the simple reason that a landlord cannot give to a tenant or sub-tenant something which he does not possess himself. If his rights are gone, those who claim under and through him lose their rights also. The effect of the decree was that the present defts., who were the head landlords of the plffs., were entitled to possession of these premises as against the plffs. and as against the plffs. landlords. In a suit for declaration, the deft. set up under proprietary rights in the land acquired by prescription but failed to establish any decree passed in his favour for such rights at the time of the first regular settlement. The documents showed that at the time his predecessor had set up a claim to proprietary rights which failed and a claim for sub-settlement of the village also was unsuccessful. In 1869, while an appeal in the latter suit was pending a notice of ejectment was issued against the predecessor of the deft who alleged that the land was held in hereditary right and that his claim for sub-settlement was pending in appeal and he was in possession of the land as Sir. These proceedings resulted in the notice being cancelled and a decree in favour of the deft. for certain areas of Sir lands. There was further litigation between the parties, and the Courts held that the parties to whom notices were issued were not liable to ejectment. Held, that there was sufficient evidence of an under-proprietary right as early as 1869 and that, the suit must fail. Birt Tenure.

———Birt tenure — Status of Birtdar — Rent payable to Talukdars—Superior landlord's right to put up right of birtdars to sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent.

A Talukdar cannot put up to sale the rights of intermediate holders called Birtdars in execution of a rent decree obtained against sub-settlement holders to which the birtdars were not parties. The rights of birtdars are altogether different from those of sub-settlement holders. No decree, therefore, can be passed against the birtdars for arrears of rent due by the sub-settlement holders. The amount payable by the under-proprietor to the superior landlord though calculated on the basis of land revenue is not land revenue but rent. (Lindsay, J. C) BRIJLAL v. RAMADHAR.

Digwari Tenure.

———Digwari tenure—Incidents of—Digwari of Ghat Burrah, position of—Suit for declaration of right—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

There is a general usage on the death of the Digwar holding office to appoint his heir in his place as the successor to his office The heir's claim, and the tenure of office are dependant on approval of Government. The position of a Digwar of Ghat Burrah is that of an officer remunerated by the enjoyment of land. The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to reinstate a Digwar who has been dismissed by the Executive Government, as unfit for the discharge of his duties. But the position is different when the Commissioner decides against a claimant not in the exercise of his discretion but upon an erroneous view of the relative title of his opponent. In such case the Civil Courts can give a declaratory decree under S. 42 of the Sp. Rel. Act, to enable plaintiff to approach the Government with his claims and seek their decision on the question of the appointment of a successor to the office of Digwar. *(Jenkins, C. Fazendari Tenure.

———Fazendari tenures—What is.

In its strict or proper meaning Fazendari tenure means an indefeasible right to hold for ever on payment of a small quit or ground rent, in its loose sense, any kind of tenure agreed on between the parties.

The estate to be really Fazendari must be one which approaches as near as possible an estate of absolute ownership. It must be of unlimited duration subject to such rights as escheat. There must be no rights as re-entry or resumption on the part of the Government (Fawcett, J.) RAHIMTULLA v. HASANALI. 26 Bom. L. R. 1192 = 1924 Bom 212.

———Fazendari Tenure.

Ganti Tenure.

———Ganti tenure—Tenure created by previous settlement holder.

The temporary settlement holder of a mahal created a ganti interest in favour of certain persons. Subsequently the mahal was sold for arrears of revenue and purchased by plaintiff, whereupon the Settlement Officer settled the rent for the mahal on the basis of the rent payable by the ganttdars, and plaintiff executed a kabuliyat stipulating to respect the recorded right of under-tenure-holders and other persons: Held, that the plaintiff was bound to recognise the ganti tenure and could not question its existence, (Walmsley and Huda, JJ.) JARIP SARDAR v. JOGENDRA NATH CHATTERJEE. 24 C. Ghatwali Tenure.

———Ghatwali—Incidents of—Succession.

Ghatwali tenure is ordinarily hereditary, the estate descending to such male member of the family as the Zemindar approved as competent, and it is the right of the family, so long as they have male members competent to perform the duties, to have one or more of them appointed Ghatwals. The member appointed however, does not hold on behalf of the family, and the other members of the family have no rights in the land while it is in his hands as Ghatwali.

Where the Zemindar on being released from the performance of Ghatwali duties gave the pattah to four Ghatwals members of a family, granting the lands (which were till then subject to the Ghatwali tenure) in perpetuity of an annual fixed juma, held, that the members of the family other than the four grantees took no beneficiary interest in the lands granted. (Lord Phillimore) RAJA DURGA PRASAD SINGH v. TRIBENI SINGH 46 Cal. 862 = 48 I. ———Ghatwali tenure—Incidents of—Succession—Hindu Law relating impartible estates—Applicability of.

The incidents that attach to the tenure known as Ghatwali are (1) that it is impartible and permanent; (2) that it descends by lineal primogeniture; and (3) that it is alienable at least with the consent of the Zamindar.

Where the family of a ghatwali is governed by the Mitakshara law the devolution of immoveable property in the family must be governed by that law subject to the question of impartibility, unless either there be some special custom of the family to the contrary, or unless there be some peculiar feature inherent in ghatwali tenures, which prevents the operation of the Mitakshara rule of succession in the case of the impartible property. The Ghatwali property is impartible and the sons and the other members of the family take no immediate interest at birth entitling them to claim partition. But in a joint Mitakshara family the course of succession to ghatwali property is not different from that which regulates the succession of other impartible property. The Handwa and Chandwa estates were crown Ghatwalis holding the lands as military tenure directly under the British crown. The sanad issued to the holder by the British Government made the tenure one held directly under the Government, and resumable at the death of the life tenant. The sanction of Government is necessary to validate the succession on the death of each holder. The permanent settlement of 1796 might destroy a military tenure by a new contract with the holder of the tenure but it does not affect the position of the tenure holder with whom the new settlement was not made.

The mere fact that the Ghatwali service had not been demanded or rendered does not show that the services could not be demanded by the Government. Where a Ghatwal had been for generations without rendering military services and the de facto holder of the Ghatwal mortgaged it, it is not open to his heirs to impugn the mortgage on the ground that it is inalienable. (Roe and Coutts, JJ.) RANI KESHOBATI KUMARI v. KUMAR SATYA NIRANJAN CHAKRABARTI. 47 I.C. 179=1918 Pat. 305.

———Mirasi — Gramanattam — Rights of Government and of Mirasdars—Grant of house site by Government—Mirasdar's suit for recovery—Recognition of mirasi rights by the State.

Per Wallis, C. J.—There is no general presumption of Mirasdar's ownership of Nattam. In the absence of evidence of user, but where user is shown the presumption of ownership readily arises. Before the coming of British rule and especially under the Muhammadan rule occupied Nattam was not generally recognised by Government as the private property of Mirasdars and their ownership has not been established subsequently either by Government recognition or by judicial decisions. Per Wallis, C. J. and Ayling, J.—The preferential right of a mirasdar to cultivate waste does not give him any right to eject persons who have got Nattam from Government but entitles him to the sites if necessary. Per Ayling, J.—The rule is not applicable in cases in which Mirasdars have prior to the grant by Government already acquired a title to the particular site either by previous grant or prescription. Though all the incidents of a Mirasi tenure may have a common origin in the status of the Mirasdar, none of them necessarily involves the other. Each requires to be separately established and recognition by the State whether express or implied, is an indispensable condition for enforcing each. Per Kumaraswami Sastri, J.—In Mirasi villages the rights of Government over waste including Nattam and Cheri are subject to the rights of the Mirasdars. The nature and extent of such rights are not uniform throughout the Presidency but vary, and the onus is on the Mirasdars to prove that any specified incidents attach to Mirasi rights in any particular district there being no presumption that Gramanattam is the exclusive property of the Mirasdars. ———Mirasi tenure—Chingleput District—Subordinate proprietors—Swatantram—Ulkudi.

In a mirasi tenure, produce of land is devided into (1) Melvaram or the Royal share, (2) Thunduvaram or landlord's, and (3) Kudiwaram or the occupant's share. The history of the Mirasi tenure in the Chingleput District discussed.

A Payakar whom a mirasdar introduces for cultivation purposes, if he permanently settles in the village and his descendants enjoy the lands as tenants for about 100 years becomes an Ulkudi Payakar with permanent rights of occupancy and acquires in a sense Kudiwaram rights.

Swatantrams include Thunduvaram and mean a certain portion of the gross produce raised by Ulkudi tenants and due to the Mirasdar.

The presumption in the case of an Inamdar is that at the time of the grant of the inam, he is not the owner of the Kudiwaram right. (20 I.C. 374 and 8 I.C. 365 Dis.)

But in the case of a Mirasdar in Chingleput District to whom an inam was granted long ago it cannot be said that there is a presumption against his owning the Kudiwaram right.

LAND TENURE—Rent-free Tenure.

Dohli tenure is a peculiar kind of tenure to be found in south-eastern districts of the Punjab. ———Ryotwari—Occupancy right — Pattadar—Long enjoyment and low and un-varying rent—Transfer of holdings by tenant—Effect of.

In the case of lands held under the ryotwari settlements the presumption is that the ryotwari pattadar is the owner of the land and the burden is on his tenants claiming a permanent right of occupancy to prove it. Mere length of enjoyment in the capacity of tenants or parukudies irrespective of their circumstances does not raise a presumption of occupancy right. The inference as to occupancy right depends on a consideration of the whole circumstances of the case and among these circumstances are the continuance of the lands in the same hands at low and unvarying rents and the recognition by the landlord of the tenant's rights to transfer the holding. The onus of proving a permanent tenancy under a ryotwari pattadar is on the tenant setting up such right. Mere description by the tenants as kudikanaidars, Ulavadaikani mirasdars in the village could not confer occupancy rights on them. Nor does the fact that the tenants have made transfers of the holdings without objection or demur by the trustees confer a permanent occupancy right by estoppel. ———Service tenure—Karamkari and Adimayavana tenures—Inalienability and forfeitability—Custom—Forfeiture—Waiver, evidence of.

Karamkari and Adimayavana tenures are not inalienable by custom in South Malabar and the Jenmi is not entitled to forfeit them on alienation. The burden is on the landlord to prove the custom of inalienability and forfeitability of such tenures. Evidence relating to Pravarthianubhavam grants which are grants for the performance of future services is inadmissible in considering the question of the existence or otherwise of the custom of inalienability and forfeitability as the resumption of Pravarthianubhavam grants arises under the general law itself and not from any special custom. A right of holding on alienation and even inalienability of it cannot be inferred from the mere existence of a right of escheat in the landlord on failure of the grantee's heirs. Where resumability does not follow inalienability the right of resumption and re-entry on alienation must be expressly given. Prima facie alienation of a portion of a holding will offend against the rule of inalienability if there is one and unless it can be shown that under the very custom which imposes the rule of inalienability the rule does not apply to partial alienations. A partial alienation will be sufficient to work a forfeiture. Ignorance on the part of the alienee of an inalienable holding as to the inalienability and forfeitability of such a tenure cannot raise any estoppel against the landlord if he was in no way responsible for such ignorance; nor can the fact that the landlord did not exercise his right of enforcing forfeiture in the case of previous alienations. (Ayling and Krishnan, JJ.) ZAMORIN OF CALICUT v. UNIKAT KARNAVAN SAMU NAIR.

———Tenure in Oudh—Lord Canning's Proclamation—Outram's Proclamations—Settlement decrees—Settlement in Oudh.

The effect of Lord Canning's Proclamation was to divest all the landed property from the proprietors in Oudh and to vest it in the British Government. Outram's Proclamation cannot be taken to have any operation inconsistent with that of Lord Canning. No rights of occupation which were possessed by any one prior to 15—3—1868 can now be put forward to establish a title by adverse possession against the British Government. All who now claim title to lands in Oudh must claim through Government or prove sixty years' adverse possession counting from the date of Canning's Proclamation. Settlement decrees passed under the First Regular Settlement conferred no new title upon Government. They were based on a recognition of title which had accrued to the Government under Canning's Proclamation. Held, on a construction of the Financial Commissioner's letter dated 7—8—1868 that it declared that the land occupied by houses in the city of Lucknow was the property of the owner of the houses, that the declaration extended to all areas within the city including the abadi areas of Baraulia-Qutubpur Khalispur and Iradatnagar, that the Financial Commissioner had power to make such declaration and that even if he had not, it was supplied subsequently by implication, so as to constitute it a ratification of the Financial Commissioner's Act. Unoccupied lands were, in the settlement, treated as Nazul and that the Financial Commissioner's letter does not purport to transfer any title in such lands. But it is not correct to say that land upon which the ruins of a house are standing is unoccupied. (Lindsay, J. C. and Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.) BARATI v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

In the lease of the plff. the land was thus described, "land lying within the boundaries as shown in the map which is in the settlement papers and appertaining to the Sadarkahs mahal, etc." and again in the schedule as "4 drones, 14 kanis of land in dag No. 1742-13796 of the present survey, etc." The defts.' land was similarly described in his lease. 'Land lying within the boundaries as shown in the map which is in the settlement papers, etc.' and in the Schedule as "1 drone 5 gandas of land in all covered by dag No. 1742-13797 of the present survey, etc." It was admitted that the reference to the map in the leases had this effect, that it should be treated as incorporated in the leases and forming part of the documents. If things stood alone, there would have been no question that each party would be entitled to the dag as shown in the map as forming his parcel and the boundary line would have been the line drawn in the map. In the map, however, at the place where the boundary line had been drawn a gopath had been depicted, but as a matter of fact there was no gopath in the locality. There was, however, actually a gopath in existence further to the south of the boundary line as drawn in the map. Held, that the plff. was entitled to all the lands up to the line as drawn in the map, without reference to the actual site of the gopath. The map was referred to in the leases not for the purpose of showing the site of the gopath, which is not mentioned at all, but for the purpose of showing the boundary lines, and the mistake in the drawing of the gopath at the place was immaterial. As soon as there is an adequate and sufficient definition with convenient certainty, of what is intended to pass by a deed, any subsequent erroneous addition will not vitiate it. ——Construction—Lease at fixed rent.

The use of the words putrapoutradi krame indicate that it was intended to be a perpetual lease. In the body of the document there was in one place an undertaking by the tenant to pay fixed rent, and in another portion the tenant undertook to pay in addition to the fixed rent, certain other sums, i.e., road cess and public works cess as assessed and any tax or additional amount that may be assessed or settled by the Government in future in respect of lands of the tenancy. Held, the tenancy was intended to be a lease at a fixed rent. The restrictive clauses "the tenant undertakes not to excavate any ditch or tank, prepare bricks, construct pucca buildings and cut down trees, etc., without taking a written order expressing consent from the landlord" do not modify the nature of the tenancy. (Mookerjee and Cholzner, JJ.) GOLAM RAHAMAN MISTRI v GURDAS KUNDU CHOUDHRI. 38 C. L. J. 350 : 1923 Cal. 505.

Where a lease deed provided for enjoyment at a certain fixed rent from son to grandson, permanent and heritable rights are conferred but not the maximum of rent leviable. (Richardson and Ghose, JJ.) RAJ MOHAN PODDER v. TARAPROSANNA. 1923 Cal. 354.

A document purporting to be a lease provided "You will enjoy from generation to generation keeping intact the boundaries as before. The profit and loss are yours. You will on no account be entitled to claim a reduction of rent. When required by me you will submit to Jarip Jamabandi.....If any new imposition be made by the Government you will pay it besides the Jama of this Patta." Held that the lease was not one for fixed rent. (Chatterjea and Pearson, JJ.) KRISHNENDRA NATH SARKAR v. RANI KAMANI DEBI. 1923 Cal. 351.

The fact that the lessee was given possession of an area of land less than that granted by the lease does not justify his encroaching on other lands of the lessor outside the area specified in the boundaries. The portion of a lease governing the lessee's right to build was as follows :—"You shall not be competent to make big excavations but you shall be competent to construct pucca wall, pucca privy and pucca plinth of the tin ghur." Held, that reading the clause as a whole, it was the intention of the parties that the lessee's right to erect permanent structures should be limited to those specified in the condition and that this condition amounted to a prohibition to build any other structures than those expressly mentioned (Newbould and Cuming, JJ.) DINANATH DAS v. GOPAL CHANDRA DAS. 1923 Cal. 309.

——Construction—Kabuliyat— Provision for payment of salami—Involuntary transfer— Covenant against alienation.

A kabuliyat stipulated that at every transfer a certain salami should be paid. The tenure in respect of which this kabuliyat was given was sold in execution of a money decree. The landlord subsequently sued for recovery of the stipulated salami. Held, that the covenant did not cover an involuntary sale. A condition in a lease restraining transfer is not applicable to a case of involuntary transfer unless there are words in the covenant which clearly make it applicable to such a transfer. The transfer in execution of a money decree cannot be treated as on the same footing as a voluntary sale. 42 C. 172 foll. 21 C. W. N. 117 ref. to. ———Construction—Stipulation for rent in kind or money value—Landlord if can recover market value.

Where a tenant executed a kabuliyat promising to pay rent Rs. 4 in cash and 91 arts of paddy and on his failure to pay the said rent and share of paddy the landlord would be competent to realise the said rent and Rs. 36 as price of the paddy. Held, that on the tenant making default in paying the landlord's share of the paddy the latter was not entitled to recover the market value of the paddy at the time but only the fixed amount of Rs. 36. The question whether a landlord is entitled to anything more than the value of the paddy stipulated to be paid, on default of payment by the tenant, is one depending on the construction of the kabuliyat in each case. 15 C. ———Construction—Mukarari Mourashi—Rent partly in money and partly in kind—Liability of tenant.

A mukarari lease provided that the rent was payable partly in kind and partly in cash and if the former was delivered, the tenant should pay a certain sum to be fixed by the parties as its value. Held, that the parties intended to fix the value of the rent in kind and on default of payment in specie and that the tenant was liable only to pay the sum fixed. Per Banerjee J.—The words 'jamma abadharit' meant more than a provisional settlement of rents for the incidental purpose of ascertaining stamp duty. The terms were that the lessee should pay a certain amount of rent and must also pay toll over the stipulated rent as part of the rent in respect of goods that should be sold in the shop or on boat or on road on certain terms. Held, defendant was liable to pay toll not only for goods sold in his shop but also for those taken from his shop and carried by boat or on road to some other near place and sold there. ———Construction—Consent decree empowering landlord to eject tenant on refusal to cultivate—Right to sue for rent.

A landlord and tenant agreed under a consent decree that if the tenant refused to cultivate the land and to deliver to the landlord his share of the produce the landlord could eject the tenant, Held, that the clause relating to the ejectment was in the nature of a clause for re-entry and had not the effect of depriving the landlord of his ordinary right to sue for the arrears of rent due by the tenant. ———Construction — Taluka patta—Covenant for re-entry whether personal or runs with the land.

The interest created by a Taluka patta constitutes prima facie a permanent tenure, where there was nothing to the contrary either in the surrounding circumstances or in the instrument. When the taluka patta was silent as to heritability and transferability but during the period of sixty years the tenancy had devolved from father-to son and had formed the subject of many transfers and the rent fixed had never varied, the lease was held to be permanent. Though there was a covenant in the lease that if the grantor had personal necessity the grantee would be bound to relinquish the land, the covenant was a personal one and ceased to be operative on the death of the grantor. The covenant must be construed strictly against the grantor and most beneficially in favour of the grantee. The question whether a covenant in a lease is a personal one or runs with the land depends upon the true intention of the grantor and the grantee to be ascertained from the construction of the terms of the grant. ——Construction—Abwab or rent.

In a lease the tenants agreed not to claim abatement of rent on account of flood, dispossession or other grounds of like nature, but did not mention 'diluvion.' Held, that it was still within their rights to claim abatement on the ground of diluvion. ——Construction—Nim-howla lease—Stipulation against voluntary alienation—Execution sale—Stranger purchaser—Landlord if can sue original tenants for rent and obtain decree.

At a sale in execution the plaintiff purchased the right, title and interest of the tenants in a nim-howla tenure. Notwithstanding that the purchase by plaintiff was duly notified to the landlord, the latter sued the tenants for rent and obtained a decree. The plaintiff sued for a declaration that this decree was not binding on him and that the tenure in his hands was not liable to sale in execution. The lease which created the nim-howla provided, 'Let it be known that if you transfer the nim-howla tenure, you will transfer it to me for proper price, and will not transfer it to any other person. If you transfer it to any other person such transfer will be invalid.' Held, that there being no covenant against involuntary alienations and no covenant for re-entry the plaintiff acquired a good title by his purchase and consequently the landlord could not sue the original tenants to obtain a decree whereby he could proceed against the tenure in the hands of the plaintiff. ——Construction—Agreement to pay Government dues—Remission—Right to benefit.

Under a Patni lease, the annual rent was fixed at a certain sum out of which Rs. 1,080-8-7 was to be paid by the tenant, on account of Government dues payable by the landlord and the balance was to be paid to the landlord as Malikana. The lease provided that if any new imposts be levied by Government in the future the tenant would be liable for the same but there was no provision for the case of any remission. Except for the Malikana, the landlord was to have no right and interest whatever. Subsequently the Government demand was reduced. Held, that the landlord was entitled to the benefit of this sum, that is, he may realise it from the tenant in addition to the Malikana. 33 C. 140 ; 32 C. 169, Dist. 14 C. Whenever an occasion arose to which the clause was properly applicable, the tenant was bound to pay the landlord 25 per cent. of the money recovered from a chief without deduction of any commission or other expense incurred by the tenant. A lessee undertook to pay all the municipal taxes payable for buildings erected on the land demised and the lessor agreed to pay only quit-rent. Subsequent to the lease the Municipality began to levy separate assessments on the buildings and the lands. Held, that on the construction of the lease, the lessee was bound to pay all taxes leviable under Ss. 129, 145, 148 of the City of Madras Municipal Act. Therefore I have fixed the rent of the field which is given to you by Fundabi for constructing a ginning factory and is in your possession at Rs. 120 per annum, and given it to you in order that you may keep it in your possession as long as you please. You should always keep this land in your possession for the use of your ginning factory, I will not ask it back." Held, that it was an agreement with a particular company, the original lessees, that they should hold the land as long as they liked. A perpetual lease is determined by the death of the lessee. 4 Bom. 424, Ref. and on the same principle where the company to whom the land is given for a specified purpose is defunct, the lease comes to an end. ——— Construction — Lease for purposes of cultivation and building tenants' houses.

Where the lease of a certain land was for purposes of cultivation and building tenants' houses at a certain amount of annual rent and where an appreciable portion of the land was occupied by non-agricultural tenants, Held it was a mixed lease, containing both agricultural and non-agricultural land held under a lump rent. Where under a bemiadi lease, namely a lease without any term, the purpose of the lease was to enable the lessee to erect a gola house and to sell commodities therein, but the lessee was not to construct any pucca building without the express and written permission of the lessor, and the lessee had built a superstructure with the permission of the lessor, Held, that the lease ———Construction—Lease for seven years—Provision for another lease with same conditions—Right of landlord to eject before the expiry of first lease.

Under the terms of a thikapatta the lessee was to enjoy the property for seven years and that after the expiry of that period the lessor was to execute a fresh patta on the same conditions as before and with respect to the same lands. In a suit in ejectment by the landlord after the expiry of the first term of 7 years. Held, that the landlord was not entitled to eject. The lessee was in possession and since the time for the specific performance of the contract of lease for the second period of 7 years had not expired, the effect was the same as if a renewal had been granted. ———Construction—Building lease—Presumption of permanency.

A lease of land measuring 4 bighas for erection of buildings, etc, provided that the lessee was to pay an annual rent of Rs. 180 at the rate of Rs. 45 per bigha and also Zemindari dak cess and other cesses legally payable from the Bengali year 1302. On a question arising as to the construction of the lease, Held, that the lease was one from year to year at an annual rent of Rs. 45 per bigha and though the lessees had power to build, yet it could not be construed to be a permanent lease. Though the fact that a lease is for building purposes raises a presumption that it is a permanent one, yet such presumption cannot outweigh the terms of the lease itself. (*Miller, C. ———Construction—Rent—Provision for payment in kind—Fixing of money value—Rights of landlord.

Where a lease provides for the payment of rent in kind and also fixes the approximate value of the produce, it is open to the landlord to realise the market value of the produce. ———Construction—Assignment or sub-lease.

On a question as to a transaction amounting to an assignment or to an under-lease, the proper test is to see whether the lessee under the head lease has parted with his whole interest or with a greater interest than he himself possessed. If he has,then the instrument of transfer, by whatever name it may be called,is in reality an assignment. The right to surrender the land in lease

(Chapman and Roe, JJ.) PARSHAN KUER v. TULSI KUER. 2 Pat. L. J. 180 : 39 I. C. 658 : 1 Pat. L. W. 447 : 1918 Pat. 11.

Covenant.

———Covenant — Premature termination — Damages.

Where the term of a tenancy under which the rent is payable periodically is brought to a premature termination the lessee is entitled to damages and not to rent for the unexpired term of the lease. ———Covenant for renewal—Option not stating terms of renewal—Presumption.

Where there is a covenant for renewal, if the option doesnot state the terms of the renewal the new lease would be for the same period and on the same terms as the original lease in respect of all the essential conditions thereof except as to the covenant for renewal itself. 20 C. ———Covenant for renewal—Terms of—Silence as to—Presumption.

In the absence of specification of the terms of renewal the renewed lease would be for the same period and on the same terms as the original lease in respect of the essential conditions except the covenant for renewal itself. Silence in the condition as to the terms for which a settlement was to be made does not render a covenant for renewal unenforceable. (Newbould, J.) RASUL GAZI v. ABDUL JALIL KHAN. 33 I. C. 450.

———Covenant—Stipulation in a lease—Lessor to have a right to demand back any land—Refusal to comply with—Action for.

Where a stipulation in a lease provided that the lessor should have a right to demand any portions of the lands required by him, on a proportionate reduction of rent and the lessor having demanded almost all the lands, the lessee refused to comply with it and a suit was brought for khas possession by the lessor. Held, that form of action in such case should have been that of an action for specific performance and not of an action in ejectment. (Stephen and Chatterjee, JJ.) JOGESH CHANDRA ROY v. ANANDA CHARAN CHOWDHURY. 19 I. C. 907.

———Covenant for renewal—Renewal from time to time—Covenant running with the land.

———Covenant for quiet enjoyment—Breach—Eviction

It is settled law that any annoyance on the part of the lessor himself which prevents the lessee from enjoying the demised premises as per terms of the lease amounts to a breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment. It is not necessary that there should be actual eviction, as the same can be inferred from acts like seizure of crops. (Prideaux, A. J. C.) DEBOO v. JIWAN RAO. 1923 Nag. 81.

Where the lessee was bound by the terms of the lease, to give up a portion of land required by the lessor for which proportionate remission in rent should be allowed and the lessor gave notice to the lessee to give up almost all the lands in question and, on refusal, sued for possession, Held, that the proper remedy to ask for would be specific performance and not relief in ejectment. Heritability.

———Heritability—Term fixed— Putra Poutradi Santathi—Meaning of—Collaterals if excluded.

Where a lease for forty years was granted to a person and his putra poutradi santathi, and the lessee died before the expiry of the full term, leaving no lineal descendants, but only collaterals, Held, the words "putra poutradi santathi" when appearing in a will convey an absolute estate of inheritance, alienable and never resumable unless in a particular case some custom were proved which would exclude the ordinary law. 7 Cal. 304 (P. C.) and 31 Cal. 561 followed. There is no difference whether such words be found in a will or lease, and as the properties were leased absolutely for 40 years, it passes to the collaterals on the death of the original lessee. ———Kabuliyat — Construction of—Condition about payment of any tax or road cess—Whether includes income-tax also—Royalty—Nature of.

Where a clause in a Kabuliyat ran as follows: "In respect of land covered by this Kabuliyat or any portion thereof or in respect of coal business if any tax or road cess be assessed on you by Government, then I shall pay the same." Held, the lessee was liable to make good to the lessor the road cess and the Health Board cess also. S. 10 of the Bengal Act (V of 1912) referred. No doubt royalty is one of the sources of the income on which the income-tax is levied ; but income-tax is a personal tax and, therefore, the lessor had no right to recover the amount of the income-tax from the lessee under the above clause. Royalty represents the lessor's share of the profits made from the business. (Das and Adami, JJ.) RAJA NILKANATH v. NIBARAN CHANDRA.

LEASE—Permanency.

——— Mokurrari—Forfeiture— Relief against clause—Nullity.

A mokurrari lease granted before the T.P. Act contained a clause that if default were made in the payment of 3 instalments of rent, the lease should be null and void. Held, the clause was one of nullity, but as there is no distinction between clauses of forfeiture and nullity in India even though the T. ———Permanency—Provision for lessor taking possession in a certain event—Effect.

A provision in Dowl Kabuliyat, that, in the event of the landlord and the tenant not being able to arrive at a new rate of rent after the expiration of the temporary term covered by the kabuliyat, the landlord would be entitled to take possession of the land, was held to be absolutely inconsistent with a plea of permanent interest in the land by the tenant. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) MAHIM CHANDRA PAL v. PRADYAT KUMAR TAGORE. 45 I. C. 651.

———Permanency —Indefinite term—Absence of words indicating permanency or heritability— Renewal, right to.

A kabuliyat recited that lands were settled for five years at a certain rent. After five years the lessee was to take a fresh settlement under a fresh kabuliyat. In case of failure to do so the lessee was to hold and enjoy possession of the land on payment of an excess rent of one anna per rupee every five years. The lessee was not to make a gift, sale or mortgage of the tenure to anybody. Held, that the tenancy after the expiry of five years was for an indefinite period ; but as there were no words of inheritance in the lease nor any circumstances, such as long possession, or the fact of succession to heirs or a series of transfers, the tenure could not be presumed to be a heritable or a permanent one. A pleader who does not hold and has not filed in the suit before the Court his client's general power-of-attorney authorising him generally to compromise suits on behalf of his clients, cannot be recognised by a Court as having any authority to compromise the suit unless he has filed in the suit his client's vakalatnama giving him authority to compromise the suit before the Court. ———Compromise by—Advocate — Failure of client to repudiate in time—Effect of acquiescence —Powers of court to set aside consent orders.

Express authority is not needed for a counsel to enter into a compromise within the scope of the suit. Where there is a limitation of authority and that limitation is communicated to the other side, consent by counsel outside the limits of his authority would be of no effect. But the position is one of difficulty where the limitation is unknown to the other side or when counsel acts on instructions as to a compromise under a misapprehension and not in exercise of that authority which is vested in him as an advocate of the party to the litigation. Principles as laid down in English cases referred to. Where a consent order was passed in the presence and with the sanction of the client and he acquiesced in it for a long time, and long after the drawing up of the order, he changed his mind or found it impossible to comply with the terms thereof, Held, a proper case had not been made out for receiving the order. The Court undoubtedly has a very large discretion in the matter before the order is actually drawn up and perfected, but there is no such discretion where the order has in fact been drawn up and perfected (Das and Bucknill, JJ.) NILMONI CHOUDHURY v. KEDIAR NATH DAGA. 1 Pat. 480 : 3 Pat. L. T. 371 : 1922 P. 232 ———Compromise by—Extent of authority.

The authority of a pleader to compromise a suit on behalf of his client, does not extend to his effecting a compromise in respect of matters outside the scope of the suit. (Miller, C. J. and Jwala Prasad, J.) HERAMBA NATH v. SURENDRA NATH MITTRA: 53 I. C. 20 : 1919 Pat. 465.

LEGAL PRACTITIONER—Costs.

———Compromise by—Authority — General vakalatnama.

A vakalatnama in general terms is wholly insufficient to authorise a vakil either to compromise the suit or to refer it to arbitration. Costs.

———Costs — Attorneys—Personal liability—Unnecessary printing.

The Court ordered the cost occasioned by unnecessary printing of certain matter in the printed paper book of appeal, at the instance of the defendant's attorneys to be paid by the defendant's attorneys personally and not their clients. Similarly with regard to the costs of a Judge's order obtained for the amendment of the memorandum of the appeal by the addition at the instance of the plaintiff's attorneys, of a very unnecessary paragraph asking for relief in respect of a certain matter. Duty of.

———Duty of—Scandalous charges against Judges—Professional misconduct.

Members of the legal profession are under no duty to their clients to make grave and scandalous charges either against Judges or the opposite party on the mere wish of their clients. They are not paupers compelled to obey the dictates of their client where matters of good faith and honourable conduct are concerned. They are agents, not of the man who pays them, but are acting in the administration of justice and are bound to exercise an independent judgment and to conduct themselves with a sense of personal responsibility. ———Duty of—Clients with conflicting interest.

By the custom of the mofussil, a pleader employed legally a party to a proceeding before a court must faithfully and exclusively serve that party throughout the whole proceeding. The pleader in the mofussil is not merely an advocate. He is the confidential legal adviser of his client and plays the role of a solicitor of a Presidency town. For legal advice, for the prosecution of legal proceedings in all their stages, the client is dependent on the pleader. This dependance makes the position of the pleader peculiarly onerous and he must give his exclusive attention to the interests of the client throughout any proceeding in which he is engaged. In winding up proceedings, a single pleader must not represent two different creditors whose interests are known to conflict. A pleader must not accept a vakalatnama when he knows that he cannot act for his client throughout the proceedings. (Batchelor and Heaton, JJ.) GOVERNMENT PLEADER v. BHAGHUBHAI. 36 Bom: 606 : 14 Bom. L. R. 700 : 16 I. C. 788 . 13 Cr. L. J. 913.

———Duty of—Boycott of Courts.

Per Sanderson, C.J.—If a pleader in pursuance of a concerted movement to boycott the Courts, deliberately abstained from attending it, he is guilty of course of conduct which cannot be justified or tolerated. Pleaders have duties and obligations to their clients in respect of the suits and matters entrusted to them. It is an equally important duty and obligation on them to co-operate with the Court in the orderly and pure administration of justice. If a pleader has any complaint against any Subordinate Judge, he has two courses open to him, i. e., to make a representation to the particular Judge, or to the High Court. (Sanderson, C. J., Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) In the matter of TARINI MOHAN BARARI.

26 C. W. N. 580 : 35 C. L. J. 403 : 1923 Cal. 212.

LEGAL PRACTITIONER—Duty of.

———Duty of—Effect of accepting vakalat—Duties and obligations of.

Per Sanderson, C. J.—The acceptance of a vakalatnama which is much more than an authority to act by a pleader entails a duty upon him to attend the Court on the day fixed for the hearing or at least to make arrangements with other pleaders to look to the client's interest. A pleader cannot divest himself of the duty arising by the acceptance of vakalatnama without leave of Court. He is bound to give reasonable notice to the client so as to afford him an opportunity of obtaining other legal assistance. Per Woodroffe, J.:—When a person becomes a pleader he becomes an officer in a judicial system in which his position, rights and duties and the authority to which he is subject are determined. If he has a grievance he must seek the remedy from the administrative authority concerned. It follows that he cannot join in an action to boycott a Court or any particular Judge. It is open to any practitioner for reasons personal to himself to refuse to practice in any particular Court, but he must, if he has accepted a brief, discharge himself in the proper manner. What would be a lawful excuse considered. Mere acceptance of a vakalatnama does not bind the pleader to appear in every day of the proceedings if there are special terms affecting the matter. The acceptance of a general vakalatnama is sufficient to start the case against him, and if there was any special contract the burden of proving this, as a matter specially within his knowledge, is on the pleader. If a pleader stipulates for fees before he does any work, he is not bound to do the work without payment. But if he accepts a vakalatnama without such stipulation, he must proceed to represent him even though unpaid, until he is properly discharged. Per Mookerjee, J.—A pleader who has accepted a vakalatnama and filed it in Court is ordinarily bound to appear and conduct his case in the absence of an agreement to the contrary. If he fails to perform this duty he must be ready to justify his conduct by proof that the client failed to fulfil an implied term of the agreement such as the advance payment of fee, etc. His liability continues till he has discharged himself by recourse to the appropriate procedure. This is not a matter solely between the pleader and the client. Failure to appear renders him liable to disciplinary action by the Court. What would be justifying reasons for absence considered. Fresh vakalatnama is not necessary to entitle the pleader to appear in proceedings subsequent to decree. (Sanderson, C.J., Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) EMPEROR v. RAJANI KANT BOSE.

24 I. C. 283 : 1 L. W. 298.

———Intervention of solicitor—Counsel—Professional etiquette.

Looking to usage and etiquette of the profession, counsel should not undertake any professional work as regards which the relation of counsel and client can arise except on the instructions of a solicitor. No statutory rule of law prevents a litigant from instructing counsel directly or to prevent counsel so instructed from appearing on behalf of a litigant, but eminent Judges emphasized the importance of strict adherence to the long established professional usage in this respect. In the Calcutta High Court departure from this practice is allowed only in the case of appeals from the muffasil. A real and not merely a formal compliance with requirements of professional usage is necessary in this respect which is expedient in the interest of suitors and for the satisfactory administration of justice. Consequently, communications should pass between counsel and attorney and not between counsel and the lay client without the intervention of the attorney. Though there is no rule of law preventing a litigant from instructing his Counsel directly, it is expedient in the interests of the suitors and for satisfactory administration of justice that the usuage obtaining on the Original Side of the Calcutta High Court that counsel should take their instructions only from attorneys, should be adhered to. LEGAL PRACTITIONER—Lien.

The right of a solicitor claiming a lien will largely depend on the circumstances under which he has ceased to act for his client. Whether the solicitor has discharged himself or whether he has been discharged by his client is the test. In other words, whether the solicitor has ceased to act for his client owing to an unjustifiable action of his own or whether he has ceased owing to the action of his client. In an administrative action the obligation of the solicitor to give inspection of and to produce documents that are in his possession and over which he has a lien is confined to those cases in which they are essential to determine those questions arising in the normal administration proceedings when the estate is being actually administered. Boughton v. Boughton, 23 Ch. ——— Lien — Enforcement of costs—Direct order to pay—Jurisdiction of Court.

The Court has jurisdiction to enforce, in a proper case the solicitor's lien by making a direct order for payment to the solicitor by the opposite party of such costs. 2 C. W. N. 508 Foll. Where the original client was dead and his legal representatives were not people of substance and were unable to pay, it is a proper case for the Court to exercise discretion and pass an order for payment of such costs to the solicitor by the opposite party. The lien should be subject to other equities if any. (Chaudhuri, J.) BHUPENDRA NATH BHOSE v. E. D. SASSOON & Co. 43 Cal. 932 : 38 I. C. 30 : 21 C. W. N. 106.

——— Lien—Extent of moveable and immoveable property recovered in the suit.

An attorney has a lien for his costs over the properties moveable or immoveable, recovered in the suit of his client but he cannot get a personal decree against an infant client. (Chaudhuri, J.) KUMAR KRISHNA DUTT v. HARI NARAYAN GANGULI. 43 Cal. 676 : 33 I. C. 708 : 20 C. W. N. 537.

——— Lien—When modified—Change of solicitors.

If a change of solicitors in the course of an action takes place the former solicitor's lien is not taken away but modified according as his discharge is by himself or by his client ; in the former case he is entitled to have an undertaking from the new solicitor that he should hold the papers without prejudice to his lien and to return them intact to him after the action is over. in the latter case he cannot be compelled to hand over or produce the papers so long as his costs are unpaid. (Sanderson, C. J., Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) PRABHU LAL v. KUMAR KRISHNA DUTT. 20 C W. N. 437 : 33 I. C. 73 : 23 C. L. J. 326.

——— Lien—Money in cash deposit.

Where a Barrister does not obtain a decree in favour of his client there are no fruits on which he can claim a lien. When he allows money of the client deposited in Court to be taken away he cannot subsequently claim a lien on the amount. (Hartnoll and Twomey, JJ.) ROBERTSON v. KO CHEIK. 29 I. C. 870 : 8 L. B. R. 70.

Misconduct.

——— Misconduct—Unfounded imputations in open Court against the fairness and impartiality of the presiding Judge—Duty of pleaders towards their client and the Court.

Unfounded imputations in open court against the fairness and impartiality of the presiding Judge amounts to professional misconduct. (Sanderson. C. J. and Richardson. J.) MAHENDRA LAL ROY, In re. 27 C. W. N. 88 : 1924 Cal. 550.

——— Misconduct—Application for renewal of certificate—Suppression of facts—Discharge from Government Service.

A pleader who had been discharged from Government service for improper conduct in connection with a criminal case concealed the fact, and applied for renewal of the Pleader's certificate. Held that though the conduct of the pleader in relation to the criminal case was open to grave comment, yet, the renewal of the certificate could be granted. The High Court ordered the renewal of the certificate after six months. (Mookerjee, C. J. and Fletcher, J.) MUKUNDA LAL DHAR, In the matter of. 37 C. L. J 391 : 27 C. W. N. 528.

——— Misconduct—Defiance of law—Taking the law into his own hands.

Where a pleader had deliberately taken the law into his own hands and defied the orders of constituted authority and where he expressed no regret for his past conduct and has given no assurance for future conduct, held the mere warning is not a sufficient punishment. (Miller, C. J., Mullick and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) BABU MADHEVA SINGH, In the matter of 1923 Pat. 42 : 1923 P. 185 (S. B.).

Negligence.

——— Negligence—Dismissal of appeal—Liability to client.

Per Richards, C. J. :—If it is shown that an advocate who is a Barrister or other professional gentlemen received and accepted instructions to file an appeal but his client lost his right of appeal as a result of his negligence to file the appeal or application in time he will be liable to the client. (Richards, C. J. and Banerjee, J.) BUDHU v. DIWAN. 37 All. 267 : 28 I. C. 265 : 13 A. L. J. 286.

LEGAL PRACTITIONER—Negligence.

——Negligence—Pleader's responsibility for fraud committed by his clerk—Remedy of client.

A pleader is responsible for any fraud perpetrated by his clerks on his clients. The principles of agency are not applicable without reservation, to the relation between a client and his pleader. The conduct of a pleader who is guilty of fraud or such gross negligence as would, in law, amount to fraud, cannot bind his client and the Court has power to restore an appeal dismissed for such conduct on the part of the appellant's pleader. The Court may in its discretion leave the appellant to his remedy against the pleader by an action for damages. (Sundara Aiyar and Spencer, JJ.) MURUGA CHETTY v. RAJASAWMI. (1912) M. W. N. 332 : 11 M. L. T. 280 : 14 I. C. 823 : 22 M. L. J. 284.

Return of brief.

——Return of brief—Return of fees.

Where an advocate accepted a brief containing instructions to appear for a client but in consequence of other work returned the brief to his attorney and claimed to have earned the consultation fee marked on the brief. Held, he should have returned the whole fee as the consultation was only with a view to attending at the trial. (Sanderson, C. J. and Chaudhuri, J.) In re AN ADVOCATE. 44 Cal. 741 : 42 I. C. 63 : 26 C. L. J. 605.

Selection of Junior.

——Selection of Junior.

The practice of one counsel already engaged in the case selecting the other counsel who should be briefed with him is contrary to the traditions and to the best interests of the profession and ought to be discouraged. (Sanderson, C. J. and Chaudhuri, J.) AN ADVOCATE, In re 44 Cal. 741 : 42 I. C. 63 : 26 C. L J. 605.

Transfer of brief.

——Transfer of brief—Failure of pleader to appear on account of illness—Pleader engaging another to conduct the case—Refund of fees.

It is doubtful whether a client is entitled legally to claim refund of fees, because his pleader being absent on account of illness, sent a substitute in accordance with the power of attorney and the client refused to engage him. In case of neglect client is entitled to refund. (Chevis, J.) DEVI PRASAD v. RAM RAKHA MAL. 33 I. C. 993 : 20 P. W. R. 1916.

——Transfer of brief—Pleader appearing for another—High Court rules.

Where a pleader appears for another who is unable at the moment to attend court he ought to inform the court that he is so appearing. (Carnduff and Richardson, JJ.) JOGESH CHANDRA GUPTA, In the matter of. 17 Cr. L. J. 1916 : 33 I. C. 831 : 20 C. W. N. 283.

Withdrawal from Case.

——Withdrawal from case—Grounds—Notice What amounts to.

A Solicitor may withdraw on good grounds which include misconduct of an offensive character or such misbehaviour on the part of the client as makes it impossible for a self-respecting solicitor to continue to act for him. It is incumbent upon the Attorney to give reasonable notice to the client of his intention to withdraw from the case. That the Attorney would apply to be discharged from the case which application comes on for hearing before the Court the next day does not mean giving reasonable notice to the client. (Sanderson, C. J., Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) PRABHU LAL v. KUMAR KRISHNA DUTT. 20 C. W. N. 443 : 33 I. C. 78 : 23 C. L. J. 473.

LEGAL PRACTITIONER—Miscellaneous.

——Withdrawal from case—Implied—Non-payment of out-of-pocket expenses.

The refusal of Attorney to go on acting unless his out-of-pocket expenses are paid by the client amounts to a discharge of Attorney by himself and he, thenceforward, cannot claim to retain the papers when they are wanted for continuing the litigation. (Sanderson, C. J., Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) PRABHU LAL v. KUMAR KRISHNA DUTT. 20 C. W. N. 437 : 33 I. C. 73 : 23 C. L. J. 326.

——Withdrawal from case—Implied—Non-payment of necessary funds.

An Attorney discharges himself by refusing to proceed with a suit because the client does not put him in funds. The contract of the Attorney is an entire contract to carry on the litigation to its termination subject to his being paid. (Fletcher, J.) MOHESHPUR COAL CO., LD. v. JOTINDRA NATH GUPTA. 40 Cal. 386 : 18 I. C. 315 : 17 C. W. N. 278.

Witness.

——Witness—Counsel likely to be witness in a cause—Acceptance of brief.

If counsel knows or has reason to believe he will be an important witness in the case a retainer therein ought not to be accepted by him. If he finds he is likely to be a witness during the course of the trial he ought not to continue to appear unless his retiring would jeopardise the client's interest. If counsel knows that his own professional conduct is likely to come in question in the cause he must not accept a retainer or if he accepts it without such knowledge, he must return it. There is nothing inherently unprofessional in counsel giving evidence, in a case where he appears, as to facts that happened before or after the retainer but counsel must not testify for or against his client, on matters which are not merely formal. A counsel appearing in a case ought to give his deposition if he can thereby throw light on the case. (Woodroffe, Coxe and Chatterjee, JJ.) D. WESTON v. PEARY MOHUN. 40 Cal. 898 : 23 I. C. 25[illegible] : 18 C. W. N. 185.

——Witness—Appearance in case where his evidence is likely to be material.

Though it is desirable that counsel should not appear in a case in which evidence is likely to be material, there is no rigid rule preventing the court from examining the pleader at any stage of the suit when such a thing is necessary for the ends of justice. (Kumaraswami Sastri, J.) LODD GOVINDAS v. RUKMANI BHAI. 29 I. C. 135 : 17 M. L. T. 382.

Miscellaneous.

——Agreement not to practice for a certain time—Breach—Injunction.

LEGAL PRACTITIONER—Miscellaneous.

Where two branches of the legal profession (Barrister and Solicitor) are amalgamated in a particular place, a person who carries on both branches and is a legal practitioner in that place may enter into an agreement not to practise for a reasonable time. In case of breach of such an agreement without justification or excuse, the court will grant an injunction. (Lord Macnaughten). HOME v. DOUGLAS.

———Reference by the Board of Revenue to High Court—Right of pleader to be heard.

On a reference to the High Court by the Board of Revenue on a matter arising in the mofussil, Vakils are entitled to be heard. (Mookerjee, C. J., Fletcher and Walmsley, JJ.) BIRENDRA KISHORE v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

25 C. W. N. 80 : 61 I. C. 112 : 32 C. L. J. 433.

———Judge—Competency of to try case, in which he was Counsel for one of the parties.

Judges voluntarily decline to hear cases with which they were connected as Counsel before their elevation to the Bench This practice is but an evolution of the elementary maxim that no man should be a Judge in his own suit and preside in a case in which he is not wholly disinterested and impartial. But this principle does not apply when objection is taken to Judge trying a cause on the ground that he had, before his appointment, acted as Counsel in other matters for one of the parties. It is no objection to a Judge trying a case that before his appointment he was Counsel in other matters for one of the parties. The fact that a Judge was prior to elevation to the Bench engaged in the particular cause is no disqualification, though according to long usage a Judge would refuse to adjudicate upon a case if he had been engaged as Counsel therein. (Mookerjee and Fletcher, JJ.) JACOB AND CO. v. RASHBIHARI GHOSE. 57 I. C. 22 : 39 C. L. J. 313.

———Capacity to be an arbitrator.

A pleader is not incompetent to be an arbitrator simply because on some occasions he was engaged by one of the parties as his pleader. (Fletcher and Newbould, JJ.) RAJENDRA NATH DAS v. ABDUL HAKIM KHAN. 39 I. C. 767.

———Professional practice.

When a suit for rent is in contemplation by the lessor, and one of the tenants, (who were joint) approaches the plff.'s pleader for the purposes of seeing whether he could settle the action he must be implied to have authority to act on behelf of all the defts. ———Privilege—Full Bench.

The question whether a Counsel has exceeded the license given him for conducting the case must be heard by the Full Bench. 10 M. 28 ; 2 Bom. L. R. 3 Ref. (Fletcher, J.) PEARY MOHUN DAS v. DONALD WESTON. 9 I. C. 509.

———Purchase of subject-matter of suit—Pre-emption—Payment of money—Right to embursement.

LEGAL PRACTITIONER—Miscellaneous.

Where a pleader paid the pre-emption money out of his own pocket for his minor client and claimed the pre-empted property on the ground of its sale to him by the minor's next friend, he is entitled only to a decree for money against the client under S. 65 of the Contract Act. A pleader who agrees to conduct a case for his client without remuneration is not afterwards entitled to claim it from the client's representatives. 12 P. L. R. 1916 : 30 I. C. 513 : 108 P. W. R. 1915.

———Mukhtear—Status and position of.

A Mukhtear is an attorney, whether appointed specially or generally or certificated as a legal practitioner. A Mukhtearnamah is a document which empowers him to act for the person by or on whose behalf the document is executed and includes a power-of-attorney in favour of a person other than a certified Mukhtear. (Reid, C. J., Kensington and Chevis, JJ.) GANPAT v. PREM SINGH. 108 P. W. R. 1912 : 15 I. C. 122 : 202 P. L. R. 1912.

———Perjury—Conviction for—Effect, Propriety of conviction if open to challenge—Matters to be considered—Removal by Benchers—Effect.

The conviction of a legal practitioner for perjury is good ground for striking off his name from the roll of practitioners. In deciding the question, the propriety of the conviction cannot be questioned, but the court can go into the facts to find out for itself the extent of the moral turpitude involved. Where the conviction is by a foreign court but the law is the same as in India and there has been a fair trial, the same principles will apply. An order of disbarment is not conclusive for all time, if circumstances change and the court is convincted that the delinquent bas been brought to a higher sense of honour and duty, the order can be cancelled. During the interval if the practitioner leads a honourable life, the court can take that matter into consideration. Disbarment of a member of the English Bar by the Benchers of his Inn does not ipso facto lead to his being struck off the rolls of an Indian High Court. The matter would have to be decided under the discretion given by the Letters Patent. (Schwabe, C. J., Coutts Totter and Krishnan, JJ.) In the matter of an ADVOCATE OF THE HIGH COURT.

———Right to appear—Powers of District Magistrate over private pleaders—General directions to Subordinate Magistrates—Revision.

A District Magistrate has no power to issue general directions to his subordinate Magistrates to allow a person to practise as a private pleader in their courts. If however a particular pleader is aggrieved by any order of the District Magistrate or other magistrate refusing to hear him he can apply in revision to the High Court. —— S. 6—Suspension of practice on entering Government service—Calcutta High Court Rules, R. 32.

Where a practitioner is suspended from practice owing to his accepting a Government service, and he applies for renewal of the permission after his discharge from such service, he should make a full and true disclosure of the facts which led to his removal from service. ——S. 6—Females as pleaders—Calcutta High Court Rules, R. 18.

The whole Act contemplates admission of males only for legal profession. From the history of immemorial time, either in Hindu, Buddhist or Mahomedan Rules, females were never allowed to be enrolled as pleaders ; the Act removed the disabilities of men only. Females cannot be allowed to practise as pleaders under this Act, though masculine gender includes females in the Universities Act. (*Sanderson, C. ——S. 6—Rules framed under—Professional misconduct

A transaction by which a pleader advances money to his client on interest is a void transaction under Cl. 8 of para. 267 of the Oudh Civil Digest framed under S. 6 of the Legal Practitioner's Act, though the transaction may not be void, under S. 23 of the Contract Act; the action though not absolutely forbidden by law is opposed to public policy being a violation of the rule which imposes in the public interest, certain restriction upon dealings between pleader and their clients and therefore the transaction is void. ——Ss. 10 and 32—Appearance in Courts without pleader's license—Proper procedure—O. 3, R. 1, C. P. C.

A Barrister should not complain to the Deputy Commissioner about the appearance of a certain person in courts without a pleader's certificate without asking for any specific relief, what should be done would be to petition to the Judge (Dist.) asking the man to be punished under S. 32 of the Legal Practioners Act and the Judge should then proceed to find out whether the person complained about is practising in contravention of S. 10 of the Act or whether his appearances are covered by O. 3, R. 1, C. P. C. (Hartnall, O. C. J.) MAUNG GYI v. MAUNG SEIN NYUN. 8 Bur. L. T. 280 : 33 I. C. 669 : 8 L. B. R. 531.

——Ss. 12, 13 and 14—Pleader keeping a common gambling house—Suspension from practice.

The conviction of a pleader under S. 6 of the Towns Nuisance Act for using his office as a common gambling house implies a defect in character which unfits him to be a pleader within S. 12 of the Legal Practitioners Act. Having regard to the novelty of the case the High Court suspended the pleader from practice for a period of six months only. In a proceeding under S. 12 of the Lega Practitioners Act the whole of the procedure prescribed with regard to charges under Ss. 13 and 14 need not be followed. The Court should not re-try the case which ended in a conviction of the pleader. The only question to be considered is whether the offence of which the pleader has been convicted implies a defect of character unfitting him to be a pleader. Abandonment of case.

——Ss. 13 and 14—Abandonment of case.

A pleader acts improperly in abandoning his client's case while in the midst of the client's examination-in-chief. After once taking up his client's case he ought to have seen that it was terminated. (Stephen and Mullick, JJ.) BABU BENI MADHUB DAS, In the matter of.
20 I. C. 139 : 17 Cr. L. J. 379.

——S. 13—Abandonment of case—Wilful neglect of pleader to appear

Plea of non-payment of fees. A pleader is guilty of misconduct if after receipt of full fees he wilfully neglects to appear and conduct a case. Per Sundara Aiyar, J.:—Wilful neglect to appear after receipt of full fees is worse than gross negligence and amounts to a fraudulent conduct. A plea of non-payment of fees as excuse for non-appearance is useless in the absence of an agreement that it must be paid previously. Per Sankaran Nair, J.—In the absence of such an agreement or at least notice to the party in time, a Vakil must appear and conduct the case though the fee or a portion thereof remains unpaid. (Benson, O. C. J., Sankaran Nair and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.) MUNI REDDI v. VENKATA ROW 37 Mad. 238 : 12 M. L. T. 815 : (1912) M. W. N 1029 : 13 Cr. L. J. 800 : 17 I. C. 544 : 23 M. L. J. 447.

——S 13 Abandonment of case—Acceptance of fees for whole case—Failure to appear.

In the absence of a special contract to the contrary, the fees accepted by an Advocate must be taken to be for the whole case. Where a case requiries more hearings than anticipated and the advocate refuses to appear unless a further fee is paid to him, he is guilty of professional misconduct. A writing to evidence the term of the engagement between the advocate and the client is always desirable. (Ormand and Twomey, JJ.) A FIRST GRADE PLEADER, In the matter of.

——S. 13—Acting without instructions—General rules and orders of Calcutta High Court Rule 45 (e)—Receiving instructions from unauthorised persons—Bona fide mistake.

On the instructions of the cleak of a pleader who has left the court to practise in another court, another pleader signed the vakalatnama for the plff. and withdrew the money for plff. deposited by the judgment-debtor in court, and handed it over to the clerk bona fide believing that the clerk had taken out his "card" for the year while in fact he had not. The pleader was held to be guilty of contravening the provisions of S. 13 (a) of Legal Practitioners Act and of rule 45 (e) of General Rules and Orders of High Court and deserved severe censure for his act. (Chatterjee and Sheepshanks, JJ.) JOGENDRA CHANDRA NANDY, In the matter of. 36 I. C. 442.

——S. 13—Acting without instructions.

A pleader receiving instructions from an authorised person, who is neither the recognised agent, guardian, servant, relative or authorised to give instruction on behalf of the party, is guilty of misconduct, under S. 13. (Chamier, C. J., Sharfuddin and Atkinson, JJ.) JAGAL CHANDRA In the matter of. 17 Cr. L. J. 229 : 34 I. C. 645 : 20 C. W. N. 1016 (F. B.)

——Ss. 13 and 14—Acting without instructions—Instructions to practitioners directly from clients or their duly authorised agent.

Instructions must be received by legal practitioners directly from clients or their duly authorised agents : gross negligence tantamount to misconduct is attributable to a mukhtear who receives and acts on a mukhtearnama from an unauthorised person without proper inquiry. 12 Cr. L. J. 12 : 9 I. C. 130 : 8 A. L. J. 151.

——S. 13—Agreement for payment on success.

To agree with a client for inam or present over and above his fees in the event of success, is disgraceful for an advocate. His conduct accounts to gross misconduct in his profession if he attempts to extract more supplemental fee at the last moment from his client, on whose failure to pay he absents himself from the case. The failure of a barrister in exacting money as supplemental fee does not absolve him from his original obligation to his client and the court. (*Scott, C. LEGAL PRACTITIONER'S ACT (XVIII OF 1879), S. 13—Altering document.

——S. 13—Altering document—Legal substitution of names in summons.

Where a solicitor acting for a plff. who had been refused a warrant for the detention of the deft. by a Civil Court, started a criminal process on the same subject-matter, and, by means of allegations to which the Civil Court attached no credit, obtained his warrant from a different Court, almost as a matter of course, his conduct does not necessarily involve any punishable contempt of the Civil Court. The law does not restrict a litigant to a single form of remedy and he may pursue all the legal remedies appropriate to his grievance. Where a solicitor substituted the names of two witnesses in a summons on the ground that the persons originally summoned were totally ignorant of the facts of the case. Held, that the solicitor was not guilty of forgery, as there was no intent to defraud and at the most he committed an irregularity for which some pecuniary penalty on his part was an adequate punishment. The Privy Council set aside the order striking off the name of the solicitors and restored his name to the Roll. (Lord Robson.) MOSES AMADO TAYLOR, In re.

——Ss. 13 and 14—Altering document—Court record.

Where a property to be sold in execution of a decree was, owing to the carelessness of the pleader for the decree-holder and his clerk, misdescribed in the application for execution, the pleader was held to have acted without due care and sense of responsibility and thus was guilty of grave impropriety in the performance of his duty. In the case he was suspended from his practice for 3 months. Held, (ordering the pleader's suspension for three months) that to tamper with the Court's records is a serious matter and the pleader acted without due care and caution and without sense of responsibility in allowing it to be done by his clerk. ——Ss. 13 and 14—Altering documents—Insertion of name in Vakalatnamah.

A Mukhtear added to the names given in a Vakalatnamah, his own name, also altered certain words in the Vakalatnamah at the request of the individual who had executed the Vakalatnamah, without any improper motive as he could not file a criminal appeal unless the Vakalatnamah contained his name. Held, as the mukhtear was not actuated by any improper motive which would constitute grossly improper conduct, no order under S. 14 of the Act should be passed. The apology of the mukhtear expressing regret might be accepted, (Brett and Richardson, JJ.) PURNA CHANDRA CHATTERJEE, In the matter of. 18 Cr. L. J. 846: 17 I. C. 718: 17 C. W. N. 328.

——S. 13—Appearing for opposite side—Appearing for complainants—Proceedings relating to immoveable property.

A Mukhtear appeared in assault proceedings for certain accused. The complainant in the assault proceedings instituted proceedings under S. 145 of the Cr. P. Code and the Mukhtear appeared for him. The defts. did not offer to engage him. Held, on the facts of the case, that the Mukhtear was not guilty of any professional misconduct. Pleaders should make it a point as far as possible to appear for the party who first employed them. (Richards, C. J., Knox and Bannerjee, JJ.) A. MUKHTEAR, In the matter of.

——S. 13—Appearing for opposite side—Professional etiquette.

It is improper on the part of a legal practitioner who has acted for one party in a dispute, to act for the other party in subsequent litigation between them relating to or arising out of that dispute. It is a matter which concerns the honour of the profession. Such conduct is open to misconception and is likely to raise suspicion in the mind of the original client and to embitter the subsequent litigation. ——S. 13—Appearing for opposite side.

A professional gentleman should, as far as possible, stick to the side who first employed him. It might be a very good practice, when gentleman were offered instructions by the opposite side in any connected case, that they should at least in the first place inform their first clients (Richards, C. J., Knox and Banerjee, J.) AMBA PRASAD In the matter of. 28 I. C. 996: 16 Cr. L. J. 420.

——S. 13, (d)—Appearing for opposite side—Prosecuting pleader drafting written statement for accused—Excuse.

A legal practitioner cannot represent conflicting interests or undertake the discharge of inconsistent duties. When he has once been retained and received the confidence of a client, he cannot accept a retainer from or enter the service of those whose interests are adverse to his client in the same controversy or in matters so closely allied thereto as to be in effect a part thereof. The rule is rigid and is designed not only to prevent the dishonest practitioner from fraudulent conduct but as well to preclude the honest practitioner from putting himself in a position where he may be required to choose between cunflicting duties or be led to an attempt to reconcile conflicting interests, rather than to enforce to their full extent the rights of the interests which he should alone represent. Fidelity is required from all who hold fiduciary relations; they must not lightly enter upon such relationships, but if they do, they will not be permitted to be disloyal; and of all species of disloyalty, desertion and adherence to the enemy or to the opposite party in a suit is recognised as the worst. On those grounds it has been held that an attorney may be disbarred where he conducts a criminal prosecution against a person or assist therein, and thereafter appears for the defence, or while acting as attorney for the prosecutor in a criminal case he accepts money from the defendant in consideration of a dismissal. ——— ——S. 13—Contempt of Court—Misconduct—Libellous attack on judge.

A pleader is an officer of the Court and is bound to assist the Court in the administration of justice. Criticism which is permissible to a private individual is not permissible to a pleader. The co-operation of a pleader and a Judge would be impossible if the pleader were attacking the Judge in the public press Nor would it be possible for the business of the Court to be conducted with dignity, decorum and impartiality when the pleader is posing in public as the chastiser of the Judge. Such conduct is not only a breach of the pleader's duty to the Court but must also result in an actual obstruction to the administration of justice. A letter published by a Pleader, alleging that a certain Judge is indolent and takes credit for cases not tried but compromised, even if written in good faith and even if it does not constitute the offence of libel, amount to misbehaviour under S. 16 of the Sind Courts Misbehaviour Act. A Dt. Judge being of opinion that the evidence available in respect of certain charges against a pleader, was of such a character that a criminal prosecution was not likely to succeed, directed the institution of proceedings against him under S. 13 (f) of the Legal Practitioners Act. Held, that summary investigation under the Legal Practitioners Act of what in reality is grave criminal charge may, in particular instances, be to the prejudice of the pleader. The rule deducible from the cases is that an attorney will be struck off the roll if convicted of felony or if convicted of a misdemeanour involving want of integrity even though the judgment may be arrested or reversed for error and also without previous conviction if he is guilty of gross misconduct in his profession or of acts which, though not done in his professional capacity, gravely affect the character as an attorney; but in the latter case if the acts charged are indictable and are fairly denied, the Court will not proceed against him until he has been convicted by a jury: and will in no case compel him to answer on oath to a charge for which he may be indicted. An Additional District Magistrate appointed with all the powers of a District Magistrate is a Court Subordinate to the High Court within S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act and is competent to draw up a charge and report the professional misconduct of a pleader appearing before him in a criminal case before him. The correct procedure is to forward the report through the Sessions Judge to the High Court. The High Court may and ought, in a proper case, to take action even without the intervention of a Subordinate Court in matters relating to the misconduct of pleaders. A pleader who makes unfounded imputations in Court against the fairness and impartibility of the tribunal in a pending trial, is guilty of professional misconduct within S. 13 (b) and (f) of the Legal Practitioners Act. Per Krishnan, J.—The Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, deals with the pleader only in his professional, and not in his private capacity. Though misconduct other than professional may fall under Cl. ——— S. 13—Re-admission—Procedure.

The High Court has power to reinstate a legal practitioner who had been dismissed for misconduct of any description. Before the Court should exercise such powers it should be clearly convinced not by mere protestations of repentance or regret but by actual facts that the delinquent has reformed his character and has for a sufficiently long period acted in such a way that he can be trusted to act in future as a worthy member of an honourable profession. The proper course is for the petitioner to apply to a Bench presided over by the Chief Justice and ask for a rule in the matter. The Bench over which he presides can then, if a prima facie case is made out, direct that a rule be issued and call upon the Government Advocate to show cause why the petitioner should not be reinstated. The matter would then come up before a Bench specially constituted and the case would be determined by that Bench. 12 C. L. J. 625 Foll. (*Miller, C. ———S. 14—Nature of proceedings under—Object of section—Written statement put in.

Per Sanderson, C. J.—S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act was probably provided for the purpose of giving the High Court the benefit of the District Judge's opinion and also as an additional protection to the person, whose case might be under consideration. The fact that the District Judge's opinion differs from that of the Munsif does not render the proceedings improper.

Per Woodroffe, J.—The proceedings under the section are quasi criminal in the sense that they may result in penalties. Quaere—Whether the pleader can be examined on oath? It is open to the pleader in such a case to say nothing, give no explanation, adduce no evidence, or refuse to be examined, on oath. Though it is legally open to him to do so, it is neither a proper nor wise course. The onus is on the party making the charge, but any explanation offered may be taken into account.

Per Mookerjee, J.—Proceedings under the section are not of a criminal nature, though it is undoubtedly a judicial proceeding. Their object is to preserve the purity of courts and the proper and honest administration of the law. Fair notice and opportunity to be heard must be given. If he submits a written statement, the Court is bound to take it into consideration. But it is not obligatory on the Court to rule out all conceivable hypothetical grounds which could have been but had not been set up in answer. The first clause of S. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act empowers any Court in which a pleader practises to consider a charge of misconduct made against him in such court, and the section does not limit the consideration of the charge to the court in which the misconduct is alleged to have been committed so that it seems immaterial that the misconduct charged was committed in another Court. If the charge is made in the Court in which the Pleader practises, that Court is competent to enquire into it. The expression "such Court" in the first clause of S. 14 cannot be construed to mean the Court in which the misconduct is alleged to have been committed. ——Ss 27 and 28—Right to retain costs for fees.

An advocate cannot retain anything of what he has received from the other party as costs awarded, etc., on the ground that he was retained for a sum lesser than what he would have been entitled to under the taxation rules. S. 27 authorised the Court to regulate fees payable by a party in respect of the fees of his adversary's advocate and assumes the propriety of advocates charging a daily fee after the first day. ——S. 28—Suit by pleader for remuneration on foot of an adjusted account—Account not filed in court—Right to reasonable remuneration.

When there is no agreement between the pleader and his client, the pleader is entitled to maintain an action for reasonable remuneration for services rendered. But where there is a contract between the parties such contract to be enforceable must fulfil the requirements of S. 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act. viz., that the contract must be in writing and the writing must be deposited in court within the prescribed period. Where there was an agreement between the pleader and the client for remuneration but the agreement was not deposited in court and the pleader sued the client for the balance due on an adjustment of accounts, held, that the suit was one in essence to enforce an agreement which did not comply with the requirements of S. 28 of the Act. ——S. 28—Suit for fees—Oral agreement—If maintainable—"Amount", if to be fixed.

Where a suit by a pleader for fees against the client is based on an agreement, he cannot succeed unless the agreement is both in writing, signed by the party to be charged and filed as provided in S. 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act. The 'amount' referred to in S. 28 need not be a fixed sum. (Greaves, J.) BEACHARAM LAHIRI v. SUDEBI DASI. 26 C. W. N. 709 : 1922 Cal. 567.

——S. 28—Quantum meruit.

Where a pleader takes up a brief without any agreement as to the amount of fees or the manner of his payment, he is entitled to recover on an implied promise a reasonable remuneration. A suit to recover such sum is not affected by S. 28. In the absence of any agreement, a pleader is entitled to quantum meruit which has to be determined according to the circumstances of the case. 15 C. L. J. 660 ; 15 C. L. J. 690 ; 20 C. L. The only qualifications imposed by the Act on the exercise of the discretion in declaring a person a tout are that the District Judge must be satisfied by evidence of general repute or otherwise and further that no person's name is to be included in a list of touts until he has had an opportunity of showing cause against such inclusion. It is a valid ground for interference by the High Court, in the exercise of its general powers of supervision, if the District Judge had disobeyed this latter direction and had included in his list of touts the name of a person who had never been allowed an opportunity of showing cause against such inclusion It has never been the intention of the Legislature to allow anything of the nature of an appeal against the decision of a competent Court under S. 36 of Act of XVIII 1879. ——Cl. 10—Pleader—Disciplinary jurisdiction—Contempt—Criticisim of pending proceedings in court.

Anything done or said which may amount to criticism of any proceedings pending in a court of justice is calculated to hinder the even and impartial administration of justice. Pleaders of the court are expected to extend their co-operation and assistance in the task of the administration of justice and the least that could be expected of them is that by their act they will cause no hindrance to the even and impartial administration of justice. Where pleaders of a court in public meeting assembled pass a resolution extolling the accused in a pending criminal trial for their self-sacrifice and patriotism, their conduct is likely to influence the verdict of the jury or the court in the trial and constitutes contempt. ——Cl. 10—Advocates and Pleaders—Passive resistance—Signing of pledge to civilly disobey laws—Unprofessional conduct—Bombay Regulation II of 1827, S. 56.

As a protest against the passing of the Rowlatt Act, certain barristers and pleaders practising joined a movement called the Satyagraha Sabha and signed a pledge whereby they undertook "to refuse civilly to obey such laws" as a committee to be hereafter appointed may think fit. Held, that the barristers and pleaders had, by signing the pledge, rendered themselves amenable to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court, but that under the circumstances a warning was enough. Per Macleod, C. J.— Advocates and pleaders are a privileged class enrolled not only for the purpose of rendering assistance to the Courts in the administration of justice, but also for giving professional advice, for which they are entitled to be paid, to those members of the public who require their services. It is not necessary in order for the High Court to exercise its jurisdiction that any offence should have been committed, nor is it necessary that what the pleaders have done should have subjected them to any thing like general infamy or imputation of bad character. ———Cls. 11 and 36—High Court—Original side—Power of Judge on Original Side to stay—Proceedings in mofussil—Charter Acts, Ss. 2, 9, 13 and 15—Appellate Side Rules (Bombay), Rr. 1 and 5—Original Side Ruls, R. 62.

The jurisdiction of the High Court and of the Judges composing the Court is determined by the Charter Act, by the Letters Patent and by the rules framed by the Court under S. 13 of the Act. Under Cls. 11 and 36 and of the Letters Patent (Bombay) and R. 62 of the Original Side Rules, the local jurisdiction of a Judge of the High Court on the Original Side is limited to the Town and Island of Bombay. S. 15 of the Charter Act gives to the High Court powers of superintendence over all Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction. R. 1 of the Appellate Side Rules (Bombay) provides that with certain exceptions, the civil jurisdiction on the Appellate Side shall be exercised by a Division Court of two Judges. It is not competent to a single Judge of the High Court, exercising the ordinary civil jurisdiction of Court, to stay the hearing of the suit pending for a trial in a Subordinate Judge's Court, in the mofussil unless authorised to do so, by the rule. (Per Macleod, J.)—A single Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court, is competent to restrain the parties in a suit before him from proceeding with a suit in a subordinate Judge's Court in the mofussil, and so in effect stay the proceedings, (*Scott, C. ———Cl. 12—Leave to sue—Cause of action outside jurisdiction—Suit against dead man—Subsequent addition of legal representative—Fresh leave if necessary.

Plaintiffs obtained leave under cl. 12 of the Letters Patent and instituted a suit against a person who resided outside jurisdiction. It was found that when the suit was instituted defendant was dead. The plaintiffs amended the cause title of the plaint by substituting the name of the defendant's legal representatives in his place. The legal representative was himself residing out of the jurisdiction. Held, that the suit as originally instituted was invalid and that the plaintiff should obtain leave for suing the defendant's legal representative. 20 B. 767 foll. (Mulla, J.) RAMPRATAB BRIJ MOHANDAS v. GAURI SHANKER. 25 Bom. L. R. 7 : 1924 Bom. 109.

———Cl. 12—Administration suit is not a suit for land.

An administration suit is not a suit for land within Cl. 12 and a High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit even though some immoveable properties are alleged to belong to the estate to be administered to be outside its ordinary original civil jurisdiction. (Macleod, C. J. and Shah, J.) ABDUL HUSSAIN v. MAHOMEDALLY. 65 I. C. 160 : 23 Bom. L R. 1326.

———Cl. 12—Jurisdiction—Partition suit—Part of property situate outside British India—Leave of Court.

The High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit for partition of lands outside British India even though part of the estate was within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction. But the Court would, under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, have power in granting leave, to exercise the jurisdiction. The Court would however be very slow to grant leave as difficulties would arise in the execution of the decree that might be passed in the suit. The Court can exercise this at the hearing or even at once against the applicant for leave. Even a granting of leave at the time of the application does not bind the Court, at the hearing, from deciding that no direction shall be made as regards properties outside British India but that the parties should be left to a separate suit. ———Cl. 12—Third party procedure—Bombay High Court Rules, Ch. VIII, r. 127.

A defendant, asking for the issue of a third party notice in a case in which leave has to be obtained under cl. 12, should apply to the Judge for such leave to be endorsed on the notice in the same way as it is endorsed on a plaint. It is open to the third party to raise, at the trial, any issues which an added defendant is entitled to raise, one of which is whether leave ought not to have been given under cl. 12 as he was residing outside jurisdiction. Where Judge makes an order granting leave, it should appear clearly on the face of it that he was giving leave under cl. 12. (*Macleod, C. ———Cl. 12—Third party proceedings—Cause of action partly outside jurisdiction—Party outside jurisdiction—Leave to proceed.

"Suits of every other description" in cl. 12 of the Letters Patent include third party proceedings and leave of the High Court must be obtained to proceed therein, when part of the cause of action arises outside the jurisdiction of the High Court and the third party also resides outside the jurisdiction. No such leave can be inferred from the fact that leave was obtained to issue the third party notice, as that does not ——Cl. 12—Leave of the Court—High Court—Suit on Hundi—Hundi not payable in Bombay.

The Bombay High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit on Hundis which were not made payable in Bombay and the fact that the consideration for the Hundis was the balance of accounts, due by the deft. to the plff. in respect of transactions effected in Bombay is no part of the cause of action. ——Cl. 12—Leave of Court, absence of jurisdiction.

It may be final or preliminary or interlocutary the difference between them being that a final judgment determines the whole cause or suit and a preliminary one only a part of it. An order refusing the directions in third party proceedings under rules 130 and 131 of the High Court Rules is not a "judgment" within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is not appealable under that clause. There is no special procedure for disciplinary action of the Court. The English Procedure cannot be adopted in its entirety. ——— Cl. 12—High Court—Original Side—Limited territorial jurisdiction—Fictitious entry in mortgage—Not effective to give jurisdiction—Decree of High Court—Nullity.

The High Court in its original side, is a court of limited territorial jurisdiction. Consequently it has no jurisdiction to try a suit on a mortgage if the parties thereto included a fictitious item of property situate in the city of Calcutta, merely with a view to give jurisdiction to the Registrar of Calcutta and the properties really intended to be mortgaged were situate wholly outside the limits of the original jurisdiction of the High Court. Where in a suit on such a mortgage, the Court allowed the description of the property to be amended so as to substitute an actually existing property within its jurisdiction for the fictitious item and then passed a decree. Held, that the decision that the High Court had jurisdiction, being erroneous could not extend its limited territorial jurisdiction and neither the direction to amend nor the decree could bind strangers who had acquired title in the property before the date of the amendment nor render the registration valid. Quaere—Whether such amendment was within the scope of the suit which was not ——Cl. 15—Judgment—Suit on behalf of a lunatic—Application to take the plaint off the file—Dismissal of the application is not a judgment.

In a suit instituted on behalf of a lunatic one of the defendants applied for taking the plaint off the file on the ground, amongst others, that the suit was not for the benefit of the lunatic and was an abuse of the process of the Court. The Court dismissed the application on the ground that on the materials before the Court at that stage the Court was not prepared to hold that these grounds were substantiated. The defendant appealed : Held, that the order dismissing the application was not a "judgment" within the meaning of cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, inasmuch as the said order did not finally decide any right between the parties, it being open to the defendant to substantiate the grounds by further materials at the hearing of the suit. 8 B L. If in a Sessions trial the Judge convicts the accused but reserves the question of admissibility of the evidence for the opinion of the Full Bench, the Counsel for the accused should begin and have a right of reply before the Full Bench. Under Cls. 25 and 26 of the Letters Patent the Full Bench is not competent to order a retrial but should finally decide the matter on review. 44 C. 477 ; 2 B. 61 ; 17 C. 642, Ref. The Full Bench is not competent to investigate, independently of the evidence erroneously admitted, whether there was a sufficient evidence to justify the verdict of the Jury. ——Cl. 26—Certificate of Advocates-General—Statement of trial judge as to fact happening at the trial—Conclusiveness of—Procedure for granting certificates.

LETTERS PATENT (CALCUTTA), Cl. 26.

The power of the High Court are limited under Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent. Where there is no misdirection or other error as certified, by the Advocate-General, the certificate is misconceived and the High Court has no power to interfere with the conviction and sentence Where the Court is called upon to review a case under Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent, it would accept as unquestionable the statement of the trial judge as to what took place before him in court. 21 C. L. J. 377 ; 10 B. H. C. R. 75 Ref. Cl 26 of the Letters Patent though silent as to the procedure to be followed by the Advocate General, when he is called upon to grant a certificate, requires that the certificate should reflect the judgment of the Advocate-General and is presumably granted in the interests of justice, after a consideration of all the available materials. 21 C. L. J. 377 Rel. If that judgment is founded on incomplete materials or inaccurate allegations, its weight is diminished in a corresponding degree. In a case where the error ascribed to the judge depends on the evidence adduced at the trial, it is desirable that the notes of the evidence as recorded by the judge, should be laid before the Advocate General when he is asked to grant the certificate. The certificate of the Advocate General should be granted after he has heard the representatives of the prisoner and the Crown and has carefully considered all the available materials whose accuracy bad been vouchsafed by counsel or other responsible persons,(Mookerjee, Richardson, Ghose, Cuming and Page, JJ.) EMPEROR v. BARENDRA KUMAR GHOSE.

——— Cl. 26—Joint trial—judicial discretion—Defective summing up—Interference.

Where a Judge in his discretion under S. 239, Cr.P.C , desires,to try a number of accused jointly it is not a matter for interference on a certificate of the Advocate General under Cl. 26 of the Letters Patent. ——— Cl. 26—Certificate of Advocate-General—Statement of trial Judge—Weight due to.

A certificate under S. 26 of the Letters Patent should reflect the judgment of the Advocate General and must be granted in the interests of justice after a careful consideration of all the available materials. It must be in conformity and not in conflict with the statement of the Judge who presided at the trial. Once the Advocate-General grants a certificate the Court has to deal with the case. The statement of the trial Judge as to what took place before him is conclusive. (Jenkins, C.J. Stephen, Woodroffe, Mookerjee and Holmwood, JJ.) EMPEROR v. UPENDRA NATH DAS.

LETTERS PATENT (CALCUTTA), Cl. 39.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court, rests on Cl. 32 of the Letters Patent of 1865 which continues Cl. 31 of the Letters Patent in 1862. The effect of these clauses is to vest in the High Court such Civil and Maritime jurisdiction as might be exercised by the Supreme Court under Charter of 1774, Cl 26. Assuming that the High Courts in its Admiralty jurisdiction did not acquire jurisdiction over maritime necessities by any previous enactments such jurisdiction now rests on Ss. 2 and 35 of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act of 1890, which vests in the High Court the powers described in S. 5 of the Admiralty Act 1861. To oust the jurisdiction so conferred on the High Court under S. 5, it is not enough that the owners ofthe ship should be in fact domiciled in British India; this domocile has to be proved to the satisfaction of the Court. The Court when it made the order for arrest had prima facie jurisdiction to do so, and as the exception to its jurisdiction had not been established the order cannot be treated as coram non judice or a nullity (*Jenkins, C. ———Cl. 8—Proceedings under—Nature of—Propriety of conviction cannot be gone into—Duties of legal practitioners.

Where a legal practitioner has been sentenced for being a member of an unlawful association and proceedings are taken against him under the disciplinary powers conferred by the Letters Patent, the proceedings are not criminal in their character. They are sometimes described as quasi criminal but that is only in so far as they may result in penalties. They are in fact neither civil suits nor criminal proceedings. The High Court will apply such rules of procedure as will ensure a fair trial, giving the practitioner a proper notice and a reasonable opportunity to be heard. When proceedings are stayed on a conviction, it is not in the nature of a second trial. The propriety of the conviction in law or in fact cannot be questioned, but the court is bound to inquire into the nature of the crime in order to decide if it was of such a character as to render a person guilty of it unfit to remain a member of the profession. Disobeying the order even if it does not imply any moral turpitude, the fact of an officer of court like the legal practitioner joining an association declared to be unlawful renders him liable to be dealt with under the Letters Patent. against this order. It was contended that the order was not a final order within the meaning of Cl. 10 of Letters Patent. Held, if that objection is acceded to it would follow that the appellants would be bound by an exparte order. Without power to question that order justice would be done by treating this appeal of 15th May as being one from the order of the 23rd July, 1921, and extending the time within which that appeal would have to be brought. ———Cl. 10—Judgment — Order of single Judge of the High Court dismissing an appeal from an order of remand— Appealability.

In order to decide whether an adjudication should be treated as a "judgment" regard should be had, not to the form of the adjudication but to its effect upon the suit or other civil proceeding in which it was made. If its effect whatever its form may be and whatever may be the nature of the application on which it was made, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned, or if its effect, if not complied with, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding, the adjudication is a judgment within cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. 8 B. L. R. 433: 45 C. 111; 44 C. 804 ; 39 A. 191 : 35 M. 1 (F. B.) 3 M. H. C. R. 384 Rel. The determination of the question whether the plaintiff is entitled to bring his suit after the lapse of 12 years from the date of the mutation consequent upon an alienation, is a determination of a right and the adjudication thereon certainly affects the merits of the question between the parties, more especially when it involves the determination of the point whether the defendant has acquired a prescriptive right of ownership to the land in dispute. Where a suit for setting aside an alienation of ancestral land is dismissed as barred by limitation and on appeal a single judge holds that it is not so barred, his judgment confirming an order of remand by the lower appellate court is appealable under cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. Plaintiff was sued for the due performance of his duties and due accounting by an agent. In a suit instituted in Malabar by the principal a decree was passed against the agent and the plaintiff for the balance due by the agent to the principal and that decree was on appeal affirmed by the High Court. Alleging that, in allowing that decree to be passed, the agent or his representative conspired with the principal in suppressing material documents with a view to make the plaintiff pay the decree amount, the agent being impecunious, that the said fraud was practised in Madras and that it was discovered in Madras, the plaintiff instituted a suit in the High Court (Original Side) Madras, for having the prior decree set aside on the grounds alleged. The defendants were the agent's representatives who resided in Malabar. In order to bring the suit within the ordinary Original Jurisdiction of the High Court plaintiff applied for and obtained leave under S.12 of the Amended Letters Patent to sue the defendant living in Malabar. The leave so granted was after notice set aside. On an appeal from the order setting aside the leave held, that assuming that the High Court had jurisdiction to grant the leave, it should, in the exercise of its discretion, refuse the same. Nearly whole of the alleged cause of action arose in Malabar. There would be no ground at all for bringing the suit here but for the fact that two of the defendants reside here who it is alleged, have in their power there a very material document. The fact that some difficulty is anticipated in getting the document produced in Malabar, is not sufficient ground for holding that the suit, which is essentially a Malabar suit not a Madras suit, should be brought in Madras.

Per The Chief Justice.—The discovery of the fraud is not part of the cause of action but the fraud itself is. Quaere whether the fraud alleged is sufficient ground for setting aside the decree.

Semble S. 12 of the Amended Letters Patent does not confer jurisdiction upon the High Court in cases where one or more of the several defendants reside within jurisdiction. (Schwabe, C. J. and Wallace, J.) PARAMESWARA PATTER v. VIYATHAN MAHADEVI.

jurisdiction of the High Court. Where the vakil without expressing regret for his conduct maintained the correctness of his position he was suspended for 6 months. Advocates and pleaders are a privileged class enrolled not only for the purpose of rendering assistance to the courts in the administration of justice but also for giving professional advice for which they are entitled to be paid by those members of the public who require their services. Their position, training and practice give them an immense influence with the public and their example must necessarily have a much greater effect whether for good or for evil than the example of those who do not occupy this privileged position. It is not necessary for the High Court in order to be able to exercise its disciplinary jurisdiction that any offence should have been committed by a pleader nor is it necessary that what the pleader has done should have subjected him to anything like general infamy or imputation of bad character. ———Cl. 12—Applicability of—Submission to jurisdiction—Part of the cause of action within jurisdiction—Waiver of objections.

Where the breach of an agreement took place in Calcutta part of the cause of action arises within the limits of the ordinary Original Jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court. Though the plaintiffs in the action should have taken the leave of the Court under Clause XII of the Letters Patent before instituting the suit, still if there is a submission to the jurisdiction of a Court and if there is no inherent lack of jurisdiction in that Court the absence of the formality which would confer complete jurisdiction on that Court will not render the judgment of that Court null and void. Part of the cause of action having arisen within the jurisdiction of that Court, there is not an entire absence of jurisdiction in the Original Side of the Calcutta High Court taking cognizance of the suit. In order to give a complete jurisdiction it was necessary for the plaintiff in that action to ask the leave of the Calcutta High Court. Where leave of the High Court was not taken when plff. instituted the suit in 1914 but the defendants submitted the jurisdiction of the Court and expressly undertook not to question the jurisdiction of the Court that undertaking having been given when they applied for setting aside the ex parte decree, and one of the terms of the consent order by which the ex parte decree was set aside, was that the defendants would not question the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court. Held, that Calcutta High Court had jurisdiction to render Judgment in the case, and the decree could not be set aside on the ground of want of jurisdiction. ———S. 1 (12) and (15)—Adverse possession—Possession of mortgagee under Bengal Regulation (XV of 1793) after mortgage money has been paid—Nature of.

The possession of a mortgagee under the Bengal Regulation XV of 1793 does not become adverse simply because he remains in possession after the mortgage money has been paid out of the usufruct and the suit for redemption of a mortgage effected before the passing of the Limitation Act of 1859 is governed by 60 years rule. 33 A. 97. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908).

Plff. sued to redeem a mortgage of 1798. Under Cl. 15 of S. 1 of the Limitation Act of 1859 the mortgagor has sixty years to redeem unless there was an acknowledgment of the mortgagor's title in the meantime. The sixty years expired in 1858. There was an acknowledgment in 1861, i.e., within two years of grace allowed by S. 18 of the Act to bring a suit. Held, that the suit brought in 1911 was barred by limitation. The words "in the meantime" occurring in S. 1, Cl. 15 of the Act of 1859 refer to the sixty years mentioned in the first part of the clause and the right of the mortgagors to sue, having become barred in 1858, their right to the property was extinguished by S 29 of the Act of 1871 The subsequent acknowledgment was ineffective to save limitation. 27 C. 1004 (P. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908)—Applicability of.

———Applicability—Decree barred under old act, revival of.

There is no provision in this statute so retrospective in its effect as to revive and make effective a judgment or decree which before the date of its operation had become unenforceable by lapse of time. (Lord Atkinson) SACHINDRA NATH ROY v. MEHRAJ BAHADUR SINGH.
4 U. P. L. R. (P C.) 57 : 30 M. L. T. 96 : 24 Bom. L. R. 659 : 1922 M. W. N. 338 : 26 C. W. N. 858 : 49 C 203 : 48 I. A. 335 : 1922 P C. 187. (P. C.)

———Applicability of—Rights barred under old Act—Not revived by the passing of the new Act.

The intention of the law of limitation is, not to give a right where there is none, but to interpose a bar after a certain period to a suit to enforce an existing right. 21 Cal. 8, Ref. Nothing in the new Limitation Act can revive a right which has already become barred under the old Act. (Mr. Ameer Ali.) KHUNNI LAL v. GOBIND KRISHNA NARAIN.

———Applicability of—Suit or proceeding—Law of Limitation applicable.

The Law of Limitation applicable to a suit or proceeding is the law in force at the date of the institution of the suit or proceeding, unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. (Walmsley, J.) BISWESWAR SEN v. IMAMUDDE.
29 I. C. 833.

———Applicability of—Criminal appeal—Last day for filing appeal expiring during vacation—Appeal filed on reopening day—Limitation.

Where the last day for filing a criminal appeal in a Sessions Court expired during the Court's civil vacation but on that day the Judge held criminal sittings of which however neither the appellant nor his counsel had timely notice and the appeal was filed on the reopening day, held that the appeal should not be dismissed as time-barred. (Teunon and Ghose, JJ.) SONA v. NAIB ALI.
61 I. C. 714 : 22 Cr. L.J. 426.

———Applicability—Actions to be taken by Court.

The provisions of the Limitation Act do not apply to actions which it is the duty of the Court to take up without any formal application by parties. (Sharfuddin and Coxe, JJ.) BENI SINGH v. BERHAMDEO SINGH.
19 C. W. N. 473 : 28 I. C. 211 : 22 C. L. J. 66.

———Applicability—Pending proceedings.

The law of limitation is a law relating to procedure and the law applicable to suits or proceedings is the law in force at its institution unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary (Richardson and Newbould, JJ.) NARENDRA LAL KHAN v. UPENDRA NATH.
21 I. C. 113.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908)—Applicability of.

The law of limitation applicable to a suit is prima facie the law in force at the time of the institution of the suit, in the absence on circumstances indicating an intention on the part of the legislature to affect retrospectively existing causes of action. One such circumstance is that a new law is brought into immediate operation without any opportunity afforded to litigants to enforce their rights under the old law. 35 A. 227, Foll. ———Applicability of—Date of suit.

A suit is governed by the Limitation Law in force at the time of its institution and not by subsequent statute which comes into operation during the pendency of the suit. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MAULA BAKHSH v. BHABASUNDARI DASYA.

———Applicability.

The limitation for a Letters Patent appeal is governed by the rules made by the High Court. The Limitation Act does not apply to such a case where the limitation for a Letters Patent appeal expired, when the High Court was in vacation. The appeal could not be presented after the vacation as being time-barred. (Le Rossignol and Martineau, JJ.) FATTEH MAHAMAD v. CHOTHU RAM.
60 I. C. 737 : 3 Lah. L. J. 361.

———Applicability of—Cause of action—Accrual of—Law governing suit.

The law of limitation is a law of procedure and it is the rule of limitation in force at the time when an application is made that governs it and not the one under which the right to apply accrued. This rule applies whether the time available under the new Act is shorter than that available under the former Act or no time is available under the new Act at all. If there has been an interval between the passing and the coming into force of a later Limitation Act, it is clear indication that the Act was meant to have a retrospective operation. 21 L. ———Applicability — Reversioner's suit for possession from heirs and representatives of adopted son—Suit within 12 years of death of widow— Right barred under Act of 1871 not revived by Act of 1877.

The right to sue to set aside an adoption, if barred under Art 129 while the Limitation Act 1871 was in force, is not revived by the Act of 1877 or by that of 1908. (Wallis, C.J. and Burn, J.) SOMASUNDARAM CHETTIAR v VAITHILINGA MUDALIAR. 40 Mad. 846 : 41 I. C. 546 : 6 L. W. 253.

———Applicability—Retrospective operation—Limits of.

Though laws affecting limitation might abridge or enlarge periods of limitation in cases of suits or causes of action which are alive at the date when the new enactment comes into force which under the old law would expire afterwards, the change cannot, unless there is clearly expressed an intention to the contrary either by apt words in the enactment or otherwise operate retrospectively so as to destroy rights of suits which were alive on the date. ———Construction—Rules for—Schedule.

Courts are not at liberty to allow periods of suspension not provided for in the Act. It is equally inadmissable under the Act to say that time shall not begin to run from the time limited in the article except under some express provision of the Act. Per Abdur Rahim and Seshagiri Aiyar, JJ:—It is a well-known rule for construing the Indian Statute of Limitation that the first and the third columns of an article should be given the same meaning as in other columns. Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—Where both first and third columns of an article do not apply to a case the residuary article must be applied. Per Srinivasa Iyengar, J.—In construing the articles of the Limitation Act undue stress ought not to be laid on the first column of the article which describes the nature of the suits and it ought to be held that all suits of that class must be governed by that article, though the starting point fixed in the third column cannot be applied to all or cannot be applied without working injustice (Wallis, C J., Abdur Rahim, Coutts Trotter, Seshagiri Aiyar and Srinivasa Iyengar, JJ.) MULLA VITTIL SEFTI v. KUNHI PATHUMMA. 40 Mad. 1040 : 22 M L. A defendant may in equity set up a defence that a certain instrument is by reason of its invalidity or other defect, ineffectual against him, although if he sued to have it avoided or declared a nullity, his suit would be barred by limitation. ———Defence—Plea of—When to be entertained in appeal.

Where the defendant simply mentions in his written statement that the suit is barred, he is entitled to argue it upon the allegations made in the plaint. But if it was his object to raise any questions of fact in connection with the issue as to limitation, it is obligatory on him to state those facts and have an issue raised. ———Starting point—Decree incapable of execution—Time, when begins to run.

Until a decree is capable of execution, limitation does not begin. Where the costs though taxed were not entered in the decree, an application praying that they be included is not one for amendment of decree but for supplying the defect, and in any case limitation begins only from the date the costs are included. ———Starting point—Declaratory suit—Application for review, whether it gives fresh starting point for limitation.

Held, that the question whether an application for review gives a fresh starting point of limitation for a declaratory suit depends upon whether the application re-opened the question already decided :—Held, further that a review of judgment is not an ordinary process and does not of necessity re-open questions already decided between the parties. ———Ss. 2 and 14—'Defendant'—Joint Hindu family—Status of other members—Suit against manager—Subsequent suit impleading subsequently born son.

S. 2 of the Lim. Act assumes that every person who acquires an interest by devolution or otherwise in the subject-matter of a litigation previously vested in others, which renders him liable to be impleaded as a defendant derives his liability to be sued from or through somebody. In the case of a new born son in a Mitakshara family the person or persons through whom he derives this liability must be the other members of the family in whom the property which the son acquires by birth was previously vested. Where a previous suit was brought against the managing member of a joint Hindu family and that suit was dismissed on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Court in which it was brought, the time taken in the conduct of the suit can be deducted under S. 14 of the Lim. Act even though the subsequent suit is brought against the original defendant and members of the joint family born subsequent to the previous suit. (*Miller, C. ——S. 4—Applicability of —Compromise decree—Payment of money due under— Court closed on last day—Deposit on re-opening day is valid.

The appellant plaintiff sued the respondents defendants for joint possession of a plot of land acquired by the defendants On the 29th November 1920 a decree for joint possession was passed in the plaintiff's favour subject to his paying the defendants one hundred rupees as contribution within six months from the date of the decree. The period of six months expired in the vacation when the Courts were closed, and the appellant deposited his money in Court on the day that the Court re-opened. Held that there was a valid compliance with the decree. Even where the decree directs payment to the decree-holder, payment into Court is a valid compliance with the decree unless perhaps the Court directed that payment should be to the decree-holder and not otherwise. Applicability.

——S. 5—Applicability — Application for leave to appeal—Sufficient cause.

An application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council clearly comes within the purview of S. 5. Where an affidavit was filed to the effect that the agent of the applicant was coming to Allahabad for the purpose of filing the application, that when he reached the Aligarh station, he had an attack of Renal Colic, which confined him to bed till the 2nd of November following and the affidavit was uncontradicted and supported by a medical certificate. Held, that sufficient reason had been shown for the delay. (Banerji and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) DRO INDER SINGH v. KHUSHI RAM. 1923 A. 536.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application.

S. 7 does not apply to an application for substitution filed beyond six months, but the remedy of the party after the abatement is to apply to have it set aside on the ground that he was prevented by sufficient cause; to this S. 5 of the Act will apply. (Richards, C. J., and Banerjee, J.) SECRETARY OF STATE v. JAWAHIR LAL.

——S. 5—Applicability—Application under S. 17, Pr. Sm. C. C. Act.

An application for review of judgment of a Small Cause Court was made on the last day of the period prescribed for limitation but without deposit of the amount of costs or security for the same as required by S. 17. On the following day the Court allowed the applicant time for making the deposit which was eventually made and the application for review was granted. Held, that the application failed to comply with S. 17 and was barred under Art. 161, Limitation Act. It was doubtful whether S.5, Limitation Act, applied to the case at all as the application was made within time. (Sanderson, C. J. and Walmsley, J.) ABDUL SHEIK v. MAHOMED AYUB.

Where the appeal was filed late on account of delay in getting copies and the same was due to the fact that money for getting the same was given to the pleader's clerk and thereafter the appellant took no steps to inquire of his pleader for the same, there is no sufficient cause to excuse delay within the meaning of S. 5, Lim. ——S. 5—Delay in getting copies—Appeal filed a day beyond—Delay in office to deliver copy—Sufficient cause.

Where an appeal was obliged to be filed a day beyond time on account of the delay caused by the officer of the Court it was held that this was sufficient cause for not filing the appeal in time (Karamat Husain and Chamier, JJ.) BALMUKUND v. KUNDAN LAL. 13 I. C. 943 : 9 A. L. J. 15.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 5—Delay in getting copies.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies—Indulgence.

A Court is not bound to show indulgence to a litigant who has not been prompt in seeking the remedy available to him, e. g., in applying for copies preparatory to filing an appeal. (Abdul Raoof, J.) MADAN GOPAL v. MALAWA RAM.
1923 Lah. 96.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies—Time required in taking copy of trial Court's judgment.

Delay due to the obtaining of copy of trial Court's judgment may be excused, if the appellant had not obtained the copy at the commencement of the period of limitation and had been compelled to obtain it towards the end of the period. (Broadway and Abdul Qadir, JJ.) GURDIT SINGH v. CHARAN DAS. 1922 Lah. 415.

——Ss. 5 and 12 and Rules and Orders of the Chief Court, Vol. I, R. 23 (1) and (2)—Delay in getting copies—Mistake of Copyist Office.

It is the duty of the copying department to inform the applicant of the date on which a copy will be ready for delivery and omission to do so is sufficient cause for delay in filing an appeal. (Rattigan, J.) SARKHARA v. NAWAB.
13 I. C. 850 : 11 P. W. R. 1912.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies—Sufficient cause.

Where the appellants did not apply for a copy of the judgment and decree themselves but came to Lahore to engage counsel by whom a letter was sent to the Copying Agent asking for copies without however remitting money until he replied asking for money when money was sent to him so late that he could apply for copies only after the expiry of the period of limitation, Held, the appellants were guilty of gross negligence and were not entitled to the benefit of S. 5. (Johnstone and Shah Din, JJ.) ASHIQ HUSSAIN v. ALI BAKHSH. 61 P. L. R. 1911 : 9 I. C. 381 : 189 P. W. R. 1911.

——Ss. 5 and 12—Delay in getting copies—Appeal presented out of time—Delay, if can be excused.

Non-availability of a copy of a decree is sufficient ground for excusing delay in filing an appeal in time. (White, C. J., and Oldfield, J.) RAO SAHEB NUMBERUMAL v. KRISHNAJI.

A mistake in the copyist office, in not preparing copies of the judgment and decree is a sufficient cause under S. 5 of the Act. (Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.) DALJIT v. RAMRATAN. 25 I. C. 26.

——S. 5—Delay in filing appeal—Ground for excusing—Mistake of Pleader.

In considering whether the delay caused by the prosecution of the appeal in a wrong Court is sufficient cause for admitting an appeal after expiration of the prescribed period within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act, the real question is whether the error was one that is in any way excusable or whether it was one which might have easily occurred even if reasonably due care and attention had been exercised by the Pleader (Robinson, C. J.) TIN TIN NYO v. MAUNG BE SUMG. 1 R. 584 : 1924 R. 148.

——S. 5—Delay in getting copies.

A judgment was passed on 15th October and the decree was signed on 9th Nov. There was a delay in paying copying fees. Held, that the delay was due to want of payment of proper copying fee and not to the late signing of the decree. Therefore the appellant cannot take advantage of S. 5 of the Limitation Act. (Pratt, J. C. and Crouch, A. J. C.) TOPANDAS v. MANAGER OF ENCUMBERED ESTATES.

Ex-parte admission.

——— S. 5—Ex-parte admission—Appeal filed after time—Effect of.

The admission of an appeal after the period of limitation deprives the respondent of a valuable right, for it puts in peril the finality of the decision in his favour. Where therefore an order for such admission is made ex parte, it is open to consideration, at the respondent's instance at the hearing. It is an implied term of the order. The question of limitation should not however be left open till the hearing of the appeal. The Courts in India should adopt a procedure which will secure at the stage of admission the final determination of any question of limitation affecting the competence of an appeal. ——S. 5—Mistake of law—Pleader's mistake.

Where the only excuse put forwa·d in the affidavit for not filing the appeal within time was that the appellants had no knowledge before the order of the District Judge returning the memorandum of appeal, that it had to be presented to the High Court but there was sufficient room to hold that they had such knowledge, and the same pleader had been working for the appellants and had filed various appeals rightly in connection with this case, held, the mistake pleaded in this case was not bona fide and extension was refused (Abdur Raoof, J.) UMRAO BAKHSH v MALIK MAHOMED KHAN. 1923 Lah. 612.

——S. 5—Mistake of law—Illiteracy of clients.

The decision appealed against was dated the 20th June, 1921. An application for copies of the decrees and the lower appellate Court's order was filed on the 27th of June 1921 and those copies appeared to have been received by the appellant on the 9th of July 1921. The appeal itself was filed on the 4th of October 1921 and was returned on the same date on the ground that it was not accompanied by a copy of the judgment of the trial Court. The appellant appeared to have done nothing further in the matter until the 26th October 1921, when he applied for a copy of the necessary judgment which was ready on the 31st of that month and actually delivered to the appellant on the 7th of November 1921. The appeal was then refiled on the 22nd of November 1921. Held even allowing for the fact the Kangra is at some distance from Lahore and the parties are jats this delay is unwarranted. (Broadway, J.) MT. NAZKO v. MT. GOPAL. 1923 Lah. 208 (2).

——S. 5—Mistake of law,

The respondent brought on record by an order passed before he was a party can challenge the validity thereof after he is made a party. A mistake of law is not 'sufficient cause' unless it was made in 'good faith,' i.e., in spite of due care and attention. A Court should no doubt interpret the words "sufficient cause" liberally, but it must be in accordance with judicial principles The appeal time must not be extended simply because the appellant's case is hard. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S 5—Mistake of Law.

——S. 5—Mistake of law.

A bona fide mistake of law is a sufficient cause for excusing delay in presenting an appeal. Where a person mistook the preliminary order as a final order which a man of ordinary prudence would not have mistaken and filed an appeal against it beyond the period of limitation, Held, that the mistake was not a "Sufficient Cause" for excusing the delay. (Oldfield and Bakewell, JJ.) SOUNDARARAJA IYENGAR v. SREENIVASACHARIAR. 39 I. C. 975 : (1917) M. W. N. 362.

——S. 5—Mistake of law—Delay in institution of suit.

A mistake of law might be a sufficient reason for asking the Court to exercise its discretion under S. 5, of the Lim. Act more so when the mistake is one in which the Court was seized of the suits shared. The real question for consideration in such cases is whether the plaintiffs had acted in good faith in prosecuting their suits in the Revenue Courts before they came back to the Civil Court. If they did, the time spent in prosecuting those suits in the Revenue Court ought to be taken into account, and if there has been an undue delay meanwhile, the delay in filing the appeals from the original decrees, by which the plaints were directed to be returned for prosecution to the Revenue Court should be excused. (Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.) BENI MADHO v. SHAM SHAD ALI. 26 O. C 56 : 1923 Oudh 238.

——S. 5—Mistake of law—Appeal to Privy Council.

An applicant for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council was misled by the practice of calculating the period of limitation for such application and thus filed his application beyond time: Held, that in the particular case the time should be extended. ——Ss. 5 and 12—Mistake of law— Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Two appeals one judgment—Delay in preparing decrees.

The practice of the Patna High Court being to insist upon the filing of the decree either along with the petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council or if it is not ready, to allow the decree to be filed later on, when it is obtained, the period of six months was not to be computed from the date when the decree was signed but from the date of the decision. The time actually spent in obtaining a copy of the decree could only be deducted under S. 12 (2) of the Limitation Act. 13 Cal. 104 Not Foll. 12 All. 461 (F.B.); 23 Bom. 442; 39 Cal. 766 Rel. Where there are two appeals decided by one and the same judgment two petitions for leave to appeal have to be presented in respect of the two decrees. The above practice being well known and the later decisions having settled the law, no indulgence could be granted under S. 5. (*Miller, C. Mistake of Pleader.

———S. 5 and Art 152—Mistake of pleader.

An appeal which lay to the Dt. Court was presented under wrong legal advice to the High Court which returned it for presentation to the Dt Court At the time of presentation to the Dt. Court the time for appealing to the Court had expired, but the appeal would have been in time if it lay to the High Court. The Dt. Judge admitted the appeal ex parte subject to objections on the ground of limitation. The appeal was afterwards transferred to the High Court which excused the delay holding that the mistake of appellant's legal adviser was sufficient cause within S 5. Held, that the order of the High Court was proper 45 Cal. 94 (P. ——— S. 5—Mistake of pleader — Sufficient cause.

Though the courts should ordinarily insist upon legal practitioners giving correct advice, nevertheless it may be that to demand at the present time a normal standard of efficiency would impose hardship upon litigants. An honest mistake made by a litigant upon incorrect advice of counsel, is a sufficient cause for excusing delay under S. 5 of the Limitation Act. Where in ignorance of the rules of procedure of the High Court, a mofussal pleader did not procure copies of judgment and decree to be filed along with the second appeal and these copies were filed after the time prescribed. Held, there was sufficient cause within S. 5 of the Lim. Act for excusing delay. (Mears, C. J., Banerjee and Stuart, JJ.) SHIB DAYAL v. JAGANNATH PRASAD. 44 All 637 : L. R. 3 A. 413 : 20 A. L. J. 674 : 1922 All. 490.

———S. 5—Mistake of pleader — Recalling order excusing delay.

In order that a mistake of the pleader may be sufficient cause for granting an extension of time under S. 5. there must be a proper evidence establishing that a bona fide mistake was committed. A Judge has power to revoke an order excusing delay before the appeal is admitted. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) ISWAR CHANDRA KAPALI v. ARJUN. 45 I. C. 725.

———S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

The plffs. correctly valued their claim for Court-fees at a certain sum : but for the sake of jurisdiction they valued it erroneously due to the legal adviser's omission to give effect to S 8 of Suits Valuations Act. Defts. did not raise objection to the same. Plff's. case was dismissed and they appealed to the Dist. Judge where also they did not object at once but asked for an adjournment. At the hearing they raised the objection on which memorandum of appeal was returned to be presented to the High Court. They promptly filed it before the High Court but after the expiry of due period. Held, that sufficient cause required by S. 5 of the Limitation Act had been made out and the appeal, ought to be admitted even though out of time as some responsibility was on the deft. for the difficulty which the plffs. presently experienced. ———S. 5—Mistake of pleader.

Though generally erroneous advice of pleader is not a sufficient cause, a litigant should not be made to suffer for the pleader's error if the mistake is of such a nature as would mislead even experienced practitioners. The true test is whether the litigant has acted under honest though mistaken belief, formed with due care and attention. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) SUNDER KOER v. RAGHUNATH SAHAI. 12 I. Assuming that in some circumstances a litigant is entitled to an extension of time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act when he has been misled by a mistake of his legal adviser the principle on which the court acts is that the mistake must be of such a description that it might arise even amongst practioners of experience. 12 I. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 5—Proceedings.

Poverty is not a sufficient cause within S. 5 for extending the period of limitation. (Hartnoll, O. C. J. and Young, J.) ANNAMALAI v. O. M. M. R. M. CHETTY. 22 I. C. 884 : 7 L. B. R. 90.

Procedure.

———S. 5—Procedure—Delay in filing appeal—Extension of time—Implied from the procedure of the High Court.

The secretary of a company registered was granted by the company a charge on the unpaid calls. In the winding up proceedings, the secretary applied to enforce the charge, and the Dt. Court recognised the validity of the charge, though unregistered, in spite of the opposition of the liquidator. Neither the liquidator nor the debenture holders appealed against the order. More than a year after the expiry of the time for appeal, when it was sought to enforce the charge, the debenture holders objected and on their objections being overruled by the Dt. Court, appealed to the High Court, on the ground of non-registration. The High Court allowed the appeal on that ground. Held, that the High Court must be taken to have impliedly extended the time for appealing against the first order of the Dt. Judge, though the proper procedure would have been to allow an extension of time on an application for leave to appeal. ———S. 5—Procedure—Delay in presentation of appeal—Procedure.

When a memorandum of appeal is presented beyond the prescribed period of limitation the Judge should endorse upon it the date of presentation and order that notice be given to the respondents. The Court should secure at the stage of admission the final determination (after due notice to all parties) of any question of limitation affecting the competence of the appeal. 41 M. 412 Rel. Proceedings.

———S. 5—Proceedings in wrong Court—Duty of Court.

When time-barred appeals are filed in wrong Court the Court can dismiss them and need not return them for presentation to the proper Court in order that the latter might consider the question as to whether the time for presentation could be extended. ——Ss. 5 and 14—Proceedings in wrong Court—Bona fide mistake—Discretion of Court.

Where an appeal filed in time but in wrong court owing to a bonafide mistake, is returned on the last day of limitation for presentation to a proper Court, the fact that it is not presented on the proper day ought not to be a ground for rejecting it as barred; judicial descretion should point to its admission. ——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong court—Presenting appeal in a wrong Court—'Good faith' meaning.

Where delay is caused by the fact that the appeal was first filed in a wrong Court, the period of limitation should be extended provided the appellant has acted in 'good faith' which means 'honestly' but not without due care and attention. ——Ss. 5 and 14—Proceedings in wrong court—Sufficient cause.

The Bona fide prosecution of an appeal in a wrong court should be regarded as a proper ground or as sufficient cause within S. 5 of the Act for extending the time for filing an appeal notwithstanding that S. 14 of the Act does not apply to appeals. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 5—Review.

Held, there was no excuse at all for filing the appeal in the wrong Court and that the mistake was not excusable and the appeal was barred. (Shadi Lal and Broadway, JJ.) NATHU v. MAHOMMED SHAFI. 2 Lah. L. J. 390.

——Ss. 5 and 14—Proceedings in wrong court—Carelessness—Minority—Effect of.

Held, that as S. 86 of the Probate and Administration Act clearly specified the High Court as the Appellate Court, the appeal against an order appointing a receiver was filed in the Divisional Court by carelessness and not by mistake of law. There was no sufficient cause for not filing the appeal in the High Court within the time prescribed. The time taken up in the Divisional Court could not be excluded; the fact that the appellant was a minor did not justify extension of the period of limitation. (*Reid, C. ——S. 5—Proceedings in wrong court—Mistake of law.

The presentation of appeal to a wrong court through a mistake of law is not sufficient excuse for admitting the appeal out of time. ———S. 5—Review – Time taken for—Exculusion of.

A review was attempted by putting forward a fresh document before the Court, which was rejected. An appeal was filed after the period of limitation but within time. A plaintiff must prove affirmatively and clearly that his suit is within time. A mere entry that a son was born to a man of the name of the plaintiff's father does not necessarily prove that the entry relates to the plaintiff, unless the entry can be supported by evidence. Right of collaterals is not a single indivisible rights but each is entitled to his own share. (Campbell, J.) PREM DAS v. SARBALAND. 1923 Lah. 41.

——— Ss. 6. 8, 9 and Art. 144—Scope of—Lunatic—Adverse possession against—Legal representative a widow—Right of reversioners when barred.

Lunacy by itself does not prevent limitation running against a lunatic. Where the person entering into possession was under no duty to the lunatic but entered into possession on his own behalf and in assertion of a hostile title to the lunatic, limitation runs from the date of possession though the lunatic would be entitled to sue within 3 years from the cessation of his disability—If he dies a lunatic leaving his widow, she could sue within the same period ; but if she fails to do so, the reversioners would also be barred and they cannot reckon limitation from the death of the widow. In 1895 a Mahomedan mortgaged his property to deft. The mortgagor having died, his widow sold the equity of redemption to the mortgagee in 1901, and placed him in possession. The three plffs. (sons and daughters of the mortgagor) who owned the remaining seven shares, sued in 1914, to redeem the mortgage. Plffs. 1 and 2 had attained majority in 1901 and 1908. held that, as neither of the plffs who attained majority more than three years before suit was qualified to discharge or release the equity of redemption and the right was indivisible, the suit having been brought within three years of the date when the youngest plff. attained majority, was within time, under S. 7 of the Limitation Act. (Per Abdur Rahim, J.)—The sections apply to cases falling under Art. 44. The Act does not deprive persons under disability of the common advantages under the Act. It makes certain concessions in their favour. A suit by two Hindu brothers to recover properties alienated by their mother and guardian during their minority without necessity is barred if brought more than 3 years after the elder-brother becomes maior but within 3 years of the attainment of majority by the younger. (Per Sundara Aiyar, J.) The section does not apply to suits by number of plffs. some of whom are under disability. The words "the same period after the disability has ceased, etc," show that the section applies where but for the disability time would run against the litigant before the cessation of disability. ———Ss. 6 & 7, Sch. 1 Art. 126—Several plffs.—Hindu Law—Joint family—Cause of action accruing before the birth of a son.

A son born in a joint Hindu family acquires by birth interest in ancestral property but does not acquire any interest in any right to sue. The cause of action accrues after an alienation, when the purchaser takes possession and a new cause of action does not accrue upon the subsequent birth of a son in the family. In the case of an after-born son the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned is the date of the transfer and as he was not born on that date and was under no disability on that date he cannot obtain the benefits of the provisions of section 6 of the Limitation Act. When he cannot save limitation for himself he can give no benefit under section 7 to his elder brothers, 40 Cal. 966 Dist: 8 W. R. 15 : 23 W. R. 285 ; 4 All. 120, Ref. (54 C. 1). LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 7—Miscellaneous.

Joint Decree-holders.

——S. 7—Joint decree-holders—Decree in favour of major and minor members of joint Hindu family—Discharge—Limitation.

Where a decree is in favour of major and minor members of joint Hindu family the manager has the same power of dealing with the decree and granting a discharge to the debtor as he had before the debt merged into the decree. S. 7 of the Limitation Act treats the suit by joint creditors on the same footing as an application by joint decree-holders and contemplates that one joint creditor can be empowered to give a discharge without the concurrence of the others. That power could not be given by a minor after the decree in his favour so that the section contemplates an authority apart from and anterior to the decree. (Bakewell, J.) RAMANADHAN SIVAYYA v. UDATHA ACHHAYYA.
13 M. L. T. 304 : 18 I. C. 723 : (1913) M. W. N. 288.

——S. 7—Joint decree-holders—Discharge by.

If one of several decree-holders can give a discharge without the concurrence of others, S 7 applies. The cases in which one decree-holder can give a discharge binding the other decree-holders must be decided by the substantive law of the parties. (Sundara Aiyar and Phillips, JJ.) DURAISAWMY SASTRIAL v. VENKATARAMA IYER. 10 M. L. T. 370 : (1911) M. W. N. 420 : 12 I. C. 503 : 21 M. L. J. 1088.

One of the two joint decree-holders cannot give a valid discharge of the decree without the concurrence of the other. Therefore, such a discharge does not prevent the decree-holder from taking advantage of S. 7 to apply for execution of decree. (Abdur Rahim, J.) VENKATARAMA AIYAR v. DURAISAWMY SASTRIAL,

Joint Promisees.

——S. 7—Joint promisees—Person severally entitled—Suit for possession.

When several persons jointly entrusted in a property have been dispossessed S. 7 of the Limitation Act does not apply if each of the several persons can sue for his individual share. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) RAKHAL CHANDRA GHOSE v. MAHENDRA NARAYAN SEN. 51 I. C. 797.

——S. 7—Joint promisees—Minority of one.

A payment to one of several joint promisees is a good discharge of the liability. A minor promisee of a pro-note cannot sue on it after 3 years, when the adult co-promisee allows it to be barred. ——Ss. 9 and 15— "Disability"—"Inability"—Alien enemy—S. 9 of the Limitation Act covers the case of an alien enemy who is debarred from suing in consequence of a declaration of war.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 9.

The general rule is that once a limitation has begun to run, a subsequent 'Disability' to sue will not avail to stop it in the absence of express statutory provision. Per Sanderson, C. J.—The Legislature in enacting S 9 of the Limitation Act did not mean the same thing by the use of two words "disability" and "inability." An express statutory provision on a particular matter would have the effect of overriding any common law rule regarding the same. Per Woodroffe, J.—S. 15 of the Limitation Act refers to orders of Civil Courts and not to the case of an alien enemy who is prevented from suing owing to a declaration of war. (Sanderson, C. J. and Woodroffe, J.) DEUTCHE ASIATISCHE BANK v. HIRA LALL BURDHAN & SONS. 46 Cal. 526 : 47 I. C. 398 : 23 C. W. N. 157.

——S. 9—"Disability"—Alien enemy.

S. 9 of the Act makes no exception in favour of alien enemies who are prevented from suing in consequence of a declaration of war. The "disability" in S. 9 means want of legal ability and is quite different from inability to sue. (Chaudhari, J.) DEUTSCH ASIATICHE BANK v. HIRA LALL BURDHAN & SONS. 47 I. C. 122.

No suspension or extension of Limitation is allowable unless it is provided for in the Limitation Act. 43 M. 185 relied on. Where a mortgagee is entitled to possession immediately time begins to run from the date of the mortgage and the mere fact that possession of the mortgaged property was subsequently taken by the prior mortgagee does not stop limitation from running. ———S. 10—Express trust — Meaning of—Agreement for payment of sum out of particular fund—Obligor if a trustee—Suit for recovery of money out of fund—Agreement to pay on demand—Limitation—Promissory note—Assignment—Rights of assignee.

On the deposition of a Native Prince, the East India Company took over such of his debts as were proved to its satisfaction under commission appointed for the purpose. The manner in which those debts were to be paid—as provided for by an agreement between the company and the creditors of the deposed Rajah by which the Company undertook to set aside a sufficient part of the revenue to be received by it to provide for the payment to the creditors of the Rajah, who had signed the agreement, of their debts. Those creditors were to receive transferable bonds or certificates and sufficient revenue was to be set apart and applied to paying the interest on those bonds and also to creating and accumulating a sinking fund for the redemption in due course of the principal. In pursuance of that agreement transferable bonds, called promissory notes, were issued whereby the company agreed to pay the holders thereof on the expiration of 15 months' notice of payment on demand at the general treasury at Fort St. George the principal sum and to pay interest half yearly as long as the company was in possession of the revenues of Tanjore. The interest was to be paid at the Treasury in cash to the proprietors if resident in India and in cash or by bills at 12 months at the option of the proprietors, if resident in Europe. In a suit by the assignee of one of such notes against the Secretary of State for India in Council for recovery of the amount due thereon. Held, (1) that a trust was created by agreement between the company and the creditors of the deposed Rajah, that the company and the Government and its successors were trustees of the funds in their hands for the purpose specifically defined in the agreement namely, the payment of interest and of principal of the transferable bond to be issued under the agreement and that S. 10 of the Lim. Act applied to the case; and (2) that assuming Art. 120 of the Lim. Act applied, time began to run only from the date of demand for payment and the suit which was filed within 6 years from that date was not barred.

Per the Chief Justice.—The Company was not under a duty to seek out the creditors and pay them, especially as the payment under the promissory notes was to be to the payees or their order. It came under no liability to pay either the principal or interest until the demand was made for payment at a particular place and in some cases in a particular manner. A "specific purpose" within the meaning of S. 10 of the Lim. Act is a purpose that is either actually and specifically defined in the terms in which the trust is created or a purpose which from the specified terms can be certainly affirmed.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 10—Implied trust.

Per Wallace, J.—The trust created by the agreement did not cease by the issue of the bonds, but continued and was to continue according to the agreement, so long as any obligation to pay remained on any bond, and only when every bond was discharged. The assignment to the plaintiff which was made in 1909 recited that the assignor was entitled to the promissory note and to a specified amount of interest. The assignor was on the date of the assignment entitled to a larger sum by way of interest, but the parties to the agreement erroneously thought that interest on the note had stopped from 1854, and hence mentioned a smaller sum as representing interest. The operative part of the assignment however assigned all the interest on the promissory note which the assignor had, Held, that the deed of assignment was wide enough to cover both principal and all interest due and to become due, and the plaintiff had by virtue of it all the rights of the assignor. ———S. 10 and Arts. 49 and 145—Express trust—Suit for recovery of property or its value by beneficiary—Limitation.

The phrase "trust for a specific purpose" in S. 10 of the Limitation Act is merely a more expanded mode of expressing the same idea as that conveyed by the expression "express trust" in English Law and is used in the section in contradistinction to trusts arising by implication of law, trusts resulting and trusts constructive. 32 Bom. 394 Relied on. Where certain jewels were in the possession of the defendant and he agreed under a written instrument that the plaintiff should enjoy the jewels for her life and that after her death they should be divided among the defendant and other parties to the instrument, held that defendant was an express trustee of the jewels for the plaintiff and that a suit by her for the jewels or their value fell within S. 10 of the Limitation Act. ———S. 10—Express trust— Fiduciary relationship.

An express trust within the meaning of S. 10 of the Limitation Act does not result from a mere fiduciary relationship between two parties such as solicitor and client, depositor and banker, principal and agent and creditor and debtor. ———S. 10—Trust property — Suit against trustee—Failure of trustee to reduce trust property to possession—Liability for acts on default of predecessors—Failure to account—Limitation.

A suit based on the failure of a trustee to reduce trust property into possession is barred under the Lim. Act notwithstanding S. 10. Further, a trustee is not liable for the acts or defaults of his predecessors. If the trustee himself had actually received money for which he had not accounted, S. 10 prevents any period of limitation running, and if he held money in another capacity which he ought to have held as trustee, he could not be heard to say that he held it in the other capacity and not in the capacity of a trustee, and therefore in such a case S. 10 would apply and prevent him from relying on the Lim. Act. (Schwabe, C. J. and Odgers, J.) DORAIVELU MUDALIAR v. ADIKESAVALU NAIDU. (1922) M. W. N. 620: 1922 Mad. 409.

———S. 10—Trust property — Suit against trustee—Neglect to get income of trust.

A suit against a trustee for failure to obtain possession and income of the trust falls under the ordinary Law of Limitation and not under S 10. (*Wallis, C. ———S. 10—Trust property—Trustee—Right to re-imbursement.

Where a trustee is removed and an account ordered against him, his claims against the estate, though barred, may be gone into and a decree may be given to him if the accounts should turn out to be in his favour. An executor has a right of retainer, but no charge on properties not in his possession for sums due to him from the estate and his claim in respect of them is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 12—Applicability.

Applicability.

——S. 12—Applicability—Time taken in obtaining copies—Deduction of—Extent of time permissible

Time taken actually in obtaining copies is to be deducted in calculating the period of limitation. (Lord Buckmaster.) PREMATH NATH ROY v. WILLIAM ARTHUR LEE. 49 Cal 999: 21 A. L. J. 118: 37 C. L. J. 86: 27 C. W. N. 156: 18 L. W. 56: (1923) M. W. N. 526: 1922 P. C. 352 (P. C.).

——S. 12—Applicability—Appellant must apply once for all for all necessary copies.

S. 12 merely extends the time for any given appeal by the period which is necessary to obtain essential documents for the Court to which the appeal is being made and it does not contemplate nor allow an appellant to apply for a series of documents one after the other and to claim that his time of appeal is extended merely because he has applied within the successive periods of what he contends is the extended limitation of time. In other words, an appellant must apply under S. 12 once and for all for every essential document before the period of limitation for his appeal has run out. (Mears, C. J. and Tudball, J.) MOOL RAJ v. NIADAR MAL. 18 A L. J. 208: 2 U. P. L. R. (A) 64: 55 I. C. 315: 42 A. 260.

——S. 12—Applicability—Provincial Insolvency Act, S. 46—Appeal.

An appeal presented under S. 46, Prov. Insol. Act, falls under S. 12, Limitation Act. (Richards, C. J. and Karamat Hussain and Chamier, JJ.) DROPADI v. HIRA LAL. 10 A. L. J. 3: 16 I. C. 149: 34 All. 496.

——S 12—Applicability—Application to be before expiry of the period allowed.

To claim the deduction of the period of obtaining copies under S. 12 of Limitation Act from that allowed for the appeal, the application must be made before the expiry of the period allowed as the time requisite for obtaining copy counts from the date on which application is made. (Mookerjee, A. C. J. and Fletcher, J.) NIBARAN CHANDRA DUTT v. MARTIN & Co. 58 I. C. 408: 32 C. L. J 127.

Only the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment appealed against and of the decree can be excluded. (Abdul Raoof, J.) CHUHARBAL v. BIRA RAM. 1923 Lah. 461.

——S. 12 (3)—Applicability—Time for obtaining copies of first Court's judgment—If excluded.

S. 12 (3) of the Lim. Act allows to be excluded only the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment against which the appeal is preferred. Even where the rules of the Court require the filing of the judgment of the Court of first instance

Under S. 12 of Lim. Act no period can be regarded as requisite under the Act which need not have elapsed if the appellant had taken reasonable and proper steps to obtain the order appealed against. Where the appellant did not apply to have the order drawn up within a reasonable time after judgment, and even after the draft was drawn up he did not return it after approval, he cannot claim to deduct the whole of the time occupied in obtaining a copy of the order. ———S. 12—Laches—Time requisite for obtaining copies—How reckoned.

The time requisite for obtaining copies is the time which an applicant takes to obtain copies using all due diligence either by himself or by an agent. The applicant must (1) present an application at the proper time and place, accompanied by the prescribed fee. (2) He must take delivery of the copies on the appointed day. If an applicant elects to work through an agent he does so at his risk because the time is the same for both the Principal and Agent. Applicability.

———Ss. 14 and 15—Applicability—Plaintiff defending another suit concerning the same subject-matter—Time occupied cannot be deducted.

Plaintiff obtained a decree for possession on February 15th, 1913. There was an appeal first to the District Court and then to the High Court which ultimately confirmed the decree on December 10th 1915. He filed his application for execution of this decree on June 28th, 1920. During the interval, however, the defendant filed suit No. 42 of 1916 for a declaration that the plaintiff's decree had been obtained by fraud. That litigation lasted till July 31st, 1920 and ended on the present plaintiff's favour. Held, that plaintiff may have been under an honest but mistaken impression that during all this time it would be futile for him to prosecute the application for execution of the decree which was challenged by the suit of 1916. That in a case of this kind it may be desirable that the plaintiff ought to be in a position to deduct the time taken up in defending a litigation of the nature such as in the present case, but that as it was impossible to bring the case within the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act the application was time-barred. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 14—Applicability.

———Ss. 14 and 15—Applicability—Debt due—Insolvency—Period of pendency o proceedings—Exclusion of time.

Where after a debt has become due and payable and time has commenced to run against the creditor, the debtor is adjudged insolvent by the order of a High Court cancelled later, if the creditor institutes a suit thereafter against the debtor to recover the debt time during which the insolvency proceedings are pending cannot be deducted in computing the period of limitation. ———S. 14—Applicability—Appeals—Not governed by section.

S. 14 of the Limitation Act is not applicable to appeals. (Sharfuddin and Co e, JJ.) BEN SINGH v. BARAHMAN DEO SINGH. 22 C. L J. 66 : 28 I. C. 211 : 19 C. W. N. 473.

———S. 14—Applicability—Delay.

The essential point to be considered in any application under S. 14 of the Act is that the previous proceeding was founded upon the same cause of action as is sought to be enforced in the subsequent suit. The section would not apply when the causes of action in the two suits are entirely distinct. 14 B. 365 approved. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) DAUD BAHADUR SINGH v. DEO NANDAN PRASAD. 20 I. C. 513: 17 C.L.J 596.

———S. 14—Applicability—Proceedings of—Revenue Court.

The proceedings in a Revenue Court do not fall under S. 14 of the Act so as to extend the period of limitation. (Shah Din and Beadon, JJ.) GOBINDA MAL v. SANTA. 83 P. R. 1914 : 26 I. C. 441 : 232 P. L. R. 1915.

———S. 14—Applicability of—Strict interpretation—Misconception of remedy.

Where a person misconceived his remedy and instead of proceeding by an application to set aside an execution sale brought a suit which was eventually dismissed, the time taken in prosecuting the suit and an appeal therefrom cannot be deducted under S. 14 of the Lim. Act in computing the period of limitation for an application. 22 A. 248 not foll. ; 23 M. 121 foll. (Oldfield and Venkatasubba Rao, JJ.) GANAPATHI MUDALIAR v. KRISHNAMA CHARI. 16 L. ———S. 14—Applicability—Insolvency proceedings.

The provisions of the Limitation Act are not applicable to proceedings under the Prov. Ins. Act. Therefore the fact that the petition was filed in wrong court not having jurisdiction cannot save limitation under S. 6 of the Prov. Insolv. Act. Civil Proceedings.

———S. 14, Cl. (2)—Civil Proceeding—Partially wrong.

Marten, J.—The two separate courts of Poona and Vadagaon have a common Judge; from the 1st to the 20th of each month the Judge sits at Haveli, Poona; from 21st to 25th he sits at Vadagaon and from the 25th to 30th of the month he sits at Lonavli a part of the Vadgaon Court. The plaintiff filed his Darkhast No. 284 of 1913 on the 10th April 1912. He filed it at Vadgaon quite correctly but as the Judge was then sitting at Haveli, the Court Officials apparently sent the papers to the Judge at Haveli and he on the 11th April 1912, gave a notice to the defendants returnable on the 14th or 15th April 1911 in the Haveli Court. The defendants did not appear and on the 15th April the Judge sitting in the Haveli Court made the warrant for possession absolute. Defendants appealed on the 26th February 1913. This order was set aside on the ground that Judge had no jurisdiction to direct the defendant to appear in the Haveli Court nor to make the order against them in that Court. It was accordingly directed that the Court of first instance should take up the Darkhast at the point where it was when the order for issuing the warrant of possession was passed. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court but on 3rd Feb. 1915 his appeal was dismissed. On 29th June 1915 Darkhast was brought on again, that the plaintiff was present but as the Judge was away the proceedings were adjourned to the next day. The plaintiff this time was not present in Court and accordingly the Darkhast was struck off. The next Darkhast he filed was, on the 7th June 1916. Held, that it was not time barred (Marten and Pratt, JJ.) PANDY WALAD DAGADU MAHAR v. JAMNADAS CHOT MALMARWADI. 1923 Bom. 218.

——S. 14—"Civil proceeding" — Revision petition to the High Court.

A revision petition under S. 115, C. P. Code, is a "Civil proceeding" within S. 14. The expression 'Court of appeal' in S. 14 means a court which has the power to bring under review the decision of an inferior court, irrespective of the extent of jurisdiction that the superior court may possess in reviewing the decision of the inferior court. Where a plaint was returned for presentation to a proper court and the plff. having unsuccessfully appealed against that order moved the High Court in revision and the High Court dismissed the revision petition. Held, that plff should deduct the time during which the revision petition in the High Court was pending. (Sundara Aiyar and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) VENKATRAGAYYA APPA ROW v. MURALA SRIRAMULU. 17 I. C. 593

——S. 14—Civil proceedings—Meaning.

One of several plffs. applied for execution of a decree passed in favour of them all; the application was disallowed in second appeal. Thereupon all the plffs. applied for execution. Held, the application was not barred as the plffs. had a right under S. 14, to exclude time occupied in good faith in prosecuting the previous application. 'Another civil proceeding' does not mean one in another Court. (Fawcett, J. C. and Raymond, A. J. C.) IBRAHIM v. GHULAM HUSSAIN.

Computation of Time.

——Ss. 14 and 4—Computation of time—Suit filed in wrong court—Holiday.

A plff. though entitled to deduct time of actual pendency in a wrong court, cannot exclude any extra day on the ground that it is a holiday (Richards, C. J. and Rafique, J.) MAKUND RAM v. RAMRAJ. 35 I. C. 292: 14 A. L. J. 310.

——S. 14—Computation of time—Order directing return of plaint—Period between date of order and date of returning plaint—Exclusion.

There is no reason why the period between the date of the order directing return of plaint and the date of returning the plaint should not be excluded under S. 14 of the Limitation Act. (Macleod, C. J. and Shah, J.) NAGINDAS KAPURCHAND v. MAGANLAL PANACHAND.

——S. 14—Computation of time—Suit filed in wrong court—Deduction of holiday—Permissibility of.

A suit was filed on 10-9-1918 the day next to the last day allowed, as the last day happened to be a holiday. The plaint however was presented in a wrong court and was returned on 23-1-1920 for presentation to the proper court. The plaint was re-presented on 26-1-1920 as the two previous days were holidays. On an objection raised by the defendant that the suit was barred held that the holiday prior to 10-9-1918 could not be excluded under S. 4 of the Lim. Act as the suit was filed in a wrong court. S. 4 applies only if the holiday follows the period that can be excluded under S. 14 but not if it precedes such period. 45 B. 443 dissented from. 8 L. W. 256: 36 M. 131: 44 M 817 foll. ——Ss. 14, 4—Computation of time—Expiry of time during Court's vacation—Institution in wrong Court on reopening day—Representation after return in the proper Court—Exclusion of time.

Where limitation for a suit expired during the Court's vacation and the plaint was presented in a wrong court on the re-opening day after its return was presented to present it to the proper Court the next day: held, that the suit was barred as S. 4 cannot be taken advantage of because under that section account could not be taken of the closing and the reopening of any other Court than that in which the suit was rightly dismissed, and as S. 14 cannot revive a claim which became time-barred by the plffs.' failure to institute the suit in the proper Court on the reopening of the Court. When a Court is invested with both original and small cause jurisdiction, a suit instituted on the small cause side, for the purpose of S. 4 of the Act, be regarded as a suit instituted in the court having jurisdiction to hear original suits.

Defect of Jurisdiction.

——S. 14—"Defect of jurisdiction"—Scope.

The words "defect of jurisdiction" in S. 14 of the Limitation Act mean a defect of jurisdiction peculiar to the court in which proceedings were taken ; and do not cover such mistakes as the presentation and prosecution of an appeal which LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 14—Due Diligence.

Due Diligence.

——S. 14—Due diligence.

For claiming exclusion of time during which a former proceeding was pending applicant must prove first that he had prosecuted the former proceeding with due diligence and secondly that the former Court had been unable to entertain it from defect of jurisdiction or other cause of a like nature. Where, therefore, each of the two plffs. in a suit came into a court originally to sue separately in respect of a contract which gave them a joint but not several right and their error was pointed out to them and they were given every opportunity of rectifying it, but they elected to proceed with their suits as then framed and by the time they were dismissed on the ground of non-joinder the period of limitation had expired. Held, that the plffs. had not shown that degree of diligence which alone could entitle them to the benefit of S. 14. 19 P. name of a widow was a benami for themselves and the other co-sharers whom they joined as defts. The latter associated themselves with the plaintiffs and asked for an adjudication of their right to a one-third share and a distinct issue in respect of their claim was without objection raised and decided and the court made a decree on 20th April 1903 in favour of both co-sharer defts. But on appeal the decree so far as it was in favour of the co-sharer defts. was set aside on 22nd February 1904 on the ground that not being plff. they could not be given any relief in that suit; and the co-sharer defts. thereupon on 14th November 1904 instituted a fresh suit for recovery of their fresh share. Held, that though limitation began to run against them from Jan. 1892 it remained in suspense whilst they were bona fide litigating their rights in the previous suit and this suit was therefore not time-barred. 12 C. ———S. 14—Good faith—Mixed question of fact and law.

Whether a party acted in good faith in S. 14 is a mixed question of law and fact. When a plaint is presented in wrong court on the last day and returned, was later filed in right Court, held the plff. is not entitled to benefit under the section as the error was not one that would be committed by a reasonable and prudent man acting in good faith with due diligence. A Court can grant the indulgence allowed by S. 14 only where the error is one that might be committed by a reasonable and prudent man exercising due diligence and acting in good faith. Mere absence of fraud is no ground for exemption. Where plff. filed a suit in a Sub-Judge's Court, which should have been filed in a Munsif's Court on the last day of limitation, and the plaint on being returned was filed in the latter Court, held that the plff. cannot get the benefit of S. 14. ———Ss. 14 (2) and 15 (1) and Art. 18—Good faith.

The appellant obtained a mortgage decree against respondents on 15th Oct, 1900 for sale; the decree was made absolute on 12th August 1902. The mortgaged property was sold on the 25th June 1906, and a portion of the decree was realized. On 24th July 1906 one of the Respondents instituted a suit for a declaration that the decree was not binding on him. The suit which was dismissed by the first Court was decreed by the first appellate court on 30th April 1907. This decree was reversed by the second appeal on 8th July 1908. On 8th December 1909, the present application for execution was made. On objection as to limitation it was urged that the mortgaged decree was in abeyance from 30th April 1907 to 8th July 1908 and that time should be excluded. Held, that the appellant could not claim the benefit of S. 14 (2) or 15 (1) as it was not a case of bona fide proceedings in a wrong court or of the staying of a decree by injunction. Even on general principles of equity the time could not be excluded. (Evans, A. J. C.) AMIR CHAND v. NARSING NARAIN. 10 I.C. 21.

——S. 14—Prosecution of proceeding—Time spent in prior litigation—Exclusion of—Bona fide claim by defendants.

S. 14 of the Limitation Act should be liberally construed, the principle being that limitation would remain in suspense while the plaintiff was bona fide litigating on his rights in a Court of Justice. 30 M. L. J. 529, 541 (P. C.) relied on. In a suit by some of the trustees of a mosque for removal of its manager and for the appointment of a receiver the manager (defendant) claimed that the suit was unsustainable and that instead of his being indebted to the mosque, the mosque owed him considerable sums of money which he had spent out of his pocket. An issue was raised as to the amount payable to or by the manager and the trial court found on evidence that the manager was entitled to be paid a sum of Rs. 3,302 from the mosque and directed the receiver appointed in the suit to pay up the said sum. On appeal the appellate court concurred with the trial judge as regards the liability of the mosque to pay the manager but dismissed the suit on the ground that all the trustees had not been impleaded as parties The manager thereupon brought a suit for recovery of the amount found to be due to him deducting the amounts actually paid by the receiver, appointed in the previous suit. The trustees pleaded that the suit was barred by limitation, Held, that the manager was entitled to exclusion of the time spent in the prior suit and in appeal therefrom under S. 14 of the Limitation Act and that his suit was in time. S. 14 of the Limitation Act does not require the Court to make an absolute distinction between cases of misjoinder and non-joinder in regard to S. 14 of the Limitation Act. They are on the same footing in so far as in consequence thereof the Court is barred from deciding a suit or application on its merits and in this respect they are on the same footing as a defect affecting jurisdiction. On 1-10 1912 an order striking the case off the list was passed on the ground that the firm had been adjudicated an insolvent. On 3-4-1916 it was decided in the insolvency proceedings that B alone was the proprietor of the firm. Thereafter on 19-4-1917 they made an application for execution against J. Held, that the application for execution dated 19-4-1917 was not barred by limitation under Art. 182 as the application of 13-8-1912 was to be considered against all the persons who were mentioned in the decree as members of the firm. Even if the application dated 19-4 1917 be regarded as new, the order of 1-10-1912 amounts to an injunction within S. 15 of the Limitation Act. The period from 1-10-1912 to 3-4-1916, is therefore to be excluded. 55 P. L. R. 1912, Dist. (Shadi Lal, J.) FIRM OF TARA CHAND v. JUGAL KISHORE. 51 I. C. 64 : 17 P. W. R. 1919.

An application for execution of a final decree in a mortgage suit was made on 16-11-1908 and a sale was held on 3-5-1909 in which the decree-holder was the purchaser. The sale was set aside on 14-2 1911 at the instance of the judgment debtor. On 18 3-1913 a second application for execution was made but as the judgment-debtor's son had instituted a suit and obtained an injunction restraining the decree-holder from selling his share of the property, the execution court stayed the entire proceedings. The suit was decreed on 23-5 1915 and the decree-holder applied on 12-1 1917 for execution. Held, that the application of 18-3-1913 made after the setting aside of the execution sale was one to revive and continue the earlier application and was not barred by limitation. As regards the third application, the decree-holder could under S.15 of the Lim. Act, deduct the time between the date when the order for stay was made and the date when it ceased to be operative. S. 15 (1) of the Act contemplates the stay of execution of a decree either by injunction or by order. Where execution of a decree had been stayed partly by injunction and partly by an order in execution, held, the decree-holder was entitled to deduct the time during which the injunction and order continued, the date on which the injunction was issued and the order made and the date on which the injunction and the order ceased to be operative. Where the mortgaged property was to be sold substantially as the property of A and it would have been futile for the decree-holder to proceed against B and C while the order of stay of execution against A was in force, the decree-holder is as against B and C entitled to a deduction, under S. 15 of the Limitation Act, of the period during which the stay order was in force. 27 A. 334 (P.C.); 23 C 397; 30 C 407; 28 M. 50, Rel. Pending appeal to the Privy Council, the High Court made an order allowing the decree-holder to execute the decree on furnishing security within one month. The decree-holder was unable to find the required security. There upon execution could not proceed and the Privy Council eventually dismissed the appeal for default. Held, that the order of the High Court, whatever its form, did in fact stay the execution of the decree, prevented him from executing the decree unconditionally as he was entitled to do. As the condition could not be performed, the effect was to stay the execution altogether. The time during which the order was in force could be deducted in reckoning the period of limitation for filing the execution petition. (*Miller, C. The pendency of an insolvency proceedings under the Pres. Towns Ins. Where Art. 144 of the Limitation Act applies, no deduction of time under S. 16 can be allowed either in law or under the general principles of equity. An auction sale was confirmed on 13—9—1902 and symbolical possession obtained on 12—1—1904. An application was made to set aside the sale on 21—6—1905, but was dismissed on 8—4—1906. A suit for possession was instituted on 11—7—1914 but the contesting defendants were added as parties only on 27—3—1916. Held, (1) the sale became absolute on 13—9—1902 when the sale was confirmed and not on 8—4—1906 on the dismissal of the application for setting aside the sale, as the confirmation of a sale cannot be kept in abeyance when proceedings are not taken to set it aside before confirmation; (2) Art, 137 is not applicable to the case, as the judgment-debtor was in possession at the date of sale; (3) Nor would Art. 138 govern, as it evidently refers to a case where the purchaser has not obtained delivery of possession: even if it applies, the suit is barred even after deducting the period during which the application to set aside the sale was pending ; (4) the proper provision applicable is Art. 144 and from the date symbolical possession was delivered the possession of the judgment-debtor was adverse to the purchaser. The title and authority of the executor are derived from the will and not from the probate. An administrator on the other hand derives his title solely under his grant, and cannot, therefore, sue an administrator before he gets his grant, Quaere :—As to an executor who renounces probate, the cause of action arises in favour of the estate of a deceased person at or after his death (1) if there be an executor, time will begin to run at once, even though probate has not been obtained; (2) if there be no executor, time runs only from the actual grant of letters of administration. Execution sale.

Where owing to the fraud of the decree-holder or other parties certain irregularities in the conduct of a sale are concealed from the knowledge of the judgment-debtor, the latter is entitled to apply for setting aside the sale in spite of confirmation and the time for the application is to be computed from the date when the fraud comes to the knowledge of the applicant. 17 C. 769 : 14 C. 681, Ref. ——S, 18—Execution sale—Setting aside of —Fraud subsequent to sale, if to be proved.

In order to avail himself of S 18, the judgment-debtor need not prove fraud subsequent to execution sale. The right to have execution sale set aside accrues the very moment the sale takes place, and if the judgment-debtor was, by means of fraud, kept from the knowledge of the sale, he was necessarily kept from the knowledge of his right to have the sale set aside and S. 18 of the Act will apply to such a case. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) JOTINDRA MOHUN ROY v. BROJENDRA KUMAR. 24 I. C. 249 : 19 C. W. N. 553.

——Ss. 18 and Art. 166—Execution sale— Setting aside—Limitation.

When a sale is confirmed it becomes absolute under the Code : but it can be challenged by a person interested, who is able to satisfy the Court that the confirmation of the sale ought not to have been made either because of fraud or irregularity : and the petitioner can bring his case within S. 18 of the Limitation Act. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) NILMONI SINGH v. BRINDA DASYA. 16 I. C. 436.

Fraud.

——S. 18—Fraud—Onus of proof.

The onus is on the person committing the fraud to prove that the person injured thereby has had clear and definite knowledge of the fact constituting the fraud at a time too remote to allow him to seek the assistance of the Court. 17 B. 341 (P. ——S. 18—Fraud—Antecedent to cause of action—Effect.

There can be no inflexible rule of law that fraud antecedent to an execution sale necessarily indicates fraud subsequent to the sale. It is also clear that fraud antecedent to the sale may have an important bearing on the question whether there was fraud subsequent to the sale, sufficient

Generally mere ignorance of a plaintiff of his right to sue would not prevent time from running against him ; it is only when such ignorance has been brought about by the fraud of his opponent that S. 18 of the Limitation Act can be applied in his favour. To constitute fraud within S. 18, it is not enough that the right to sue should be merely unknown to the plff. but there must have been some intentional imposition or some deliberate concealment of facts by which the ignorance of the plff. was brought about. 8 W. ——S 18—Fraud— Mis-statement of value of property in execution petition—Fraudulent concealment.

To make S. 18 applicable to an application to set aside an execution sale, the fraud need not be subsequent to the sale for a fraud is a continuing influence and until that influence ends, it retains its power of mischief 36 C. 654 : 17 B 341, Ref. Fraud is not to be lightly charged or lightly found. The mis-statement in an execution petition of the value of the property assuming it to be a fraud, does notconstitute such fraudulent concealment as is necessary to save limitation. Even if the non-publication of the sale proclamation in the mofussil exposed the sale to attack, to bring the case within S. 18 of the Act, it must be shown that the judgment debtor was by means of fraud of which the decree-holder was guilty or to which he was accessory, kept from the knowledge of his right. ——S. 18—Fraud— Antecedent to cause of action—Applicability of section.

S. 18 of the Limitation Act applies only to such cases of fraud as amount to concealment and is intended to keep from the injured party the knowledge of his wrong or of its remedy ; it is however doubtful if the section applies to a case in which the fraud was antecedent to the accrual of the right. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 18—Fraud.

———S 18—Fraud—Concealment—Alienation by a sonless male proprietor—Limitation—Burden of proof.

It is for the plffs. who sue as reversionary heir to show that their claim is within time. Where the alienation is made openly and mutual union is published and there have been settlements giving effect to the alienation there is no fraudulent concealment of which advantage can be taken under S. 18 of the Limitation Act. ———S. 18—Fraud—Plea of—Express averment—Necessity of.

If the allegations in the plaint necessarily imply fraud on the part of the deft. or indeed suggest that any such imputation is intended, the absence of express description of the deft.'s conduct as fraudulent is no bar to the plff.'s relying on it. In such cases, the Court should return the plaint under O. 6, Rr. 4 and 17, C. P. Code, to the plff for amendment. A mere omission to give notice of a breach of the contract to the plff. cannot of itself be regarded as an act of fraud on the part of the deft. who was so in default. (*Reid, C. ———S. 18—Fraud—Failure to give pre-emptor notice of sale.

The omission by a vendor to give notice of sale to a pre-emptor does not amount to fraud within the meaning of S. 18 unless there was an intentional fraudulent concealment or an indication to that effect; a sale-deed which has only one attesting witness does not apply any such concealment (Rattigan and Chevis, JJ.) KAKA RAM v. MUHAMMAD ALI. 130 P. In a suit to set aside a decree on the ground of fraud the onus is on the plff. to give some evidence of the fraud on which the onus is shifted on to the deft. to prove that the plff. had knowledge more than three years before suit. The plff. is not required to prove when he became aware of the alleged fraud where he alleges a date within 3 years of the suit. ——S. 19—Essentials of acknowledgment—Subsisting liability—Mortgage proved but date unknown—Onus of proving acknowledgment is in time

In a suit for redemption plaintiff set out and proved all the particulars of the mortgage excepting the date for which he mainly relied on an acknowledgment, enumerating the mortgage in detail, and mentioning that it was redeemable upon payment. There was no evidence either way as to whether this acknowledgment was within 60 years of the mortgage. Held, per Piggott and Walsh, JJ. that no inference could be drawn that the mortgage was at that date subsisting as a mortgage and was not barred by limitation ; before the plaintiff could succeed upon an acknowledgment at all, he had to establish that it was made before the expiration of the period of limitation. (Per Banerji, J.) Where a mortgagee has acknowledged a mortgage, that acknowledgment is prima facie evidence until rebutted, that it was a mortgage which subsisted at the time when the acknowledgment was made and was not a mortgage which had become extinct by lapse of time. A reply by a customer to a tradesman to his bill with the words "accounts rendered," that detailed accounts be sent, does not amount to an acknowledgment. If the writing does not contain any acknowledgment of personal liability or of a debt this cannot be imported into it by referring to statements of the parties or to other writings. The writing sought to be used as an acknowledgment should in itself import that the person making the acknowledgment is under an existing liability. 26 Mad. 34; 31 Cal. 195, ref. An acknowledgment need not specify every legal consequence of the thing acknowledged. From an acknowledgment of a debt follow the legal incidents, which flow from the existence of a liability. In fact an admission by a mortgagor of his liability under the mortgage carries with it an admission of all the remedies to which the mortgagee is entitled under it. 25 C. 844; 6 O. L. J. 248, Ref. If the manager of a joint Hindu family makes an acknowledgment in a statement made before a Court and the circumstances indicate that he was making the statement on behalf of the other members of the family, the latter would be liable on the strength of that acknowledgment (*Kanhaiya Lal, J. It is a sufficient acknowledgment, if it is of a liability, whether pecuniary or in relation to other obligation, and is in respect of the property or right which is the subject-matter of the suit or application. The acknowledgment need not necessarily be in respect of the particular relief prayed for in a suit or application. The word "exact" in Expl. (1) to S. 19 is intended to qualify the specification of the nature of the property or rights rather than of the properties or right itself. (*Wazir Hassan, A. J. ——S. 19—Implied acknowledgment—Part payment—Liability impliedly acknowledged Towards a promissory note executed by him defendant made part payments on three different dates. He endorsed the payments subsequently at the foot of the note, added up the total and signed underneath. Held, that the endorsement was an acknowledgment sufficient to save limitation under S 19 of the Lim. Act, since it recorded that the deft. had paid certain amounts towards the liability which stood against his name on the promissory note. There was therefore an admission of liability to pay the balance. An endorsement on a promissory note by the promissor is an acknowledgment of liability which starts a fresh period of limitation from the date on which it is made. It makes no difference that such endorsement is below an account showing what has already been paid on the promissory note. (*Macleod, C. ———S. 20—Mode of payment—Part-payment and acknowledgment—Distinction between—Settlement of accounts—Accounts stated.

It is open to a borrower to make a promise in writing signed by himself, to pay a debt of which his creditors might have enforced payment but for the law of limitation of suits. If the entry be construed as a promise to pay, such promise is applicable quite as much to the sum borrowed on that day as to the sum found due on adjustment of account. 18 C. L. J. 269 : 18 C. L. J. 329: 23 M. 94 : 31 A. 495 : 33 M. 159 Rel. The distinction between an acknowledgment and promise to pay is sometimes difficult to draw, specially as an unconditional acknowledgment, has always been held to imply a promise to pay because that is the natural inference. If nothing is said to the contrary, it is what every honest man would mean to do. The case is clear where the entry is made in respect of an aggregate sum, with regard to a portion whereof there could only be a promise to pay and not an acknowledgment. 6 Bom. 683; 8 B. 405 Rel. It is not necessary that the payment should be actually made in money, for any arrangement between the parties intended to have the effect of discharging pro tanto the party indebted, will have the same effect as a payment of money. L. R. 2 Ex 158 Rel. Thus where there are debts due on both sides and the accounts are gone through by the parties and a balance struck, this in effect constitutes a payment of the amount of the smaller debt. But it is the striking of the balance that constitutes the payment, not the mere existance or even statement in writing of gross demands. An agreed statement of accounts where all the items are on one side only, if the statement is not signed by the party liable is inoperative as an acknowledgment and will not be allowed to support an action on an account stated in respect of items which are statute—barred. ——S. 20—Payment of interest—Receipt of rents and profits by sub-mortgagee—Effect on original mortgage.

The purpose of S. 20, Sub-S. (1) of the Limitation Act is clear. Where interest on a debt or legacy is paid by the person liable to pay the debt or legacy or where part of the principal of a debt is paid by the debtor the person entitled to the debt or legacy acquires the benefit of a fresh period of limitation. Under S. 20, sub S. (2), the receipt of the rent or produce of mortgaged property by the mortgagee in possession is deemed to be a payment for purposes of sub-S. (1). The scope of sub-S. (2) is limited : it extends the period of limitation allowed to a mortgagee for suing on the mortgage debt ; it does not confer a like indulgence on a mortgagor suing to redeem the mortgage. The effect of any other view of S. 20 would be practically to exclude suits for redemption of usufructuary mortgages from the operation of the Limitation Act. In any event receipt of rents by a sub-mortgagee does not extend the time for redemption of the original mortgage. ———S. 20—Payment of interest—Interest as such.

To bring a case within S. 20 of the Limitation Act it is not essential that the debtor should on the occasion of every payment, state explicitly that the payment is made on account of interest as such. It is enough if circumstances exist which make the conclusion inevitable that the payment must have been made for interest. 9 Bom, L R. 1329; 31 A. 285 Foll. ———S. 20—Payment of interest—Person liable to pay—Purchaser at Court auction.

A purchaser of mortgaged property at a Court auction, is a person "liable to pay the mortgage debt" within S. 20, and therefore if he pays into Court a sum equal to the amount due for costs and an excess equal to the amount of interest, the excess must be regarded as payment on account of interest as such. ———S. 20 — Payment of interest—Interest added to principal.

Where in the accounts both of plff. and defts, interest due up to October 25th was calculated and added to the principal, thus wiping out the debt on account of interest, it is a payment of interest which saves limitation under S. 20 of the Limitation Act. 24 B. 493; 29 M. 234, Foll. ———S. 20—Payment of interest—What is.

Where the agreement between a creditor and a debtor was that a credit in the creditor's book of a certain amount in favour of the debtor should be treated as "payment of interest" by the debtor and it is relied on to save limitation, the evidence must show that the debtor was a party to the arrangement and the accounts charging interest from time to time were accepted by him. A creditor cannot by a more unilateral act of his own turn a payment into payment of interest as such. (Sankaran Nair and Oldfield, JJ.) NAGAPPA v. RAMANATHAN. (1916) 2 M. W.N. 264 : 29 I. ———S. 20—Payment of interest 'as such'—Appeal, second—Question if can be raised.

To make S. 20 of the Limitation Act apply, there must be an indication that the debtor made a payment with the intention that it should be taken for interest. The mere appropriation by a creditor or that interest was due on the date, is no such indication, but the fact that the amount due and the amount paid are same, may amount to such an indication. The question is one of fact and cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) JAGO v. MAHADEO. 59 I. C. 709.

———S. 20—Payment of interest—Intention to pay—Appropriation.

An intention to pay interest as such ought not to be inferred merely from the creditor's appropriating payments in accordance with his legal power. But if the method of appropriation is determined at the outset by express contract between the parties, specific appropriation on the occasion of each payment is not necessary. (*Drake-Brockman, J. A statement of payment made in writing by the payer after the expiry of the original period of limitation is a sufficient compliance with S. 20 of the Limitation Act, if the payment itself was made within that period. The written statement is merely evidence of the fact and date of payment, and it is the fact of payment that extends the period and it is the date of payment from which it is extended. The proviso to S. 20 lays down that the fact and date of payment can be taken as proved only by evidence of a certain kind and so imposes a minimum decree of credibility in the evidence. 17 M. 92 ; 9 N. The distinction between simple debts and real debts maintained in the English Statutes of limitation is abrogated by S. 21 of the Limitation Act, There is no distinction made by the section between the case of co-mortgagors and that of co-mortgagees. The word "joint contractors" in the section includes joint mortgagors also. S. 21 of the Limitation Act is an explanation to Ss 19 and 20 of the Act the object being to provide that one only of the contracting parties shall not ordinarily impose a liability on the matter by anything done by him. ——S. 22—Applicability—Application to set aside ex parte decree—Addition of parties.

S. 22 of the Lim. Act, which speaks only of suits, does not apply to applications. An application to set aside an ex parte decree cannot, as regards an added party, be regarded to have been made when the added party is actually brought on the record of the application. When a thing is deemed to be something else, in truth it is not that something else, but is treated as that something else by a statutory fiction for the purposes of that particular statute. Thus the word "deemed" in S. 22 of the Limitation Act indicates that the statutory fiction can be resorted to only when after the institution of a suit a new party is added or substituted. N. 464, Appr. O. 1, R. 9 only applies to cases where relief can be given if the necessary parties are joined and the application is within time, but not to cases where the parties to be joined, are barred in the assertion of their rights. In that case though they may be joined the suit must be dismissed. (Atkinson and Jwala Prasad, JJ.) BHAGELA KOER v. ABDUL RAHMAN.

Where in a suit for the correction of a certain entry in the Record-of-rights the deft. was described as Mr. P. J. Forbes instead of Miss P. J. Forbes. Held, that the suit was not barred by limitation inasmuch as the mistake in the name of the deft. was but a clerical one and the case was merely one of misdescription since the party that was meant to be deft. in the suit was the person whose name had been recorded in the Record-of-rights. ——S. 22—Scope of—Devolution of interest—C. P. Code. O. 22, R. 10.

S. 22 (1) of the Limitation Act (corresponding to the Straits Ordinance) contemplates cases in which a suit is defective by reason of the right persons not having been made parties, but not cases in which the suit was originally properly instituted but has become defective owing to a devolution of interest. ——S. 22—Scope of—Joinder after limitation of a party not necessary.

Where the holder of a bond was not impleaded by the plaintiff assignee until the expiry of the period of the limitation but the assignee admitted that she had authorised her agent to assign the bond for consideration, held S. 22 of the Limitation Act does not lay down that a joinder after the period of limitation shall in all cases necessarily involve a dismissal of the suit. If the presence of a party added after the prescribed period is not necessary to enable the court to award such relief as may be given in the suit framed by the plaintiff and he is joined ex majori cautela the suit is not barred merely because the limitation had expired at the time when he was impleaded. (Shadi Lal, C.J.) KUNJ LAL v. HARI RAM. 1923 Lah 438 (1).

——S. 22—Scope of—Addition of parties—Suit—Appeal.

S. 22 of the Lim. Act does not prescribe any period of limitation for the joinder of a party to a suit under O. 1, R. 10. C.P. Code or to an appeal under O. 41, R. 20, C.P. Code, and there is nothing to prevent such a joinder in either a suit or appeal even after it is barred by time. S. 22 applies undoubtedly to appeals as much as to suits in principle, if not in words. But there is a difference in the result arising out of the application of S. 5 of the Lim. Act to appeals and not to suits. A suit in which a defendant is joined after the period of limitation has expired must necessarily be dismissed against him. In an appeal, however, there may possibly be reasons justifying its admission after time under S. 5. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) RUKSA v. RAJIBA BAHU.

——S. 22—Scope of—"Suit" deemed—Meaning.

'Suit' in S. 22 does not include 'application' and hence the section does not apply to applications. Apart from the section, an application to set aside an ex parte decree, cannot as regards an added party, be considered as made when the added party is brought on record, 'Deemed' indicates that the statutory fiction can be resorted to, only when after the institution of a suit a new party is added or substituted, (Dass and Bucknill, JJ.) CHANDRIKA BOY v. RAM KUER THAKUR.

——S. 22—Substitution of parties—Transposition of pro forma deft. as plff.—Limitation.

Where a pro forma deft. is transferred from the category of a defendant to that of a plff. there is no introduction of a new plaintiff within S. 22 of the Lim. Act. 35 C. 1065; 34 B. 91; 38 C. 342 Rel. Consequently even though the suit would be time barred if instituted on the date of such transposition it does not affect the suit already instituted. ——S. 22—Suit for damages for wrongful distraint—Limitation—Agra Tenancy Act, S. 146

The plaintiffs had cut and stacked, from the land, within the purview of their lease a large quantity of thatching grass which they hoped to sell at a substantial profit. The defendants wrongfully and maliciously levied a distraint, under colour of Chapter IX of the Tenancy Act, upon this grass of the plaintiffs. The immediate result of this was that the plaintiffs missed their market and were unable to sell their grass, while the defendants were disposing of theirs. In the meantime the rainy season began and the land upon which the plaintiffs' stacks were standing was flooded. The plaintiffs brought a suit to contest the distraint and finally succeeded in obtaining an order from the Court setting the distraint aside. When however, they became entitled to re-enter into possession of their own grass, the stacks, had been so damaged by rain and flood as to be utterly worthless. Thereupon the plaintiffs claimed the full value of the stacks, as the correct measure of damages for the wrong done to them by the defendants in wrongfully distraining the same. The distraint was levied on the 15th May 1919. The suit under S. 142 of the Tenancy Act, to contest the distraint was terminated by the Court's order releasing the grass on 16th of September 1919. The present suit for damages was insituted on the 12th of December 1919.

Held following Dalip Upadhia v. Gauridat Upadhia (II Legal Remembrancer 61) the cause of action for a suit for damages in respect of a wrongful distraint takes its origin from the day on which the distraint came to an end and the suit may be lawully instituted within the prescribed limitation period of three months calculated from the said date. The suit was therefore within time. (Piggott, Walsh and Lindsay, JJ.) JHABBU v. MUSAMMAT BATUL. 45 A. 208: L. R. 4 A. 1 (Rev.): 1923 All. 146.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), S. 23.

A suit for dissolution of marriage or for a declaration as to an accomplished divorce is essentially different in cause of action from a suit for restitution of conjugal rights. The cause of action for a suit for restitution of conjugal rights is founded on a breach of the contract of marriage and the breach continues so long as the person of the wife is withheld from the husband and he is denied the undoubted legal rights of her conjugal society. The same cannot be predicated of a cause of action for a suit for dissolution of marriage or for a declaration that a divorce had taken place between the parties. The latter suit is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act and S. 23 has no application to the case. (Wazir Hasan, A J.C.) MAHOMED HAMIDULLAH KHAN v. FAKHRJAHAN BEGAM. 8 O. L. ——S. 26—Right to take water based on lost grant—Section does not apply.

S. 26 of the Lim. Act does not govern a claim to take water from a tank where that claim is based on a lost grant. It applies only to cases of easements claimed by prescription. (Greaves and Panton, JJ.) GURU PRASANNA ROY v. FUL CHAND MONDAL. 1923 Cal. 291 (2).

A customary right of way is not an easement in the legal sense of that term, and even if it were an easement it is not necessary for the party claiming it to rely on S. 26 of the Act, if the existence of the right could be otherwise established, A right based on custom is established by proof of the custom and it is not necessary that there should be evidence from which a lost grant may be presumed. (Richardson and Suhrawardy, JJ.) ALI MAHOMED v. SHEIKH KATU. 36 C. L. J, 280 : 1923 C. 200.

——S. 26—Suit for declaration of right of way—Affirmative proof of 'actual user'—'Enjoyment'—'Actual exercise.'

It is not necessary for a plaintiff suing for a declaration of a right of way to prove affirmatively "actual user" of the way down to a date within 2 years before the suit. A person may be in 'enjoyment' of a right of way during a period of time, though the way is not actually "used" by him every moment. Cessation of user is not always inconsistent with continuance of enjoyment as of right (i.e.) cessation of user is not an invariable indication of abeyance of enjoyment of a right. ——S. 26—Customary right—Section not applicable.

A customary right of way for all the villagers is not case of acquisition by prescription and is not governed by S. 26 of the Limitation Act. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) MAHOMED NURAL HUQ v. BAKSU MANDAL. 65 I. C. 509.

A person may be said to be in 'enjoyment' of a right of way during a period of time, though he does not actually "use" the way every moment. ———S. 26—Right of way—Non-user for two years prior to suit.

A plff. bringing an action for obstruction of a right of way for boats is not barred by S. 26 of the Limitation Act by non-user within two years prior to the institution of the suit. 8 C. 132, Foll. (Holmwood and Chapman, JJ.) RAM GOPAL SEN v. ABHOYA CHARAN GHOSH. 26 I. C. 485.

———S. 26—Obstruction—Filling up channel—When amounts to.

The filling up of a water channel will not necessarily constitute an obstruction of the plff's enjoyment of his right within S. 26, if no water for irrigation was required at that time and there was no refusal by defts. to reopen it. (Teunon, J.) KANAI LAL MANDAL v. JADAB LAL GANGOPADHYA. 25 I. C. 386.

———S. 26—Easement—Discharge of surplus water—Right to compel.

When the plff. has not proved the use of a watercourse carrying surplus water of adjoining lands over deft.'s land into his own peaceably and openly as an easement and as of right for statutory period within S. 26 the plff cannot compel the defts, who claim to use the water entirely to continue to discharge the water or prevent them from blocking up the channel in their own land, though the defts. and the adjoining owners may have acquired a right of easement to discharge such water on the plff.'s land. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) BIMALCHANDRA v. CHANDRA KANT. 22 I.C. 514 : 19 C. L. J. 45.

Under S. 26 of the Limitation Act, the onus is on the plff. to prove that the user was as of right. The presumption to be drawn from user is a question of fact depending on the circumstances of the case, 8 C. W. N. 359, Foll. ———S. 26—Right of way—User as of right—Onus.

Under S. 26 of the Limitation Act which is the law in force in India, a right of way claimed must be proved to have been used as of right and the onus is on the plff. to prove it. (Carnduff and Chapman, JJ.) BARODA KANT KARMAKAR v. SREE NATH SIL. 18 I. C. 211.

A right of fishing is an easement under S. 26, Limitation Act. A plff claiming a statutory easement of fishery must prove that the right was exercised within two years before the commencement of the suit; but not so where plff. traces the right to the end of the 18th. century. ———S. 26—Scope of.

S 26 is concerned only with the acquisition of the easement and not with the extent of the right or with the remedy by which a disturbance of the right may be vindicated, for which English Law would have to be resorted to. Private rights of fishing in public waters may be acquired either by a grant from the Crown or by prescription from which a grant may be presumed. Quaere.—Whether exclusive rights can be acquired in a tidal or navigable river by proof of mere enjoyment in the manner provided by S 26 of the Limitation Act. A person to acquire the right of fishery, by prescription must show that he had an uninterrupted enjoyment of it openly, publicly and peacefully for over the statutory period; but where such an enjoyment was in exercise of a common right which be shared with others, he should show that his user was in assertion of a higher right than the general right in himself and for exclusive benefit. ———S. 26—User of intermittent nature—Absence of assertion of rights—Acquisition of rights.

User of an intermittent nature unaccompanied by assertion of right is very common and arouses no opposition. A pond is not susceptible of actual physical possession by the legal owner and possession follows title, unless the usurper can prove long and continuous exclusion of rightful owner. ———S. 26—User as of right—Open user for 20 years—Right of way.

An open user of a right of way for twenty years without interruption and without sufference on the owner's part is an enjoyment as of right within S. 26 of Limitation Act. Plffs. and defts. were co-sharers in a will. Plffs. had used a road across defts'. fields without let or hindrance for a period of 20 years and this road they could use to gain access to the well Held, that having regard to the habits of the people of this country the enjoyment of the road "as of right" within S. 26 of the Limitation Act should have been presumed, (Broadway, J.) DIWAN v. JAGTA.

———S. 26—Easement—Supply of water from natural stream—Acquisition

An easement of the supply of water from a natural stream may be acquired by twenty years' user under the provisions of S 26 of the Limitation Act, 35 P. R. 1895, Foll. 49 P. R. 1888, not Foll. ———S. 26—Easement—User for 19 years, 6 months.

In reckoning the period of 20 years obstruction acquiesced in for less than one year before suit must be ignored and a plff. who has proved enjoyment of a right for 19 years and a fraction within one year before suit, must be taken to have established his right of easement. An easement can therefore be acquired after an enjoyment of 19 years and a fraction and the 20 years period in S. 26 is accordingly curtailed by the explanation. (Shadi Lal, J.) SAWAN SINGH v. CHATTAR SINGH. 46 I. C. 17 : 48 P. R. 1918.

———S 26—Easement—User as of right—Meaning of—Acquisition—Essentials.

To become an easement the enjoyment of a right must be open, peaceable and as of right ; and so the ability of the servient owner to stop the enjoyment, irrespectively of the dominant owner's will is inconsistent with the idea of a real easement existing.

User as of right implies a user against the will of the owner of the property over which the user is sought ; and so an annual payment for the use of a mill negatives the idea of the user being as of right, and consequently there can be no easement in such a case. (Shadi Lal, J.) SUNDAR v. NAG. 37 I. C. 788 : 4 P. R. 1917.

The user of a road by the public openly and as of right is sufficient, apart from the law laid down in the Limitation Act, 1877, S. 26, to raise a presumption of its dedication to their use though such presumption might be rebutted by evidence of the owner's intention that the public should only have a permissive use or that the dedication was implied to a particular class of persons only. 62 P. ———Ss. 26 and 27—Applicability — Easements.

Ss. 26 and 27 do not apply to cases where the easements are acquired under the Easements Act. The question even as regards an easement right claimed under the statutory prescription is not one of limitation but whether the enjoyment necessary to acquire the prescriptive right, has been peaceable and as an easement without interruption for 20 years within 2 years before suit. ———S. 26 and Art. 144—Fishery—Immoveable property—Adverse possession.

A right of fishery is an interest in land and falls under Art 144 of the Lim. Act. It is not necessary for the plff. to prove user for 20 years under S. 26 of the Lim. Act. (B. K. Mullick and Ross, JJ.) MESSRS. HENRY HILL AND CO. v. SHEORAJ RAI. 3 Pat. L. T. 53 : 1922 P. 9.

The right to establish and maintain a ferry over the property of another is a right of easement and to make it absolute it should be exercised as an easement and as of right for twenty years. Acts referable to an exercise of easement are distinct from those of user, the latter alone constitute dispossession, the former do not. ———S. 26—Person—Claim to a right of way.

The term 'person' in the first clause of section 26 cannot be limited to the narrow meaning of individual, but when the claim to a right of way is made in virtue of the occupation of a piece of land. A plff. seeking to enforce a right to discharge surplus water through a watercourse may base his right either on the acquisition of an easement to be proved under S. 26 or as an alternative case on a natural right existing in him apart from any easement, provided the matter was brought before the trial Court in some form or other in which latter case on proof of the right the deft. has to establish the acquisition of a right to dam the flow under S. 26. 1 M. 335, 7 W. ——S. 28 and Art. 144—Discontinuous user —Right to cut wood from trees—Adverse possession.

Plff.'s ancestor obtained leave in 1867 to plant trees on land belonging to, the Government. He was to do so at his own expense and to tend them; the only right he was entitled to, was to get the fallen dry wood from the trees. Certain transfers of the village took place, and on two occasions viz., once in 1900, and another time in 1910, the deft. who purchased the village got the proceeds of sales of such wood. The plffs. on both the occasions asserted their claim to wood or the price thereof but were unsuccessful. Within six years from the date of the last sale they brought the suit for declaration of their right to get the dry wood under the agreement of 1867. Held, that the plff.'s right to take and appropriate wood from trees when fallen and cut being one which could only be exercised on occasions that is when the wood might fall or be cut from the trees and not occurring every year or at stated times and there having been disputes as to the right between the parties on two previous occasions there could be no adverse possession. Quaere—Whether S. 28 of the Limitation Act applies at all to the case like this. ——Ss. 28 and 29—Applicability—Restitution of conjugal rights—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Ss. 2, 28 and Sch. II, Art 35

The result of the expiry of the period of limitation in respect of rights to restitution of conjugal rights is that the remedy is only barred, but not extinguished under S. 28. The portion of S. 2 of the old Act of 1877 enacting "that nothing herein or in that Act contained shall be deemed to affect any title acquired or to revive any right to sue barred under that Act or any enactment thereby repealed" has not been reproduced in S. 29 of the new Act of 1908 and therefore a suit for restitution of conjugal rights while the Act of 1908 is in force, is maintainable though itis filed after the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed under Art. 35 of the old Act. A mortgage by conditional sale was made on February 25, 1866 for a period of six years providing that if after six years, anything remained due to the mortgagees, they might take possession of the mortgaged property and realise the principal and interest that the property should not be transferred so long as any principal and interest remained due and that if it was transferred while the money due to the mortgagee was not paid, the latter might bring a suit for recovery of the principal and interest within 6 years and might also get possession "by completion of sale." Nothing was paid on foot of principal or interest on the mortgage. Proceedings under S. 8 of the Reg. XVII of 1806 were not taken by the mortgagee. Part of the mortgaged property was transferred by the mortgagor in 1867. ———S. 31 (1) and (2)—Withdrawal of suit—Fresh suit it should be brought under S. 31 (2).

A suit in 1907 for recovery of money on a mortgage was withdrawn with liberty to bring fresh suit. After the passing of the Limitation Act of 1908 the plff. brought the said suit on the same mortgage. It was contended by the deft. that the plff. should proceed under Sub-S. 2, S. 31 of the Lim. Act. Held that the plff. was entitled to bring a fresh suit under Sub-S. (1) S. 31 of the Lim. Act and was not bound to proceed under Sub-S. (2). A person who has withdrawn a suit with permission to bring a fresh one should not be compelled to resort to the procedure allowed by Sub-S (2). (Chamier, J. C.) PARBHU DAYAL v. MANDAN SINGH. 12 I. C. 323

S. 31 of the Limitation Act applies to an application for restoration of a case dismissed or withdrawn on the ground of the 12 years rule of limitation and has no application to a fresh suit. Such a suit is governed by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been instituted. (Karamat Hussain, J.) CHHAJJU v. KHYALI RAM. 14 I. C. 175 : 9 A. L. J. 378.

———S. 31 (2)—Applicability—Mortgages executed before and after 1882—Distinction.

For the purposes of S. 31 (2) of the Lim. Act there is no distinction between mortgages executed before and after 1882 (T. P Act.) 16 I C. 236 Foll. 21 M. L. J. 562 ; 23 M. L. J. 562 ; 23 M. L. ———Art. 2—Sale under—Sale under protest—Unauthorised sale.

Plff's. property was advertised for sale. He tendered the decretal amount to the officer of the Court empowered to receive the money in order to stop the sale. The Officer however in spite of the deposit, got the property sold. Plff. brought a suit against the officer for damages. Held, that the basis of the suit being that the deft. had refused to accept the money which he was bound to accept under C. P. Code the suit was governed by Art. 2. (Richards, C.J. and Banerjee, J.) MUKATLAL v. S. GOPAL SARUP. 41 All. 219 : 48 I. C. 815 : 16 A. L. J. 1017.

——— Art. 10—Right of pre-emption to mortgagee—Mortgagee refusing to make offer when asked—Suit for redemption—Right of pre-emption if can be pleaded in defence.

A mortgage document contained a covenant that without the consent in writing of the mortgagee, the properties would not be sold, mortgaged, leased etc., and giving the latter a right of pre emption. In 1918, the mortgagor gave notice to the mortgagee of his intention to sell and asked him what offer he would make. No offer was made by the mortgagee who took up the position that the mortgagor could not sell. The properties were then sold in 9-4-1918 and in a suit in 1921 by the mortgagee to pre-empt and a coun er-suit by the purchasers to redeem. Held, the sale being of the equity of redemption of which phy ical possession could not be given, limitation for the pre-emption suit ran under Art. 10 from the date of registration of the sale-deed and where such a suit is barred, he cannot in the redemption suit plead by way of defence his claim for pre-emption 24 Mad. 449, 29 Mad 336 and 40 Mad 1134 Foll. 13 Mad. 491, 20 Mad, 305 Not foll.

The 1st defendant purchased the land in suit in execution of a mortgage-decree and took delivery of the same through the Court. Thereupon the plaintiff, who claimed half of each of plots Nos. 1 to 3 and entirely of plot No. 4 made an application under O. 21, R. 100 of the C. P. Code. That application was dismissed on 8-7-1916 and in these terms "On the applicant's (plaintiff's) side he examined himself. The opposite party is ready. It appears from the applicant's deposition that he is still in possession of the disputed plots of land. So here is no cause of action for his application under O. 21, R. 100, Civil Procedure Code Hence it is ordered that this case be dismissed with costs to the opposite party. Pleader's fees Rs. 2 only." The plaintiff did not bring any suit for recovery of possession within a period of one year from the date of the last mentioned, namely, 8th July 1916. His present suit was instituted on the 7th March 1918 that is more than a year after the date of the order passed on the application under O 21, R. 100. His cause of action, so far as the present suit is concerned has been formulated by him in paragraph (6) of his plaint and it appears therefore that after the date of the order passed on the application under O. 21, R 100 defendants Nos. 1 to 5 entered into a conspiracy and forcibly cut and took away the paddy reaped by the Bhag tenants of the plaintiff and thereby dispossessed the plaintiff. The plaintiff stated that thereupon, he instituted a suit being suit numbered 225 of 1917 in the Court of the first Munsiff of Kantai. That suit was, however, allowed to be withdrawn by the Court, with liberty to institute a fresh suit and the present suit is the fresh suit which the plaintiff had the liberty to institute. It was pleaded on behalf of plaintiff that the subsequent dispossession alleged in para. (6) of the plaint gave rise to the cause of action, after the suit had been withdrawn, for the present suit. The defendant contended that the plaintiff not having brought the suit within the period prescribed by Art. 11-A of the Limitation Act the present suit should be held to be barred by limitation. Held, that the suit was not barred. It is the question of possession with which the plaintiff was concerned and having remained in possessed down to the date when, as alleged by him, he was dispossessed in the manner referred to in paragraph 6) of the plaint, he was not under any necessity so far as we can see, to go to a Civil Court for the useless formality of asking for confirmation of possession of the property in question when as a matter of fact he remained in possession thereof. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 11—Applicability.

——Art. 11-A—Applicability—Cause of action—Subsequent to date of order under O. 21, R. 100, C. P. C.

Although it is undoubtedly true that a person claiming to get rid of the effect of an order under O. 21, R. 100 is bound to bring his suit for such a purpose within the period mentioned in Art 11-A of the Limitation Act, where the cause of action alleged by the plaintiff is one that has arisen subsequent to the date of the order made on the application under O 21, R 100, C.P Code, and where the plaintiff's application under O. 21, R. 100 was dismissed on the ground that inasmuch as his possession has not been disturbed the application was one which did not come within the purview of O. 21, R 100, C. P. Code, the provision of Art. 11-A of the Limitation Act do not apply. (Ghose and Chotzner, JJ.) ATARMOYI DASI v. RAMANANDA SEN CHOUDHURY.
50 C. 311 : 1923 Cal. 601.

——Art. 11-A.—Applicability—Order under O. 21, Rr. 98, 99 and 101.

Art, 11-A of the Limitation Act applies to an order under O. 21, Rr. 98, 99 and 101, C.P. Code, where such order has been made on investigation. An order dismissing an application for default is not an order passed upon investigation. 6 C. L. J, 362 Foll. 45 C. 785 ; 41 M. 985 ; 31 M. L. J 247 ; 26 C. W. Dismissal of an objection for default bars a suit beyond a year. (Henderson and Panton, JJ.) HARIPADA (BERMAN) v. SURENDRA NATH SAMANTHA. 1922 Cal. 164.

——Art. 11—Applicability—Claim petition—Dismissal for default—Suit—Limitation.

Where a claim petition filed when the C. P. Code of 1882 was in force was dismissed for absence of the parties the order is not one under S. 281 of the C. P. Code but under the powers of the Court to dismiss miscellaneous matters and a regular suit to establish title is not governed by Art 11 of the Lim Act. ——Art. 11—Applicability—C. P. C. (1882), S. 332.

A suit instituted under the last para. of S. 332 of the old Code of 1882 is not governed by Art. 11, 12, 13 or 14 of the Limitation Act of 1877. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MAULA BAKSH v. BHABHASUNDARI DASYA. 19 I. C. 968 : 19 C. L. J. 187.

——Arts. 11, 13, 120 and 142—Applicability—Suit for possession of immoveable property—C. P. Code (1882), S. 332.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 11—Applicability.

The Art. 11 does not govern a suit for possession of immoveable property for establishment of plff's. title, when an adverse order is made against him under S. 332, C. P. Code (1882). The suit is governed by Art. 142. (Brett and Carnduff, JJ.) MAINDI SARDAR v. AKOOR CHANDRA GHOSH. 14 I. C. 92 : 16 C. W. N. 971.

——Art. 11—Applicability.

By invoking Art. 11 the bar of limitation cannot be got over if the title to the property is otherwise extinguished. In other words a suit though not barred by Art. 11 may be barred by some other provisions of the Lim. Act. (Shadi Lal and Le Rossignol, JJ.) HARNAM SINGH v. KISHENCHAND. 50 I. C. 6.

——Art. 11—Applicability — Resistence to possession—C. P. C., O. 21, R. 97.

Where a court dismisses an apolication under R. 97, O. 21, C. P. C., it cannot pass an order directing the person in whose favour the order is passed, to bring a regular suit ; the person is not bound to sue within one year as the Art. 11 does not apply to the suit. (Shah Din, J.) DAULAT RAM v. GADI RAM. 49 I. C. 138 : 1 P. R. 1919.

——Art. 11—Applicability of—Claim petition by mortgagee—Order declining to adjudicate on the petition—Effect of—Suit on mortgage—Limitation Act, art. 11 not applicable but only art. 132.

If on a claim being preferred the court neither proceeds to investigate nor dismisses it under the proviso to R 58 of O. 21 of the C. P. Code the order which it passes is not an order against the claimant and does not cause limitation to run against him under Art. 11 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act. ——Art. 11—Applicability—Attachment before judgment—Decree—Sale in execution—Subsequent claim—Suit to set aside order—Limitation.

It is desirable that Art. 11 should be made clear so as to expressly include claims to property attached before judgment. Where properties are attached before judgment and after an order for sale in execution is made, a claim is preferred, a suit to set aside the order, on such claim, is governed by Art. 11 of the Act. Per Wallies, C. J. —Property attached before judgment does not become property attached in execution, under Art. 11 of the Act by the mere passing of a decree for the plaintiff. (*Wallis, C. ——Arts. 11 and 13—Applicability—Provincial Ins. Act, S. 34—C.P. Code, O. 21, Rr. 58 to 63.

The official receiver's claim to any property where the vesting was after the attachment of that property in a statutory claim and not a claim under O. 21, Rr. 58 to 63 and the Court dealing with such claims acts under S. 151 of the C. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 11—Effect of order.

——Art. 11—Applicability—Claim case—Direction to sell after notifying claim.

An order on a claim petition expressing no final judgment on the right put forward but simply directing a sale after notifying the claim is one against the claimant and his suit to establish his title is governed by Art. 11. ——Arts 11 and 15—Applicability—Attachment under O. 38, R. 8, C. P. Code—Property released.

A suit to recover property released from attachment under O. 38, R. 8 is not governed by art. 11 or 13, such a suit not being in form to set aside an order of Civil Court within Art. 13 and therefore the existence of the order releasing the attachment before judgment does not bar the suit. ——Art. 11—Effect of order—Execution sale—Fraud—Suit on mortgage—Defence.

Where by an order of Court, properties were sold subject to a mortgage in favour of the plaintiffs and the deft. purchased the property in ignorance of the order, held, that the order under O. 21, R. 63, would be conclusive against deft. only if it was shown that he was aware of the fraud of the plff. within a year of the date of the order and being so aware did not take steps to establish his rights within the period prescribed by Art. 11. If the deft. became aware of the fraud after the period, he could assert under S. 44 of the Evidence Act the fraudulent nature of the plff.'s claim and the consequent invalidity of the court's order in any proceeding instituted by plff. on the strength of such order. ——Art. 11—Order without investigation—Application by auction-purchaser for possession.

The auction-purchaser applied for delivery of possession of the property purchased and made the defendant a party to the application as the latter had put in a claim to the property and had applied for setting the sale aside. The application was dismissed for default on the 11th August 1913. Subsequently the plaintiff again applied and got possession on which the defendant preferred an objection which was allowed on 12th December 1914. Two days afterwards the plaintiff sued for declaration of title as auction-purchaser Held that the suit was not barred as the order on 11th August 1913 was one merely dismissing the application for default and the plaintiff had no opportunity to establish the right and no adjudication of title could have been made in their absence. Therefore limitation began to run against him from 12th December 1914 when the defendants' objection was allowed. (Richards, C. J. and Banerji, J.) ALI MAHOMED SHAH v. RAM NARAIN.

——Art. 11—Order without investigation—Dismissal for default—Scope of the Article.

The article applies to a case where the person sues to establish his right to the property in respect of which a claim is preferred by him but which is dismissed for default and without investigation. The article is more comprehensive than that of the preceding Acts and the application of the article cannot be restricted to those cases only in which the claim preferred under O. 21, R. 58, has been disallowed after investigation. Stranger to proceeding.

———Art. 11—Stranger to proceeding—Claim case.

A person divides his properties to his four grandsons in equal shares. Plaintiffs obtained a settlement of half the property from his sons. Subsequently in execution of a money decree against the sons the whole tenure was sold. After the claims preferred by the defendant's grandsons were rejected, no suit was brought to set aside the order in the claim case. In a suit by plaintiffs who were not parties to the claim case for a declaration of their occupancy right in half the property. Held, that Art. 11 was a bar to a suit by defendants and the plaintiffs were entitled to prove that at the time of the settlement the grandsons had a good title to the interest claimed by them. Further that the Art. 11 does not apply as the plaintiffs were no parties to the claim proceedings. (Neubould, J.) BARKAT ALI v. DAS KAZI. 53 I. C. 260.

———Arts. 11 and 120—Suit for declaration—Certain property is liable to attachment.

Plaintiff attached a certain house in execution of his decree against the judgment-debtor. The latter's brother filed objections on the ground that he was the sole owner of the property, the judgment-debtor having relinquished his interest by a deed of release. The objection being allowed the plaintiff brought a suit for declaration that the house was liable to attachment and sale. Held Art. 11 governs the suit. A person by simply invoking Art. 11 cannot affect the law of limitation if his title to the property has been extinguished. (Shadi Lal and Le Rossignol, JJ.) HARNAM SINGH v. KISHEN CHAND. 50 I. A judgment-debtor died after decree and during the execution proceedings his widows, one of whom a major and the other a minor, were brought on record as legal representatives. The major widow had no subsisting interest at the time of the proceedings and the minor was not represented by a proper guardian. The properties were sold for a grossly low price and purchased by a decree-holder. In a suit by the minor widow after attaining majority for the recovery of the possession of property, held, that the suit having been instituted within three years of the plff's majority was in time. Neither Art. 12 nor Art. 166 had any application to the case. (Wallis and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) PYDANNA v LAKSHMINARASIMMA. 38 Mad 1076 : 29. I C. 314 : 28 M. L. J. 525.

———Art. 12 (a) and Ss. 26 and 28—Suit to set aside Revenue sale—Limitation for defence that Revenue sale is void—Revenue sale and Civil Court sale.

While a suit for a declaration that land was free from payment of assessment was pending, the land was sold under a decree for arrears of assessment by the Revenue Court. Plff., the owner of the land, however, remained in possession and obtained a decree in the same court declaring the land free from assessment about the time of the sale by the Revenue Court. In a suit by the vendee of the auction-purchaser at the Revenue sale plff. pleaded as a deft. that the Revenue sale was void and gave no right to the auction-purchaser, held, that the defence was not prohibited by the law of limitation though the owner of the land could not file a suit after a year from the sale by the Revenue court. Held, further that the Revenue sale was not valid under the circumstances. ———Art. 13—Execution of decree— Attachment of house sold—Suit by vendee—Attachment withdrawn—Suit by vendee against vendor.

The deft sold a house to plff in 1910 and himself remained in possession as plff.'s lessee. A creditor of the deft. attached the house and then plff. applied to raise the attachment under O. 21. The application was rejected on the ground that the sale by deft. to plff. was fraudulent Against this order plff. filed a suit on 15-8-16 but it was withdrawn owing to a compromise between deft. and his creditor. The attachment was also withdrawn. On 25-5-17 plff. filed the present suit for possession and arrears of rent. Held, the suit is not barred by time as the attachment being withdrawn there was no longer any attachment to operate against him and the deft not being a party to the attachment proceedings, the parties were in the same position as before the attachment. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 14.

———Art. 14—Ultra vires order.

An order of the Collector which declared that the lands in the possession of the plff. should be given to the deft and for which there was no warrant of law is an ultra vires order, and the owner need not set it aside. Art. 14 therefore does not apply. (Sharfuddin and Coxe, JJ.) RAJANI v RAM DHULAL DAS,
17 I. C. 881 : 17 C. W. N. 55.

——— Art. 14—Ultra vires order.

Where the Collector was authorised under the Putni Regulation to make a summary investigation if the Talukdar contested the Zamindar's demand for any arrear but he determined the rent payable for the tenure in future the order is ultra vires and is not required to be set aside. Art. 14 therefore does not apply. (Chatterjea and Richardson, JJ.) NAGENDRA LAL v. RAJA BIBI. 17 I. C. 504 : 17 C. W. N. 374.

———Arts. 14 and 120—Entries in the Record-of-Rights—Entry whether an act or order of Govt. Officer.

A suit for amendment or cancellation of certain entries in the Record-of-Rights is not a suit to set aside any act or order of a Government Officer and therefore does not fall under Art. 14 but under Art. 120. (D. Chatterjee, J.) DASARATHI PANDA v. SATYABADI GANUTIA. 14 I. C. 50.

———Art. 14—Decision of Collector as to chaukidari chakran lands—Bengal Chaukidari Act, 1870.

Where the Collector holding that the Chaukidari Act was applicable to the plff.'s estate took proceedings in 1899 with a view to transfer the chaukidari chakran lands. Held, Per Woodroffe, J.—That it may be a question whether the article applies at all having regard to 11 Bom. 429. Per Caspersz, J.—The Collector's order being a nullity and the lands transferred not being within his jurisdiction, the suit cannot be defeated because it was instituted more than one year after the date of the order. 15 C.W.N. 300, Foll. ——Arts. 29 and 36—Attachment of property—Claim allowed—Suit for declaration—To ignore the claim.

A property was attached by P over which plff.'s predecessor claimed a lien. The claim was allowed by the executing Court and P. brought the present suit for a declaration that the plff.'s predecessor had no claim. The suit was decreed and proceeds of the attached property were rateably distributed among P and certain other creditors but the decree obtained by P. was reversed in appeal and the plff. sued him and the other creditors to recover sums paid, in satisfaction of their claim. Held that the suit was not governed either by Art. 29 or by Art. 36 as there was not a seizure of money and the defts. were not guilty of any non-feasance, misfeasance, or malfeasance in respect of the money. (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) RAM NARAIN v. BANKEY LAL.

39 All. 322 : 39 I. C. 532 : 15 A. L. J. 295.

——Art. 29—Applicability.

A suit to recover money received by the deft. in the form of rent under a decree of a Court in respect of property of which the plff. was entitled to possession and also to rent is not covered by Art. 29, but is governed by Art. 62. ——Arts. 29, 39 and 49—Arrest of ship—Trespass—Action in rem—Damages—Limitation.

In the absence of proof of malice or its equivalent a suit for simple trespass will not lie for the arrest of a ship. The arrest of the ship is a judicial act of the Court and an ordinary step in an action in rem assuming that an action would lie in the absence of proof of malice or its equivalent the action would be for wrongful seizure under legal process and would be barred by Art 29 of the Lim. Act. (Jenkins, C. J. and Stephen, J.) MADRAS STEAM NAVIGATION CO. v. SHALIMAR WORKS. 28 I. C. 463 : 42 Cal. 85.

——Art. 29—Seizure of standing crops.

Where the wrong is solely the seizure of standing crops Art. 29 does not apply. Art. 37 may apply but a suit for damages for unlawfully distraining, cutting, and carrying away the crops is not governed by Art. 36 but is governed either by Art. 48 or 49. (Kensington, C. J., Harrington and Mookerjee, JJ.) JADU NATH DANDUPAT v. HARI KAR.

——Arts. 29 and 36—Wrongful attachment of moveable—Prohibitory order.

A suit for compensation for wrongful attachment of moveables by the issue of prohibitory order is governed by Art. 29 or 36 and not by Arts. 42, 46, 62, or 120. An attachment by a prohibitory order is not injunction within the meaning of Art. 42. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) PANDIRI VEERAMMA v. MANDAVILLI SUBBA RAO.

35 I. C. 98 : 31 M.L. J. 257.

——Art. 29—Immoveable property—Standing crops—Suit to recover compensation.

A suit to recover the value of standing crops wrongfully cut and carried away is not one to recover compensation within Art. 29 as immoveable property defined in the General Clauses Act, S. 3 (25) includes standing crops and the definition of moveable property given in S. 2 (13) does not govern the Lim. Act. (Kumaraswami Sastri, J.) DEVARASETTI NARASIMHAM v. DEVARASETTI VENKIAH. 31 I. C. 796 : 18 M. L. T. 532.

——Art. 29—Attachment of debt—Assignee of debt—Suit for recovery.

Attachment by decree-holder of debt due to judgment debtor does not amount to 'wrongful seizure of immoveable property' within Art 29 as the attachment is not effected by actual or constructive seizure but only by a written order. A debt due to a judgment-debtor was attached by his decree-holder and when the debtor paid the money into Court, it was paid over to the attaching creditor A third person claiming to be assignee of the debt before attachment sued for recovery of the money. Held neither Art. 29 nor Art. 36 applied. The article applicable was either 62 or 120 and time runs from the date the attaching creditor received the money from the Court. (*White, C. ——Art. 29—Wrongful attachment— Standing crop—Damages.

A suit for damages for the wrongful attachment of land and crops and the consequent loss or destruction of the crops is governed by Art. 39.

Standing crops at the time of attachment was immoveable property and the attachment of the land with the crop thereon, if illegally made, constitutes a trespass on immoveable property. 31 Mad. 431, 23 M. ——Art. 29—Illegal attachment—Suit for damages.

Per Sundara Aiyar, J.—Where a suit for damages for the value of the standing crops cut during attachment is brought after a suit for declaration that the attachment is illegal has terminated, it is governed by Art. 62 or 120 and the cause of action arises on the termination of the suit, declaring the attachment illegal. Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—The suit is governed by Art. 29 or 36 and the cause of action arises from the date of attachment. ——Art. 29—Attachment of debt—Payment by debtor.

Per Sundara Aiyar, J.—A suit to recover the amount of debt paid by the debtor on attachment by a Court is governed by Art. 62 or 120, and not by Art. 29, because debt is not moveable property. (2) There is no seizure under legal process, the debtor having voluntarily paid the amount. (3) The suit is not for compensation for wrongful seizure of moveable property. (4) The article applies only where the Court is able to reduce the property to possession and does so at the instance of the judgment-creditor. 31 M. 431 and 8 Bom. 17, Diss. Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—The suit is governed by Art. 29 because (1) attachment amounted to wrongful seizure, (2) the suit was for compensation for wrongful seizure of moveable property. ——Arts. 29, 62 and 120—Suit for money due on decree assigned to plff.—Plff. barred at time of receipt by deft.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 29.

Where plff., an assignee decree-holder, was legally barred from collecting the money due on the decree assigned to him, and the assignors received the amount and entered satisfaction and the plff. brought a suit against the assignors for recovery of the amount collected by them, held, that the proper article applicable to the case was not Art. 29 or 62 but Art. 120. ———Arts. 29 and 36—Illegal attachment—Standing crops—Suit for damages—Limitation.

A suit for damages for illegal attachment of standing crops is governed by Art. 29 and not by Art. 36 of the Lim. Act, standing crops being treated as immoveable property for the purposes of the Act. 32 C. 459 ; 4 N. L. R. 49. 54, Ref; 25 M. L. J. 447 foll.; 36 C. 141 dist. (Kotwal, A.J.C.) SURAJMAL GANESHDAS v. PRALHAD. 18 N. L. R. 96 : 1922 Nag. 212.

———Art. 29—Standing crop—Wrongful attachment—Damages—Limitation.

Standing crops are not 'moveable property' within Art. 29 and a suit for damages for the wrongful attachment of such crop is not governed by Art. 29 or any other article requiring the institution of a suit within one year of the seizure. (Stanyon, A. J. C.) MURLIDHAR v. MULU. 27 I. C. 935 : 11 N. L. R, 18.

———Arts. 29 and 120—Recovery of value of moveable property wrongfully seized.

A suit for recovery of the value of moveable property wrongfully attached and sold is governed by Art. 29 and not by Art. 120. (Hartnoll, J.) MAUNG PO ON v. MAUNG TUN U. 9 I. C. 774 : 4 Bur. L. T. 46.

———Arts. 29, and 11—Distinction between.

Art. 11 deals with a suit by a person to establish his right to or to the present possession of the property comprised in the order while Art. 29 deals with a suit for compensation for wrongful seizure of moveable property under legal process. Where a plff. sued for the value of the property recovered in execution the suit is not barred if brought after a year of the date of the order since Art. 29 governs the suit and not Art. 11. ———Arts. 30 and 31—Carriage of goods by railway—Loss—Suit for damages—Limitation.

Art. 30 of the Lim. Act applies to suits for compensation for losing or injuring goods and the period is one year from the date when the loss or injury occurs. The article refers to losing or injuring goods by the carrier and not by the consignee, that is to say, time begins to run from the time when the carrier lost or injured the goods, and not from the time when the consignee may be said to have suffered loss. 19 I. C. 47 Rel. Art. 31 of the Lim. Act fixes one year from the date when the goods ought to have been delivered and applies to suits for compensation for non-delivery. Where no time is fixed for the delivery of the goods, the suit may be instituted within a year after the expiry of a reasonable time for the delivery of the goods. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 30.

———Art. 30—Suit against Railway Company—Negligence or theft by Company's servants.

A suit by consignor against a Railway Company for compensation for loss of goods owing to the loss caused by negligence of or theft by the Company's servants is governed by Art. 30. (Chatterjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY v. JHARI LAL. 38 I. C. 502 : 20 C. W. N. 696.

———Arts. 30, 31 and 115—Suit against Railway goods consigned—Railway refusing consignment.

Per D. Chatterjee. J.—Art. 115 and not 30 or 31 applies to suit by a consignor against Railway for compensation and value of goods consigned but neither delivered to the consignee nor returned to the consignor and denied by Railway to have received. Art. 31 seems to contemplate a suit by the consignee. (Per Beachcroft, J.) If Art. 31 applies, the suit is not barred in the absence of evidence as to when the goods should have been delivered. (Chatterjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) RADHA SHAM v. SECY. OF STATE. 44 Cal. 16 : 34 I. C. 130 : 28 C. L. J. 547.

———Art. 30—Mis-delivery not non-delivery.

A carrier does not lose goods under the article where he really mis-delivers though an actual loss does not occur to the owner. The loss referred to must be by the carrier himself. (Ratligan, J.) FAKIR CHAND v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 170 P. L. R. 1913 : 19 I. C. 477 : 122 P. W. R. 1913.

———Art. 30—Starting point.

Where a Railway Company has not proved that the goods were lost more than one year before the institution of the suit, a suit brought within one year from the date of refusal to deliver is not barred either by Art. 30 or 31. (Benson, O. C. J. and Sankaran Nair, J.) 17 I. C. 419 : 23 M. L. J. 511.

———Arts. 30 and 115—Carriage of goods by Railway—Short delivery—Damages—Suit for.

A suit for damages for short delivery of goods consigned by a Railway is governed by Art. 30 and not by Art. 115 of the Limitation Act. Short delivery means loss of the portion of the consignment undelivered. (Ross, J.) RAMESWAR DAS MALI RAM v. THE E. I. RY. CO. 4 P. L. T. 331 : 1923 P. 298.

———Art. 30—Loss of goods—Transit by Railway—Misdelivery—Non-delivery.

The term ' loss ' in Art. 30 of the Limitation Act contemplates a loss of goods arising from non-delivery as well as mis-delivery. 2 Lah. 103; 41 M. 871 ; 43 Mad. 617 ; 43 Bom. 386 referred. applies. and not 30 ; and the cause of action is the failure of the defts. to perform their contract. It is not a case of misfeasance. (Fawcett, A. J. C.) LUDHUMAL PURTOMAL & Co. v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 51 I. C. 570 : 13 S. L. R. 1.

——Art. 30—Suit for compensation against carrier.

A suit for compensation for injury to goods while in the possession of a carrier, e. g., a Railway Company falls under Art. 30. (Hayward, A. J. C.) LOUIS DREYFUS & Co. v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 45 I. C. 173 : 11 S. L. R. 103.

——Art. 30—Carrier—Damage to goods.

A carrier is one who conveys goods for hire or for reward. A Port Trust Board which merely stores and delivers goods to the ships calling at the port is not a carrier and a suit for compensation for damage to goods against thePort Trust is not governed by Art. 30. (Leggatt, A. J. C.) PRAG NARAIN v. KARACHI PORT TRUST. 10 I. C. 972 : 4 S. L. R. 236.

——Art. 31—Suit for damages for non-delivery.

The limitation applicable to a suit by consignor of goods against a Railway Administration for damages for non-delivery is the one prescribed by Art. 31. (Bannerjee, J.) MUTSADDI LAL v. B. B. AND C. I. RY. 42 All. 390 : 18 A. L. J. 377 : 58 I. C. 547 : 2 U. P. L. R. (All.) 84.

——Art. 31—Suit against Railway Company.

A suit against a Railway Company for compensation for non-delivery of goods is governed by Art. 31. (Stanley, C. J. and Banerjee, J.) GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RAILWAY CO. v. GANPAT RAI. 33 All. 544 : 10 I. C. 122 : 8 A. L. J. 543.

——Arts. 31 and 115—Common carrier—Suit by consignor for compensation is within Art. 31.

There is no distinction between a cause of action for compensation for non-delivery by a consignor and one by a consignee. Article 31 of the Lim. Act is wide enough to include a suit brought by the consignor also. It provides for a suit for compensation for non-delivery, that is, a suit by a person who by reason of non-delivery has sustained loss. There may be cases in which it is not the consignee who sustains loss but the consignor. In such cases it would be a suit by the consignor for compensation for non-delivery. (Page, J.) VALLY MD. HAJI v. NETHERLAND S. NAVIGATION CO. 27 C. W. N. 806 : 1924 Cal. 178.

——Arts. 31 and 115—Non-delivery of goods consigned—Suit for compensation against carrier—Limitation.

A suit against a carrier for compensation for non-delivery of goods consigned to him is governed by Art. 31 and is liable to be dismissed if brought after the lapse of one year from the time the goods ought to have been delivered. Art. 115 of the Act applies only to suits for compensation for breach of any contract not specially provided for in the Act. (Ghose, J.) LAL MOHAN HAZRA v. E. I. RY AND CO. 1922 Cal. 330.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 31.

——Arts. 31, 115 and 30—Denial by Railway to have received goods.

Per Chatterji, J.—Art. 115 and not 30 or 31 applies to a suit by consignor against Railway for compensation and value of goods consigned but not delivered by defendant to consignee nor returned to consignor and denied by Railway to have received. Art. 31 seems to apply to a suit by consignee. (D. Chatterji and Beachcroft, JJ.) RADHA SHAM v. SECY. OF STATE. 44 C. 16 : 34 I. C. 130 : 23 C. L. J. 547.

——Art. 31—Mis-delivery.

Mis-delivery or delivery to a wrong person is not non-delivery within Art. 31. The case of mis-delivery is covered by Art. 115. (Rattigan, J.) FAKIR CHAND v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 170 P. L. R. 1913 : 19 I. C 477 : 122 P. W. R. 1913.

——Art. 31—Sale held by Railway Company under S. 56, Railways Act is not within section.

Art. 62 of the Limitation Act governs a suit to recover the surplus proceeds of sale held by the Railway Company under S. 56 of the Railways Act as the proceeds are received for plaintiff's use. 41 Mad. 871, Dist. (Oldfield and Ramesam, JJ.) TARACHAND v. MADRAS AND SOUTHERN MAHRATTA RY. CO. 44 Mad. 823 : 41 M. L. J. 205 : 13 L. W. 693 : 62 I. C. 742 : (1921) M. W. N. 422.

——Art. 31—Applicability.

Art. 31 applies equally to those common carriers and also carriers who come within the definition. (Wallis, C. J. and Kumaraswami Sastri, J.) MYLAPPA CHETTIAR v. THE BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION CO., LTD. 35 M. L. J. 553 : 8 L. W. 46 : 45 I. C. 485 : 24 M. L. T. 175.

——Arts. 31, 49 and 115—Suit for specific moveable property against a carrier—Non-delivery of goods—Compensation.

In a suit against a carrier plff. asked for recovery of a plank of wood not delivered to the consignee and also for a sum of money being the loss of interest. The plaint contained no allegation that the deft. was in possession of the plank in question. Held, if the suit was regarded as one for compensation for failure to deliver the plank in breach of the contract in the bill of lading, it was governed by Art. 31 and not by Art. 49 or 115 of the Lim. Act. By the amendment of Art. 31 of the Lim. Act the Legislature clearly indicated its intention that the article should apply to a claim against a carrier for compensation for non-delivery of goods irrespective of the question whether the suit was laid in contract or in tort. Art. 49 is inapplicable to such a case on the principle of generalia specialibus non derogant. (Wallis, C.J., Ayling and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) VENKATA SUBBA RAO v. THE ASIATIC STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY OF CALCUTTA. 39 Mad. 1 : 29 M. ——Arts. 31 and 49—Non-delivery of goods—Suits against carrier.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 31.

A suit against a carrier for non-delivery of goods is governed by Art. 31 and not by art. 49 which will apply only when there is proof that the goods are still in the possession and custody of the carrier. (Tyabji, J.) JALDU VENKATA SUBBA RAO v. ASIATIC STEAM NAVIGATION CO. 24 I. C. 676.

Where a Railway Company has not proved that the goods were lost more than one year before the institution of the suit, a suit brought within one year from the date of refusal to deliver is not barred either by art. 30 or 31. (Benson, O.C. J. and Sankaran Nair, J.)
17 I. C. 419 : 28 M. L. J. 511.

———Arts. 31 and 115—Carrier — Railway—Non-delivery of goods.

A suit against a Railway Company for compensation for non-delivery of goods is governed by Art. 31 and not by Art. 115 of the Lim. Act. The application of Art. 31 is not ousted by the mere fact that the responsibility of the Railway Company is limited by an agreement of the kind contemplated by S 72, Cl. (2) of the Railways Act, (Drake-Brockman, J.C.) ALI MAHOMED v. G.I.P. RAILWAY CO. 31 I. C. 474 : 11 N. L. R. 174.

———Art. 31—Applicability.

Where a suit is framed as a suit to recover compensation for non-delivery of goods Art 31 applies, and not Art. 30; and the cause of action is the failure of the defts. to perform their contract. It is not a case of misfeasance. (Fawcett, A. J. C.) LUDHOMAL PURTAMAL AND CO. v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 51 I. C. 570 : 18 S. L. R. 1.

———Art. 32 — Placing heavier beams on plff's wall is perversion of purpose.

The fact, that heavier and more numerous beams than what existed previously, were placed on the wall of a person and that in place of a thatched roof a masonry roof was put up, does not constitute a perversion of the purpose for which the wall is to be used, and a suit for removal of the beams does not come under Art. 32 of the Limitation Act. 4 L. R. A. (Civ.) 510 : 46 All. 68 : 1924 All. 450.

———Art. 32—Easement—Perversion.

The appellants who had a right by way of easement to support a thatch against a wall belonging to the plaintiff substituted for the thatcher masonry building and supported the beams necessary for its construction upon the wall in question thereby increasing considerably the burden upon the wall. Held it was a clear case of perversion of a right, and where the perversion first became known to the plaintiff more than two years before the date of the suit, the suit must fall under the provisions of Article 32. (Stuart, J.) BISHAMBAR SAHAI v. FANKI DAD. 1922 All. 320.

———Art. 32—Claim of easement— Interruption.

The deft. nearly doubled his wall and erected a second storey to his house and put a double sided thatch which increased the burden on the plff.'s land. Held, the deft's. case being a case of easement he could acquire it only by 20 years user and Art. 32 was not applicable (Walsh, J.) JADDURAM v. KANHAIYARAM. 33 I. ———Art. 35 and S. 28—Lim. Act, 1908—Suit for restitution of conjugal rights—Limitation.

A right to restitution of conjugal rights is not extinguished under S. 28 of the Act. The remedy only is barred. In view of the fact that Arts. 34 and 35 of the Act of 1877 have been removed from the Act of 1908 a suit though filed after the expiry of the period prescribed by Art 35 of the Act, 1877 is not barred by limitation. ———Arts. 36 and 62—Tort—Money had and received—Commencement of limitation.

The cause of action for damages for a wrong accrues at the date of the wrong. But the cause of action for money had and received is the date of the receipt of the money. (Walsh, J.) HARPAL v. RAM SARUP. 34 I. C. 173.

———Arts. 36 and 89—Suit for money misappropriated by servant.

A suit for money received and misappropriated by a servant is governed by Art. 89 and not by Art. 36. It is immaterial whether the misappropriation charged is criminal or not. If there is no misappropriation that money is payable by the deft. having been received by him and not accounted for still Art. 89 applies. ———Art. 36—Misfeasance—Claim for compensation—Company—Winding up—Commencement of limitation.

The provisions of Limitation Act are by virtue of S. 235 (3) of the Companies Act, 1913 applicable to an application under that section as if such application were a suit and as the section does not create new rights and liabilities the period of limitation for making an application for compensation for misfeasance under that section is prescribed by Art. 36 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and time begins to run from the date of the misfeasance for which compensation is sought. (Martineau, J.) HUKAMCHAND v. BANK OF MULTAN. 1924 Lah. 285.

———Arts. 36, 48 and 49—Tort—Irregular sale in execution—Suit for compensation—Claim for refund—Limitation.

A suit for compensation for loss sustained by him on account of the irregular sale of certain property in execution of a decree alleging that in consequence of the irregularities a sum far below the market value of the property had been realized is governed neither by Art. 48 nor by Art. 49 but by Art. 36. The article applies to a claim by a consignor against a carrier for compensation for non-delivery of goods consigned. The effect of amendment of Art. 31 in the old Act is to make it applicable to a claim against a carrier for compensation for non-delivery of goods irrespective of the question whether the suit was one in contract or tort. ———Art. 49—Conversion—Moveable property—By borrower—Suit for recovery.

In the case of property loaned to be returned when asked for, no action would lie until a return has been demanded and refused. The mere fact, that the borrower has, unknown to the lender, wrongfully converted, the subject of the loan would not affect limitation. Limitation would run from the date of demand and refusal and not from the date when property was converted wrongfully. (1871) 6 C. P. 206, Foll.(*Ismay, Offg. J. The plaintiffs sued the defendants on accounts claiming Rs 1 450. The suit was instituted on the 30th of August, 1918. The accounts showed a balance struck of Rs. 361-6-0 in favour of the plaintiffs on the 20th May, 1913. Thereafter the account continued for another year and ended with a total in favour of the plaintiffs of Rs. 832-9. No second balance was struck formally. Interest at 1 per cent. per mensem was claimed bringing the amount in suit up to Rs. 1,450. Held, that the article applicable was Art. 57 for which the period is six years under the Punjab Loans Limitation Act of 1904, the balance being an acknowledgment starting fresh period of limitation under S 19 of Act IX of 1908. An account is mutual when there are transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other, and, where the transactions create obligations on one side only, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations, the account is not mutual. 59 I. ——Arts. 57 and 60—Distinction—'On demand'—Meaning Thavanai account—Money payable on demand—Limitation.

Art. 57 applies to ordinary loans where no time is fixed for payment i.e., to suits for money payable "on demand" in the legal sense of the term. Art. 60 applies to cases of money deposited under an agreement that it shall be repayable "on demand" in the popular sense of the terms, i.e., after demand is made when after expiry of thavanai contract no fresh contract is entered into, the money held is like a deposit in the banker's hands which is ordinarily payable 'on demand' in the legal sense and therefore Art 60 applies. ——Art. 57—Thavanai account— Relation of parties to.

The relationship between the parties to a Thavanai account is that of lender and borrower. The money is to be paid at a fixed period after two months and unless the lender demands it, the loan is taken to be extended for next two months. Art. 57 and not Arts. 60 and 115 applies to a suit brought on Thavanai account. (Fox, C. J. and Twomey, J.) ANNAMALAI CHETTY v LUTCHMAN CHETTY. 8 L. B. R. 528: 36 I. C. 497: 10 Bur. L. T. 53.

——Arts 59 and 60—Loan—Deposit—Suit for recovery—Limitation.

There is no distinction in the Limitation Act between money lent and money deposited with regard to the agreement to repay. So that it is not the agreement that the money should be payable on demand that distinguishes a deposit from a loan. There must be something further proved, and it is not possible to define exactly what that must be. It has sometimes been suggested that facts must be proved which create a sort of fiduciary relationship between the lender and the borrower, but it cannot be said that it is always necessary. Ordinarily when A hands over money to B on the understanding that it is not a gift, but has to be repaid when demanded, that would be considered in law a loan ; and when the plaintiff seeks to prove that the money so handed over was a deposit the onus would lie upon him to prove that there were additional circumstances which turned the loan into a deposit. 19 B. 775 referred to. A suit to recover a deposit with a Nattukottai Chetty on Thavanai terms, is governed by Art. 60, both as regards principal and interest. The next reversioner of a Hindu can successfully bring a suit against the trustee to recover a certain sum with interest deposited with him for the deceased widow's maintenance, by the family members of the deceased ; even if the widow did not claim any more. Because the widow's silence amounts to acquiescence in the interest being treated as part of her husband's estate. This suit is governed by Art. 60 of Lim. Act, as the interest is an increment to the deposit according to the agreement of the parties. (Wallis, C. J. and Krishnan, J.) NARAYANAN CHETTY v. SUPIAH CHETTY. 43 Mad. 629 : 11 L. ———Art. 60—Deposit repayable on demand—Money deposited on the understanding that it was to be paid on demand after a certain time.

Money deposited on the understanding that it was to be paid on demand after a certain period does not cease to be a deposit within Art. 60 of the Lim. Act. Where money is deposited with a firm in the name of a maral B, the maral man B: is neither the trustee in respect of the money nor has he any right to operate on it. ——Art. 61—Part of consideration left with mortgagee to pay the creditors.

Where the mortgagor leaves a sum with the mortgagee to make payments to some creditors and the latter fails to pay and the former has to make the payment himself to save his property, he can sue the mortgagee for damages. In absence of proof of special damage he can sue only for the amount paid by him, and the limitation runs from the date of payment and not the date of mortgage. ——Arts. 61, 99 and 120—Contribution—Co-sharer—Right to be reimbursed in respect of money realised by creditor by coercive process.

The plaintiff and the defendants were owners of five different jotes. In execution of one of the decrees obtained by the landlord in respect of the jotes one of them was put up to sale and purchased by the plaintiff. The landlord took out the amount of his dues in respect of that jote out of the sale proceeds and in respect of the other jotes he attached the balance and ultimately withdrew it. The sale of the first jote was set aside, but the plaintiff failed to obtain restitution of the sale proceeds. The plaintiff thereupon sued the defendants for contribution. Held, that the joint liability of the plaintiff and the defendants having been discharged by the money of the former there was no doubt that the defendants obtained the benefit of the same. Though under S. 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the plaintiff being one of the judgment-debtors could not purchase at the sale, the plaintiff and the defendant having bid for the jote and the plaintiff's bid having been accepted, the purchase by the plaintiff was valid but only voidable. In any case after the sale was set aside the money deposited became the money of the plaintiff alone and should be treated as having been lawfully paid or appropriated in payment of the decree for rent. So far as the right of contribution against co-sharers is concerned it does not matter whether the money is actully handed over by the party seeking contribution or is realised from him by coercive process by the creditor. In either case the right to contribution arises from the fact that one of the co-sharers has paid in excess of his share and the joint liability of all the co-sharers has been discharged. The suit was not barred under Arts. 61 or 99 of the Limitation Act, having been brought within three years of the setting aside of the sale or under Art 120, having been brought within six years of the date of payment. ———Art. 61—Payment—Meaning—Payment into Court—Explained.

Under Art. 61 payment means payment to the person to whom it is to be made or into Court on behalf of such a person and in such case limitation runs from the date when the amount is accepted by the Court and not on which it is deposited in Court. A suit by tenant depositing the amount of a rent decree against the co-tenants and preventing the sale of tenancy, against the co-tenants, for contribution joining the landlord as a deft, in the suit with a prayer that a decree may be made against him for the refund of the amount which he might have received from the co-tenants as rent payable by them is governed, in so far as the landlord is concerned, not by Art. 61, but by Art. 120. Three brothers had been members of an undivided Hindu joint family. In 1905 they separated and appointed arbitrators to divide the ancestral properties. Before division was complete disputes arose and the properties remaining undivided were left in the hands of different members of the family as tenants in common until in 1917 the suit was brought for partition and for account moneys were received from debtors in respect of debts which were owned in common and rents and profits partly in money and partly in kind were received in respect of lands thus held in common. The defendants set up limitation in the suit for account and for payment of the shares of the plaintiff. Held by the Full Bench that Art. 62 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a suit in respect of the moneys collected by the defendant. A suit for money had and received does not lie by one tenant in common against another who has received more than his share. The only appropriate action would be one for an account in which the tenant in common who collected the money would be entitled to all just expenses such as the expense incurred by him for the collection. If the tenant in common who collected did so under an express or implied agency for all tenants in common, the proper article applicable would be article 89 of the Limitation Act. The cause of action does not come into being until there has been something done which shows that the person who got the money into his possession is holding it adversely to the plaintiff. Art. 109 of the Limitation Act does not apply in respect of the profits of the immoveable properties in the case because receipt of profits by one of several tenants in common is not wrongful. Art. 127 of the Limitation Act does not apply to the case as regards the money and the profits received. That article applies only to a suit for share of the property which is the property of a joint family at the date of suit and is in terms inapplicable to property which by reason of a division prior to suit has ceased to be the property of a joint family and is held by the members of the family as tenants in common. A patni taluk was sold for arrears of rent due to the Zemindar and purchased by plff. who paid the purchase-money into Court for payment to the Zemindar and others entitled. In a suit by darpatnidars, the sale was set aside on 24-8-1905, and the decree was affirmed on appeal on 3-8-1906. The plff. who had been a party to the suit was not indemnified as provided by S. 14 of Beng. Regn. VIII of 1819. On 28-8-1906 plff. surrendered possession to the darpatnidars. On 14-9-1908 plff. sued for recovery of so much of the purchase-money as had been paid to the Zemindar. Held, that the proper Article applicable to the suit was Art. 62 ; that even if Art. 97 applied as the Lower Courts thought, limitation began to run against plff. from 24-8-1905, the date of the decision in the First Court ; that the affirmance of the decree on appeal did not give a cause of action ; and that the suit was therefore barred by limitation. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 62—Money had and received.

——Art. 62—Money had and received—Mortgage void.

The mortgage of an unrecognised sub-division of a Bhagdari holding is void, the consideration fails ab initio and the money advanced by the plff. was money received by the deft. for plff.'s use under Art. 62. The cause of action for the suit for recovery of the money arises on the date of mortgage. (Scott, C. J. and Batchelor, J.) JAVERBHAI JORABHAI v. GORDHAN NAISI.

——Art. 62—Money had and received—Suit for—Limitation.

Art 62 of the Lim. Act is applicable where the defendant has received money which in justice and equity, belongs to the plaintiff under such circumstances as in law render the receipt of it a receipt by the defendant to the plff.'s use. The article most nearly approaches the formula of money had and received, by the defendant for the plaintiff's use, if read as description and apart from the technical qualifications imported in English law and procedure. 32 C. 527; 2 C. 393; 46 C. 670 P. ——Arts. 62 and 97—Money had and received—Patni sale set aside—Suit for recovery of money—Limitation—Deduction of time spent in proceedings for assessment of mesne profits.

The plff. purchased a patni at a sale under the Patni Regulation on the 14th May 1908. The patnidar instituted a suit for cancellation of the sale, which was decreed on the 28th May 1910. The zemindar deft. thereupon preferred an appeal which was ultimately dismissed on the 2nd May, 1912 In the interval, on the 14th October 1910, the plff paid rent to the deft. to prevent further sale under the Regulation. Held, that a suit for recovery of money paid by the plff to the deft brought on the 14th February 1916 was barred by limitation under article 62 of the Limitation Act Even if article 97 be applicable, the suit was barred Article 62 of the Limitation Act applies to cases which in English Law are described as "suits for money had and received." The fact that there was a failure of consideration at the time the payment was made on the 14th October 1910, attracted the operation of the bar imposed by article 62 Article 97 was not applicable as there was a failure of consideration. ——Art. 62—Money had and received for plff.'s use.

The article applies to a suit for money payable by the deft. to plff. for money received by deft. for plff.'s use though with no promise at the time to repay, as it is repayable to the latter in justice, equity and good conscience. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) BINODE LAL v. PREO NATH.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 62—Over payment.

——Art. 62—Money had and received—Meaning of.

Oldfield, J.—The action for money had and received is still to be regarded, as it was originally based on an implied or fictional promise. But such promise could not be deduced from the aequum et bonum, as it may appeal to the sympathy of the Court in the particular case, or from circumstances, in which the deft, having no privity with the plaintiff when the money was received need not be supposed to have given and had no duty to give any such promise. Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.:—The scope of the action for money had and received ought not to be extended. While privity of contract between the parties is not necessary to sustain such an action, there must be what might be called some privity of a legally recognizable nature such as some knowledge of particular facts in one man who received the money and some mistake of ignorance of fact on the part of the man who paid the money or some relation, trust and confidence between the person who received the money and person claiming the money or a portion thereof on which the Court could fasten as creating the relation of principal and agent though by fiction between the plff and the deft. ——Arts 62 and 115—Plff.'s use, money got for—Benamidar—Suit for moneys realised by—Limitation.

Plff. alleged that a mortgage was executed benami in the name of the deft. on the understanding that the latter should have nothing to do with it and that the plff should conduct all necessary proceedings in the name of the deft. and that after the amount is collected and got into the hands of the deft. he should hold it at the plff 's disposal. Held, that Art. 115 of the Lim. Act did not apply to a suit for the money. The deft. was not entrusted with the money for any specific purpose and that there was an express trust ; and the suit was not against the agent. Art. 62 of the Lim. Act applied to the case. (Sankaran Nair and Oldfield, JJ.) NARAYANAN v RANGASWAMI CHETTI. 28 I. C. 495 : (1915) M W. N. 215.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 62—Principal and agent.

——Art. 62—Plff.'s use—"Received for use of"—Explained.

The test of what is "receiving for use of" is not the intention of the deft. to receive it as such or otherwise. If money to which another is entitled is received without any valuable consideration, that is receiving for the use of that other. A suit to recover money paid to a deft. under S. 73 of the C.P.C. is a suit for money paid to him for plff.'s use and must be brought within three years from the date of payment and not within six years under Art. 120 37 M. 381 Foll. ——Art. 62—Plff.'s use, money received for.

Only when the money realised by the deft. has been actually or constructively received by them for plff.'s use the case comes under Art. 62, Art. 120 and not Art. 62 applies where plff. was legally barred from collecting the money due on a decree assigned to him, and the assignors decree-holders received the amount and entered satisfaction ; as the money received by them was not received for the plff.'s use. Principal and agent.

Account of profits when an agent started a similar business in consequence of which his services were dispensed with and a suit was brought for the profits received by the agent, held, that the deft. having carried on the same business as that of his principal was bound to account for all the profits to the principals but the suit having been brought more than three years after the transaction was barred by limitation (Walsh and Stuart, JJ.) PURAN MAL v. FORD AND MACDONALD & CO., LTD. 41 All. 635 : 52 I. ——Arts. 62, 89 and 120—Principal and agent—Misappropriation by agent—Suit by principal—Cause of action against the agent and his legal representatives, if same.

A suit to recover money alleged to have been misappropriated by deft. 's father while acting as plff.'s agent is barred if brought more than three years after the termination of the agency. The cause of action against the legal representative is the same as against the deceased agent, if the suit would be barred against the agent, it is also barred against the representatives. Art. 120 is not applicable to a suit brought against the representatives of a deceased agent. Art. 89 applies to a suit against an agent for acts committed during the continuance of his agency. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 65.

Limitation Act does not purport to deal with causes of action and an 'account stated' does not extinguish the original debts on which the account is based. It is open to the creditor to base his suit either on 'the accounts stated' or on the original debt and if on the former Art 64 applies. (Jwala Prasad, C.J. and Das J.) BHATU v. BIBI. 63 I. ———Art. 64—"Account stated"—Meaning of—Limitation.

A mere statement of the balance which is due on a particular date does not amount to an account stated within Art 64. An account stated is one where several cross items are set off, one against the other and the balance is struck off in favour of one of the parties, the law implying a new promise by the other party to pay the balance in consideration not merely of past debts, but also of the extinguishment of the old debts on each side and hence it is not required that it should be made within the period of limitation. 9 Bom. ——Art. 66—Applicability of—"Single bond"—Meaning of.

A bond merely for the payment of a certain sum of money, without any condition in or annexed to it is called a simple or single bond. The term "single bond" is sometimes used to signify a bond given by one obligor as distinguished from one given by two or more. Where under a bond power is given to the creditor to demand the whole of the money due under the bond whenever default is made in payment of the interest for any two years consecutively it is impossible to predicate of the bond that there is any certain "day specified for payment" within art. 66 of the Lim. Act. (Wazir Hasan, A. J. C.) HORI LAL v THAMMAN LAL. 9 O. L. J. 416 : 4 U. P. L. R. (O. C.) 103 : 26 O. C. 121 : 1923 Oudh 19.

——Art. 68—Administration bond—Breach of condition—Suit on.

An administration bond is a bond subject to a condition within the meaning of Art. 68, Lim. Act and where a suit is brought for breach of one of the conditions contained therein, the period of limitation is 3 years. The breach of each condition gives rise to a separate cause of action and time begins to run from the date of the particular breach giving rise to the suit. (*Robinson, C. ———Arts. 74 and 75—Starting point—Instalment bond.

The starting of limitation is tested by the question "has the payee or obligee a right to file a suit forthwith for the principal remaining due, if he so chooses ?" In the case of bonds and pro-notes payable by instalments providing that whole becomes due if default is made in payment of one instalment, limitation runs from the time the default is made unless a waiver on the creditor's part is made out expressly or impliedly when it will run after fresh default. If there has been a waiver of right to immediate payment, limitation cannot run at once. (Pratt, J, C. and Crouch, A.J.C.) VISHINDAS VADHURRAM v. HOTOMAL DITTOMAL. 31 I. C. 479 : 9 S. L. R. 90.

Miscellaneous.

Applicability.

———Art. 75—Applicability—Instalment bond—Default.

Art. 75 of the Limitation Act is applicable to every suit on a bond payable by instalments containing a default clause. It is immaterial whether the payment of the whole of the amount springs from a single default or from more than one default. 47 P. R. 1903, 38 Mad. 374, ref. (*Shadi Lal, C. lump sum. The bond was executed in 1909 and there was default in the first instalment. Plff. waited till the term provided in the bond had fully expired, and sued for all the instalments except the first two, which had become barred. Held, that under the terms of the bond, the plff. had an option to waive his right to bring the suit at once on the happening of the first default, and that therefore, his suit with regard to the last three instalments was not barred. Starting Point.

———Arts. 75 and 132—Starting point—Mortgage—Instalments—Whole amount to become due on default of payment of single instalment—Limitation.

Under a mortgage executed in 1902 the principal sum borrowed was Rs. 1,200 and the sum was made payable in annual instalments of 100 rupees each. On default of payment of every one instalment the whole of the balance was to be paid at once. In the years 1903 and 1904 the mortgagors paid Rs. 44 only. In 1923 the mortgagees filed a suit to recover the amount of the first two instalments and obtained a decree. In 1917 the mortgagees filed a suit for recovery of the remaining instalments with interest. Held, that the suit was barred by limitation. (*Macleod, C. Waiver.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Instalment bond—Suit for recovery of money due—Default.

Where in a suit on an instalment bond the question arises whether the suit is barred on account of default in payment of a prior instalment, the point to consider is whether the plff. had an option to waive his right to bring a suit at once on the happening of the default and whether, as a matter of fact he did exercise his right of waiver. The test of waiver may be found in the prayer in each suit did he claim the whole amount. if so there was no waiver, or only the amount due on unpaid instalments not time-barred. 11 A. L. ——Arts. 75 and 132—Waiver — Meaning—Instalment bond

——Art. 75—Waiver—What is—Instalment bond—Consent not to sue if waiver

Waiver is consent to dispense with or forego something to which a person is entitled. When the plff. consented not to sue for the whole amount as he was entitled to do under the bond for default on the first two occasions but refused to consent on the third, Held, that this amounted to a waiver of the payment of the two earlier instalments. 21 C. 542 ; 5 C. 97 ; 31 C. 297 ; 7 W. ——Art. 75—Waiver—Meaning—Acceptance of overdue instalments.

Where an instalment bond provides that the whole amount of the bond would be payable in case of default of any instalment, the acceptance of a portion of an overdue instalment does not constitute waiver and limitation runs from the date of default of the first instalment. ——Art. 75—Waiver— Suit on instalment bond—Entire debt payable on demand — Acceptance of overdue instalment.

A bond was payable by instalments in default, all to be payable at once. Plff. alleged that the first two instalments were paid but not subsequent instalments and he sued for the rest of the money. Held, that Art. 75 of the Lim. Act applies and limitation runs from date of default or where the payee has waived the provision as to a default incurring liability to pay the whole at once, then from the time of the next default. Although the first two instalments were paid a little after due time, their acceptance should be held to constitute waiver. (Chevis, C. J.) RAMJAWAYA SHAH v. RAMSING. 2 Lah. L. J. 314.

——Art. 75—"Waiver" — Reason of the provision as to.

Under an award in a business dispute, the deft. passed an instalment bond in plff.'s favour. The bond, besides providing for monthly instalments, provided for the recovery of principal and interest, on default of three instalments. The deft. paid the instalments till May. The instalments for May and June were returned by the plff. In August he sued to set aside the award which was upheld on 26th February 1908 and by the Appellate Court by 19th January 1910. During the appeal, the plff.'s Vakil applied for the decree of the unpaid instalments, but it was rejected. After the appeal the plff. sued for the recovery of instalments due. Deft. pleaded Art. 75 as bar. Held there was no default on the part of the defts. that there was waiver on the part of the plff. and that the plff could not deduct under S 14 the period of previous litigation and also that the defts. could not plead the bar of limitation and that the plffs. were entitled to interest on the instalments due as there was no true legal tender of those instalments (Wallis, J.) CHOTA KRISHNASWAMI CHETTY v. SITARAMA CHETTY. ——Art. 75—Waiver—Acceptance of over due instalment.

If the creditor does not enforce the stipulation for payment of the entire amount on default of any instalment he must be taken to have waived the benefit of it and time will run only from the date of each fresh default under Art. 75. Waiver is a question of fact the proof of which cannot be defined to any particular mode of proof and when a man does not take advantage of a stipulation in his favour, that is very strong evidence of waiver. It is not necessary to a waiver under Art. 75 that there must be an acceptance of an overdue payment of instalment. (Abdur Rahim and Ayling, JJ.) KARUNAKARAN NAIR v. KRISHNA MENON. 10 M. L. ———Arts. 83 and 116—Contract of indemnity—Vendee to discharge debts of vendor.

The question whether a promise by the vendee to pay off the debt due from the vendor is a contract of indemnity within Art. 83 purely depends on the wording of the document in each case. 31 A. 583 Ref. Where the property was worth more than the debt and the discharge of the debt was the only consideration for the transfer, the contract to pay the debt is a contract to indemnity. Where, however, the vendor leaves part of the consideration in the vendee's hand to pay on the debts of the vendor, the vendor may sue the vendee if he fails to pay the debts after they become due and the words of such a covenant would not amount to a contract of indemnity proper. 30 M. 348 Dist. A contract of indemnity may be one of a sale or a gift. (Abdur Rahim and Srinivasa Aiyangar, JJ.) KALIYAMMAL v. KOLANDAVELA GOUNDER. 38 I. C. 188 : 6 L. W. 228.

——Art. 85—Essentials—Mutual open and current account.

Under Art. 85 of the Lim Act the Court has to consider whether the account between the parties was mutual, open and current indicating reciprocal demands between the parties. It is not essential that the balance should in fact have been in favour of one party at some stage. It is enough if the dealings are such that the balance might have been in favour of either party. 23 Bom. L.R. 540 Ref. (Shah, A.C.J. and Crump, J.) SATAPPA JAKAPPA v. AUNAPPA.

——Art. 85—Mutual account—What is—Suit. limitation—Terminus a quo.

The test for determining if the dealings between the parties are mutual is to see whether the dealings are entered in an account consisting of mutual items of debit and credit and not whether they might give rise to independent obligations or reciprocal demands or whether the balance will shift from one side to the other. The limitation in the case of mutual dealings starts from the time in which the last item was entered in the account. (*Macleod, C. The plaintiffs sued the defendants on accounts claiming Rs. 1,450. The suit was instituted on the 13th of August 1918. The accounts showed a balance struck of Rs. 361-6 0 in favour of the plaintiffs on the 20th May 1913. Thereafter the accounts continued for another year and ended with a total in favour of the plaintiffs of Rs. 832-9-0. No second balance was struck formerly, Interest at 1 per cent. per mensem was claimed, bringing the amount in suit up to Rs. 1,450. Held that the applicable article was 57 for which the period of six years under the Punjab Loans Limitation Act of 1904. The balance being an acknowledgment of starting fresh period of limitation under S. 19 of Act IX of 1908. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 85.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Meaning of.

It is well settled that an open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or unclosed by settlement or otherwise consisting of a series of transactions. A current account has been held to be an open or running account between two or more parties, or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is or can be ascertained. Mutual accounts are accounts which show reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having item on one side only though made up of debits and credits. (Scott-Smith and Moti Sagar, JJ.) THE FIRM RUP CHAND-JIVAN SINGH v. THE FIRM POHO MAL-NATHU MAL. 1923 Lah 347.

——Art. 85—Mutual open and current accounts—Test of.

The test of applying Art. 85 is mutuality and reciprocity; therefore where there are entries on one side showing cash advances, price of cloth sold, payment made to third person on behalf of the defendants for things supplied and commission charged, for purchases made by plaintiff for defendants and on the other side there are entries showing that the plaintiff firm received various kinds of grains from the defendant and having sold them in the market credited the proceeds to the defendants, the suit comes under Art. 85 of the Limitation Act. Nature of mutual, open and current accounts fully considered. (Abdul Raoof and Harrison, JJ.) ABDUL HAQ v. THE FIRM SHIVJI RAM-KHEM CHAND. 1922 Lah. 338.

——Arts. 85 and 64—Mutual, open and current account—Striking of balance—Suit for recovery of money—Limitation.

Where there were mutual dealings between the parties, though balances were struck from time to time, they were merely acknowledgments and not agreements to pay. The case is one not of a stated account but of a mutual, open and current account where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties and a suit for recovery of money due on such account would be governed by art. 85 and not by art. 64. 16 P. borrow money too and the latter sued to recover the balance struck by the defendants, held that the suit was governed by Art. 85, as the dealing disclosed a mutual, open and current account, and the mere striking of the balance was no evidence of a new contract. (Abdul Raoof and Martineau, JJ.) RATAN CHAND JWALA DAS v. ASA SINGH BOGHA SINGH. 62 I. C. 898.

Although the account between the parties is a current and open one yet in order that Art. 85 may apply it is also necessary that each party must have a demand against the other. Where however it has not been shown that the defendants-respondents could have made any such demand during the currency of the account the requirements of Art. 85 have not been fulfilled. 6 C. L. ——Art. 85—Mutual account, what is—Shifting balance necessity.

For a mutual account there are obligations on each side creating independent obligations on the other. Where the obligation is on one side only those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations, the account is not mutual. The absence of a shifting balance however is not conclusive against the mutuality. Where plff. used to advance money to defts. who used to send grain to plff. who used to sell it and credit it to the defendant after deducting his commission, held, that the account was a mutual one. ——Art. 85— Mutual, current and open accounts—Test of.

In order that accounts might be mutual within the meaning of Art. 85 of the Limitation Act there must be transactions on each side, creating independent obligations on the other, and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligation. If there may be a balance in favour of either party it follows that there must be mutual liabilities of both parties to each other ; if however the balance is always in favour of one party in the very nature of the transactions, then there is no case of separate mutual dealings and Art. 85 will not apply. 6 C. ——Art. 85—"Open, mutual and current account."

Where A sends goods to B for sale on commission, receives advances thereof from time to time and settles the sum due by him at periodical settlement of accounts, Held, that a suit for accounts by A against B after the dealings had stopped is not a suit on an "Open, mutual and current account" within Art. 85 of the Act. ——Arts. 85 and 88—Applicability—Mutual, open and current account.

Where in the dealings between the parties something outside the mere entrusing of goods for sale is found such as for example advances from time to time by the plff. to the deft. and credit for the goods sold on deft.'s behalf, these elements are quite sufficient to bring the case under Art. 85 for the balance due on a mutual, open and current account and Art. 88 has no application. Where plff. advanced different sums at different times to the deft. which advances were treated under an agreement as a consolidated debt commencing from the date of agreement and a pro-note was executed by the deft. the same day about the consolidated items, held that a suit on the basis of the dealings fell under Art. 85 and not under Art. 88. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 85.

——Art. 85 — "Mutual, current and open account", what is.

To constitute a "mutual, current and open account" the account must not only be mutual, current and open but there should also be reciprocal demands between the parties. 34 M. 513, Dist.; 6 T. R 189, Foll. Per *White, C. ——Art. 85—Advance of money—Consigning goods on commission—Obligation, nature of.

21 I. C. 773 : 14 M. L. T. 498.

——Art. 85 — Mutual, open and current accounts—Test.

The test to find out a mutual, open and current account is whether there were mutual demands and not merely payments by one party to the other on account of a debt due by the former to the latter. Mere shifting of balances sometimes in favour of one party sometimes in favour of another affords no real test of mutuality though it is an important consideration. 34 M. 513 ; 21 M. L. ——Art. 85—Balance always in favour of one party.

Per Abdur Rahim, J.—It is not sufficient that the acccount is open and current or that the entries show debit and credit ; there must be reciprocal demands. Accounts are not open and current when the opposite party is not allowed to show that they were not kept in the ordinary course of business. (Per Phillips, J.) It makes no difference that the expenditure and receipts are kept in separate books, nor that the balance is always found to be in favour of one party. (Abdur Rahim and Phillips, JJ.) SUBBA NAIDU v. ETHIRAJAMMAL. 10 M L. T. 409 : (1911) 2 M. W. N. 440 : 12 I. C. 673 : 22 M. L. J. 14.

The fact that the balance of an account was always in favour of the same party does not prevent the account from being mutual. The test is the intention of the parties. (Hallifax, A. C. J.) PANDURANG v. KALLUDAS. 1923 Nag. 108.

——Art. 85 — Mutual, open and current account—Nature of.

Where in respect of transactions between the parties no balance was struck and payments were made by one party not in respect of any particular transaction, but in respect of the account generally and hundis were drawn from time to time by one party at a time when the balance was decidedly in the other party's favour. Held, that the transactions constituted a case of mutual, open and current account with reciprocal demands within the meaning of Art. 85 of the Limitation Act. (Daniels, A. J. C.) BANKE LAL v. KANHAIYA LAL. 1922 Oudh 124.

——Art. 85—Mutual account—Test—Shifting balance if necessary.

Mutual accounts are such as consist in reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only though made up of debits or credits. Where the account in this case shows dealings between the parties which amounted to mutual debits and credits on both sides so that sometimes the balance was in favour of one party and sometimes of the other, the case comes within art. 85 of the Lim. Act. It is not necessary that there must have been a shifting balance, but it must be shown that was a possible and likely incident of the mutual transactions with regard to which the account was kept. (Kulwant Sahay and Foster, JJ.) FYZABAD BANK, LTD. v. RAM DAYAL.
4 P. L. T. 571 : 1924 P. 107.

——Art. 85 — Mutual, open and current account—Test of.

It cannot be said that an account is a mutual account simply because there may have been occasionally a balance in the defendant's favour. There must have been reciprocal demand between the parties. 17 M. 293 ; 6 C. L. J. 158 followed. (Ross, J.) RAM SUNDAR v. AMRIT PAJIYAR.

Unless the account is a mutual, open and current account an adjustment in the presence of the parties does not furnish a fresh starting point of limitation. An account current is an open or running account between two or more parties or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is or can be ascertained. From this it follows that such an account comes under the terms of open account in so far as it is running unsettled or unclosed. The test of mutuality is that the dealings between the parties should be such that the balance is sometimes in favour of one party and sometimes in favour of the other. Where account does not indicate transactions creating independent obligations on both sides, it is not mutual account. 42 C. 1043 ; 15 C. W. N. 882 ; 6 C. L. J. 158 ; 17 M. 293 ; 5 C. 759 Rel. ——Art. 85—Mutual account.

The agent for both the parties, lent money on behalf of one firm to himself as agent for the other firm. Each of these loans gave rise to a right of set off or claim against the borrower, and as both plaintiff and defendant were on occasions the lenders, these transactions gave raise to reciprocal demand from time to time. The accounts were never settled. Held, the fact that the agent for his own convenience totalled up the position and made entries of the result in each firm's books did not close the account. It was continuous and was, therefore, an open and current account, and having regard to the mutual loans, it was also a mutual account. 8 L. B. R. 149, Dist. (Robinson, C. J. and Macgregor, J.) R. Death of Agent.

——Art. 89—Death of agent—Suit against heirs of agent—Onus.

The burden will lie upon the plff. to establish with regard to each specific sum that he is entitled to recover it. Art. 89 is not applicable to a suit brought, not against the agent, but his representatives. 96 P. R. 1886: 7 C. 627 Ref. Nor does this article show even by implication that a suit can be maintained against the representatives of a deceased agent. The intention of the law of limitation is not to give a right where there is not one, but to debar, after a certain period a suit to enforce an existing right. 33 A. 356; Rel. ——Arts. 89 and 90—Demand and refusal—Suit by principal against agent for recovery of money not accounted for—Suit against representatives of agent.

Where a principal sues his agent for recovery of money received by the agent on his behalf and not accounted for, the suit is governed by Art. 89 of the Limitation Act and where the agency is continuous, the period of limitation starts from the date when the agent refuses to account for the moneys. A suit by the principal against his agent for damages caused by the agent's breach of duty or negligence is governed by Art. 90 of the Limitation Act, and the starting point of limitation is the date when the breach of duty or negligence comes to the knowledge of the principal. Arts. 89 and 90 of the Limitation Act which relate to suits by principal against his agent have no application to a suit by the principal against the representatives of his deceased agent. ——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Refusal to render accounts—Postponement—Limitation.

The refusal contemplated in Art. 89 is a definite refusal and there must be definite evidence that a definite demand was made upon a definite date and refused. It is insufficient to say that demands were made from time to time and the plffs. were "Put off" by the defts. "Put off" means postponement and the postponement is by no means tantamount to refusal. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 89—Termination of Agency.

——— Art. 89—Termination of agency—Agency—Termination—Salary chit.

The question where an agency terminates within Art. 89 is one of fact. It cannot be treated as a question of law and disposed of without evidence. It is not a matter of law that on the expiry of the term mentioned in the salary chit the agency comes to end ipso facto. A salary chit means only that the agency shall not terminate before the expiry of the term fixed by it or that agency shall last for the term fixed after which it may be continued. It does not mean that after the expiry of the period there is a new agency but only that the original agency continues. (Ayling and Srinivasa Aiyangar, JJ.) RAMANATHAN CHETTY v. KASI.

——Art. 93—Suit to declare the forgery of instrument attempted to be enforced against the plff.—Attempt to have a lease recorded under Record of Rights Act (Bom. Act IV of 1903).

Deft applied in 1908, to the Mamlatdar to record under the Record of Rights Act, a lease under which he claimed to be entitled to a rent of 400 cocoanuts from the plff. Plff. having complained that the lease was a forgery, the Collector, ordered that lease should be recorded. On the strength of that record the deft. sued in the Mamalatdar's Court to enforce the terms of the lease and recovered cocoanuts due under it. The plff. sued, within three years of the recovery of the cocoanuts, to recover back the value of the cocoanuts, on the ground that the alleged lease was a forgery. Held, that the suit was not barred under Art. 93 of the Lim. Act, for the words "attempt to enforce" would in their ordinary and natural meaning, be applicable to an attempt to recover rent under the lease. The attempt to have the lease recorded under the Record of Rights Act, in 1908, could not be put higher than an unsuccessful attempt to have a document registered in the case in which registration was necessary and that such an attempt was not an attempt to enforce the lease. The expression means the institution of proceedings in which the genuineness of the instrument is directly put in issue and to which the person against whom it is sought to be enforced is a necessary party. But the institution need not be by the person relying on the instrument only as plff. ——Art 93—Attempt to enforce a forged instrument—Meaning of—Application by a widow for succession certificate as heir to her deceased husband if an attempt.

"Attempt to enforce a forged instrument against the plff." within Art 93 is done only when a person institutes proceedings in which the genuineness of the document is directly put in issue and to which the person against whom it is sought to be enforced is a necessary party. An attempt to register a document is not an attempt to enforce it against other person's rights, 17 Bom. L. R. 635 Foll. A widow as such applied for a succession certificate to collect the debts due to her deceased husband and only incidentally mentioned a will of her deceased husband, but did not base her right as a legatee. ——Art. 97—Consideration—When fails.

After a preliminary decree on a mortgage a Mahomedan mortgagee died. The judgment-debtor agreed with one of his co-heirs and paying a certain sum of money obtained a discharge. The other heirs got a final decree and it was held that out of the sum paid, the amount representing the payee's share, should be considered as having been paid towards the satisfaction of the decree. In execution money was paid. After five years the judgment-debtor applied for refund of the amount paid in excess of the decretal amount. Held, that the application was barred, as time began to run from the date of decree, the cause of action being to recover the sum paid in excess as on failure of consideration. ——Art. 97—Suit to recover money paid on consideration which fails.

An agreement was entered into between the plaintiff and the defendant No. 1. The agreement stated that the plaintiff had paid the defendant the money which he now seeks to recover in consideration of the defendant procuring for the plaintiff a re-conveyance of certain property which had been sold under a Court decree. Defendant No. 2 conveyed that property to a third person. Plaintiff sued defendant No. 1 to recover the sum paid by him. Held, that adopting the view that the suit is governed by Art. 97, the suit is time-barred. ——— Art. 106—Suit for partnership account—Presumption of dissolution of partnership—Cessation of annual accounts—Rendering of final account showing division of capital and revenue.

In a suit brought in 1902 for partnership account and to recover the plaintiff's share in the properties of a business carried on by them and the defendants. Held, (affirming the decision of the High Court) that, when annual accounts of the partnership business which had been rendered year by year from 1868 to 1891, ceased in the latter year and, on 12th April 1891, a final account showing the division of both capital and revenue was made out, the defendants afterwards carrying on the business without any interference from the plaintiffs, the presumption was in favour of the dissolution of the partnership as at the definite date of the year when the account was thus closed. And their Lordships were of opinion that these facts taken with the other acts and conduct of the other parties, and the whole circumstances of the case which greatly strengthened the presumption, made the inference in favour of the dissolution having occurred at the above date substantially conclusive. The suit, therefore, not having been brought within three years from the date, was barred by Article 106. (Lord Shaw.) JOOPOODY SARAYYA v. PALAVARATH LAKSHMANASWAMI. 36 Mad. 185 : 11 A. L. ——Arts. 109 and 120—Wrongfully received—Meaning of—Possession obtained under decree—Reversal in appeal—Suit for possession and mesne profits—Restitution.

A suit for the recovery of profits of immoveable property by a person who was dispossessed in execution of a decree which was reversed in appeal and who was subsequently restored to possession, is governed by Art. 109. The words "wrongfully received" in the article include receipt of profits under a claim or title that cannot be legally substantiated. An appeal is only a continuation of the original proceedings and the appellate judgment dates back to and stands in the place of the original judgment for all legal purposes. Possession taken by a person pending an appeal is subject to the result of the appeal and must be deemed to have been without legal title if the original decree or order is reversed and is in this sense wrongful as against the person dispossessed. In 1907, deft. sold to plff. some land of his own together with some land of his minor nephew with a condition that if the minor would object on attaining majority, deft. would give an equal area from his own property. Mutation as regards the minor's share was refused in 1907 on objection being raised by the minor's mother. In 1910 plff. sued for a declaration of his ownership of the whole land but his suit was dismissed as to the minor's share. In 1917 the minor attained majority, mortgaged his share to A who dispossessed the plff. from the property. Plff. therefore sued the deft. to enforce the indemnity clause or Rs. 1,000 as the value of the minor's share. Held, that the first part was a suit for specific performance and was governed by Art. 113 and time ran from 1907 or 1911, and the suit was barred; that as regards recovery of purchase-money the suit was governed by Art. 62 or Art. 97; if by Art. 62, it was barred as time began to run from the date of sale and if by Art. 97, it was barred as time began to run when the plff.'s rights was denied, i. e., 1907 or at least in 1911. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 116—Starting point of limitation.

The plaintiff entered into possession of the jaimanka brit sold to him and remained in possession until he was dispossessed on the 30th August 1918 by his vendor's son. In a suit for damages, held that time would begin to run either from that date on which the sale was held or from the date of dispossession. There was a distinct stipulation in the conveyance that if there was any defect in title, the vendee would be competent to realise the considerationnumoney with damages. This was a registered instrument and as there was a breach, both of the covenant for title and of the implied covenant for quiet enjoyment, the plaintiff was entitled to bring his suit within six years of the breach. ———Arts 119 and 144—Interference—Proof.

Under Art. 119 of the Lim. Act, to establish interference with the rights of the adopted son, something incompatible with the recognition of the adoption must be proved. A son was adopted in the life-time of a natural son. On the former's death, the latter succeeded to his estate allowing a maintenance to the former's widow, who brought a suit to recover it. The succession by the natural son was not an interference so as to attract the operation of Art. 119. The erroneous belief shared by the adopted son's widow, of the right of the natural son to succeed to her late husband does not rise to an estoppel and hence the suit is not barred by limitation or estoppel. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 120.

———Art. 119—Suit to establish adoption—Limitation.

Under Art. 119 of the Limitation Act an adopted son whose adoption is challenged and rights interfered with, must institute a suit for having his adoption declared valid within six years from the date of interference. Where an adoption was challenged in 1901 and a decree was passed against the adopted son who sued in 1913 for a declaration that he was not bound by the decree of 1901, held that as the suit was instituted after more than six years from the date of interference it was barred by limitation. ——— Art. 119—Gift to adopted son—Challenge by reversioner.

Where an adoption remains unchallenged, and the right to impeach it becomes time-barred, a gift made subsequently in favour of the adopted son does not give the reversioners a fresh cause of action for it does not involve any further denial of their rights than was involved in the adoption itself. (Leslie Jones and Abdul Raoof, JJ.) KHUSHAL SINGH v. KANDA. 56 I. C 931 : 2 U. P. L. R. (Lah.) 110.

———Art. 119—Suit for possession—Omission to sue for declaration—Lim. Act (IX of 1871), Art. 129—Difference in law.

Under the Limitation Act of 1871 it was imperative that a suit for the recovery of immoveable property which involved the displacement of an adoption should be filed within 12 years from the date of the adoption or at the option of the plaintiff from the death of the adopted father. Where therefore a widow did not bring such a suit within the period of limitation, a reversioner or any other member interested to dispute the validity of the adoption cannot file a suit. A right of suit once barred cannot be revived by the passing of a new Act. 13 C. 308 : 20 C. 487 ; 26 M. 291 ; 12 M. 26 Ref. ———Arts. 120 and 125—Avoidance of document —Hindu widow — Alienation — Suit by remote reversioner—Cause of action.

A suit by remote reversioner for declaration that an alienation by a Hindu widow is not binding on him after her life time, is governed by article 120 and an allegation of collusion of the nearest reversioner will not bring it under Art. 125, 10 M. L. J. 229 Foll. The cause of action for such a suit arises on the date of alienation and the fact that the plaintiffs came to know of the collusion of the nearest reversioner subsequent to the alienation is not a ground for exemption from limitation till date of knowledge. Declaration of title.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Alluvial land—Submersion and re-appearance—Denial of title—Failure to prove possession of disputed land—Effect of.

Defendants were mortgagees of certain land from defendants. Some land which had emerged from the river was settled with defendants in 1853. The land submerged and re appeared again and again. The plaintiffs claimed the formation as an accretion to t eir village but the revenue authorities decided in favour of the defendants. More than six years after the date of the said decision, the plaintiffs sued for declaration of title; Held that the accretion not having been slow and imperceptible the plaintiffs could not acquire a title thereto and that even if they had any right, they lost it by failure to have it declared when the revenue authorities decided against them. 24 A. 521 ; 27 A. 313 ref. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908). Art. 120—Declaration of title.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action.

In a suit for declaration that the property mortgaged to deft. is plff's property and the mortgagor had no right to it, the fact of the mortgage having been made did not affect the plff. so long as no effort was made to enforce the mortgage against the property. The cause of action accrued to the plff. on the date on which the deft. attempted to sell the property and the suit instituted within six years of that date was not time-barred. ——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Partition proceedings—Entry in settlement.

In 1887 defts were recorded in the Setttlement papers as owners and in 1914 they applied for partition. Held that the remaining cosharers had a fresh cause of action in 1914 consequent on the partition, to sue for a declaration of their title and that the entry in the settlement was erroneous. ——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Plff. in possession—Successive denials of title—Fresh cause of action.

A person in possession is entitled to pass by an invasion of his right to the property, and is not by the forbearance debarred from a future suit on a fresh assertion on the part of the deft. which amounts to a denial or repudiation of his title and gives him an independent cause of action. (Walsh, J.) MAHABIR RAI v. SARJU PRASAD RAI. 43 I C. 175.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Suit against pre-emption—Vendor's widow—Cause of action.

K obtained a pre-emption decree against G. and got possession when the widow's name was substituted for G's, in the village records. The tenants of the land who had obtained mortgage with possession under K sued for and got a declaration of their title as mortgagors but when the plaintiff who claimed through K failed to get a mutation of names, he brought a suit for a declaration of his proprietary right 3 years after the death of G. but more than 6 years after the date of K's obtaining possession. Held the suit was not barred by the six years rule of limitation 20 A. 37 ref. to. 24 I. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908) Art. 120—Declaration of title.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Wrong entry in Rev. Record—Cause of action.

A tenant mortgaged his occupancy holding with possession in 1877. In 1880 his name was expunged from the Revenue papers and that of the mortgagee was recorded. In 1907 he applied to the Settlement Officer for correction but the application was dismissed ; the tenant brought a suit for a declaration that he was the mortgagor. The suit was barred by time as the cause of action accrued in 1880. (Lyle, J.) TARA CHAND v. BOTI RAM. 19 I. C. 751.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Wrong entry at settlement.

A suit for declaration of title must be brought within 6 years of the date when the plaintiff has first notice of a wrong-entry made at a settlement. (Chamier, J.) LACHMI BAI v. BANKEY LAL. 18 I. C. 463.

—— Art. 120—Declaration of title—Fresh cause of action.

In 1909 the Commissioner directed in appeal the correction of the record made at the settlement in 1901. The order gave the plff. a fresh cause of action for declaration of their right. The suit being within 6 years, was within time. (Chamier, J.) SHEOPHER SINGH v. DEO NARAIN SING. 17 I. C. 675 : 10 A. L. J. 413.

——Art. 120 and 142—Declaration of title—Proceedings under S. 145—Attachment by Magistrate—Effect of.

Where in proceedings under S. 145, Cr.P. Code a magistrate attaches the property in dispute, a suit for possession of the property is in truth and in substance one for declaration of title to the properties and is governed by art. 120 of the Limitation Act and not by Art. 142; 20 A. 120: 26 M. 410 : 20 C. W N. 481 : 17 Cal. 814 Referred. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908) Art. 120—Declaration of title.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title and confirmation of possession—Limitation.

A suit for declaration of title and confirmation of possession and not for a correction of an entry in the Record of Rights is governed by Art. 120 of the Act and limitation runs from the date when defendant attempted to disturb the plaintiff's possession. ——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Omission of plff.'s name from Settlement records—Limitation.

Where the plffs. brought a suit for a declaration of title, their names having been omitted from the Settlement records, Held, that limitation commenced to run against the plffs, not from the date of the omission of their names from the records, but from the date when their title was challenged by the defts. (Teunon and Richardson, JJ.) HASAN MEA v. NAUN MEA. 46 I. C. 796.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Declaration of title—Suit for confirmation of possession.

A suit even though framed for confirmation of possession, may be treated as one for recovery of possession if plff.'s title to recover possession has not been barred by limitation but where the plff. in such a suit makes a case that he is in possession, but fails to prove his possession, the Court will not give him possession even though he proves his title and the suit has been instituted within the limitation prescribed for suits for recovery of possession. ——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Consequential relief.

Art. 120 applies to suits for declaratory relief but not to suits for declaration of title in which consequential reliefs are also joined. Where the land is in the possession of the plaintiff, time does not begin to run against him under Art. 120 of the Lim. Act. when an adverse entry is made against him in the Record of Rights but only when an actual claim is made by the defendant upon the strength of the defendant. ——Art. 120, 142 and 144—Declaration of title and possession — Attachment of property under S. 146 Cr. P. Code—Delivery of Symbolical possession to deft.

Property was attached under S. 146, Cr. P. Code on 7-3 1899. It remained under attachment till 26-2-1903, when the deft. No. 18 applied to the Magistrate to be put in possession as purchaser in execution of a decree against the deft. No. 1 the opponent of the plff. in the possession proceedings. Thereupon the Magistrate put him in possession. The plff. brought a suit for possession and for declaration of title on 28-2-1906; Held that Art. 120 of the Lim. Act. 1877, did not apply to the suit and it was not barred although brought more than six years after the date of attachment. It was governed by Art 142 or 144 of the Lim. Act. 20 A. 120 rel. ——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Starting point of limitation.

In a suit by the plff, in 1919 for declaration of their title as adna maliks of certain land forming part of the shamilat, it was found that the defts. denied their title in 1912, that the Assistant Collector refused mutation of their names in 1912, that on appeal the Collector reversed the order of the Assistant Collector and ordered mutation of the plff.'s names in 1913 and that the order of the Collector was reversed by the Commissioner in 1913, Held, that though the denial of the plff.'s title in 1912 gave them a cause of action, the order of the Commissioner in 1913 gave a fresh cause of action and that the suit was within time. 10 A. ——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Limitation when begins—Successive invasions.

A man is not bound to bring a declaratory suit on any and every possible invasion of his title, and such suits are not encouraged by courts unless thy are clearly necessary. Where plaintiff's share in a shamilat was dis puted in 1895, but his joint possession was not disturbed, and in 1914 in another partition proceeding his rights were again disputed: Held, a suit for declaration of title within 6 years of the latter event, is in time. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 120—Declaration of Title.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Interference with graveyard—Cultivation of portions of graveyard—Interference with repairs.

In a suit for declaration that certain lands were a grave yard it was found that portions of the land were, from time to time cultivated, that in the settlement of 1904—1905 no part of the land was shown as a graveyard, a portion being entered as cultivated and the rest as waste. In 1915 there was an active interference when certain masons who entered upon the land in order to repair the old tombs were obstructed. Held, that the suit was in time, being brought within 6 years after 1915. The plffs. might very well have disregarded the fact that parts of the land were cultivated so long as their rights were not actively interfered with. The obstruction of repairs to the tomb was an overt act which interfered with the plaintiff's right of user. Therefore time did not begin to run against the plaintiffs until 1915. (Scott-Smith, J.) JAI GOPAL v. MAHOMED BAKHSH. 65 I. C. 647.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—New cause of action—Limitation.

A suit for declaration of title to lands by a proprietor in possession is not barred if brought within 6 years of an attempted dispossession although the plff. had a right to sue the defendant who had been recorded as owner in the revenue record more than six years before suit. 36 All. 492; 140 P. Where the cause of action for a suit for declaration of title is the refusal of Revenue authorities to enter the plaintiff's name in the revenue register, the starting point of limitation under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act is the date of the order of refusal by the Revenue authority. A subsequent application for the same relief and a subsequent order of refusal by the Revenue authority does not give a fresh cause of action for the suit. 11 C. W. N. 186 rel : 31 All 9 ; 22 C. ———Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action.

A notice of ejectment issued by the plaintiff against the defendant was cancelled by the Revenue Court. The plaintiff unsuccessfully appealed to the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue. After the order of the Board of Revenue, he filed a declaratory suit. Defendants contended that the suit was barred by limitation alleging that time commenced from the date of the Government order and not from date of order of the Board of Revenue. Held that the defendant's plea was not valid and that so long as it is open to a person against whom an adverse order had been passed to get it set aside on appeal, and he is taking the necessary steps towards it, he can not be driven to bring a regular suit for a declaration of his rights. When a Rev. Court held in a suit that the defts are not ordinary tenants and in the next suit between the same parties held they were under-proprietors, it was held that the cause of action for a civil suit to declare that they were not under-proprietors, arose not with previous decision but with the entry of the deft's name as under-proprietors under the subsequent order of the Court. ———Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action.

In an application to the Revenue court for partition, the deft. alleged the plff. owned only 1-3 share. Plff. contended that he had ½ and he was referred to Civil Court. Immediately he filed a suit for declaration. The cause of action being the order of the Revenue Court, the deft. contended that the suit was barred by limitation as the Revenue Records of such long date as 1872 showed only 1-3 share to his name. The court found that the plff. was in possession of ½ share all along. Held that the suit was within time as it was not necessary for the plff. before the Revenue Court's order to bring the declaratory suit. No 3. owned five sixths of Mouzah Kangore and the deft No. 1. one-sixth of the share. Some time in 1907 there was a dispute between the deft. No 3 and the plff.'s predecessor-in interest with regard to some lands one party alleging that the lands appertained to Ghola. The lands were attached under S. 146 of he Code of Criminal Procedure and remained under attachment up to the year 1916. In consequence several suits were brought by the deft. No. 3 for the establishment of his right to these lands and the dispute between the deft No 3 and the plffs, terminated in a compromise. In the meantime the defendant No. 1 withdrew from the collectorate certain sums of money representing his share of the profits of the lands which had been attached as appertaining to Mouzah Kangore on various dates, i.e., 11th May 1913, 19th June 1913, 7th January 1916 and 18th January 1916. The plff. commenced the suit on 16th March 1917, for among other things recovery of sums withdrawn by the deft. No. 1 on the allegation that the lands which have been attached being in their Mouzah Ghola the money in the collectorate was their money, held, Art. 120 and not Art. 62 applied. ——— Art 124—Suit by heir of shebait—Suction purchaser of the share of shebait—Incompetency of auction—Purchaser to hold office.

Where an auction-purchaser of the share of daily surplus income from the offerings of a temple enjoyed the income for about 20 years as against the widow of the shebait though he was incompetent to hold the office owing to his caste, and the reversioner sued on the death of the widow for a declaration that he was entitled to the offerings. Held, that the suit was not one to recover an hereditary office within Art. 124 of the Lim. Act. and was not barred by limitation. The deft. not having taken possession of the office and being incompetent to hold it, could not by adversely taking and appropriating to his own use a share of the surplus daily income from the offerings, acquire a title to the office or a share of the income. On each occasion on which he received and wrongfully appropriated to his own use a share of the income to which the shebait was entitled, the deft. committed a fresh actionable wrong in respect of which a suit could be brought against him by the shebait but it did constitute him the shebait or in any way affect title to the office. According to Article 124 of the Limitation Act, the right of a hereditary trustee would be barred when the office has been held adversely for a period of more than 12 years by the defendant. Twelve years' continuous possession is necessary under Art. 124 to a right to trusteeship. If the possession has been in the hands of independent trespassers it would not be regarded as continuous possession on the part of the defendant trespassers ; but where the independent trespassers have all derived title from the same source it may be sufficient to justify a court in holding that the possession was continuous. 14 M. 153 : 18 M. 1 Foll.; 15 M. 389, Dist. Art. 124 deals with a suit for possession against the holder of a hereditary office. Where the plaintiff's family is entitled to the lands belonging to a temple limitation begins to run from the time the plaintiff's right to beneficial enjoyment accrues. The explanation to the clause in the third column of Art. 124 does not modify the words in the first column of the Art. Mere receipt of the emoluments without performance of duties will not entitle the recipient to claim possession of the office if the duties are being performed by another Therefore, by possession of land alone one cannot acquire a right to the office. The compromise of a litigation by a female owner does not amount to a fresh alienation so as to give rise to a fresh cause of action to the reversioners. ——Art. 126—Suit 12 years after alienee took possession.

A suit by a Hindu to set aside his father's alienation of family property more than 12 years after the alienee took possession, is barred by Article 126 of the Act. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) RAMASAWMY AIYAR v. VANAMAMALAI AIYAR. 26 I. C. 873.

——Art. 126—Alienation by father—Setting aside—Right of sons born and unborn—Cause of action.

A son born in a joint Hindu family acquires by birth an interest in ancestral property but does not acquire any interest in any right to sue. The cause of action accrues after an alienation when the purchaser takes possession and a new cause of action does not accrue upon the subsequent birth of a son in the family. The after-born son does not acquire a fresh cause of action and a fresh period of limitation does not start from the date of his birth. In the case of an after-born son the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned is the date of the transfer and as he was not born on that date and under no disability on that date he cannot obtain the benefit of the provisions of S. 6 of the Lim Act. When he cannot save limitation for himself he can give ———Art. 127—Muhammadans.

Art. 127 cannot apply to Muhammadans for on the death of a Muhammadan intestate, his estate could not be joint property unless by special family custom it is supposed to be governed by Hindu Law. It is an undistributed estate to be taken in severalty by the heirs, sharers and residuaries. The criterion for the applicability of Art. 127 is that property must be "joint family property" and no such property is known outside the special joint family of the Hindu Law. ——Art. 127—Exclusion--What constitutes—Possession of guardian, in adverse—Ouster—Suit for partition—Limitation.

Co-parceners in a joint Hindu family are entitled to claim partition of property even though they are excluded from possession and partition is one of the modes of enforcing a right to share in joint family property. 3 C. 228 Ref. Under art. 127 of the Lim. Act the defendant has to show when the plaintiff was excluded from enjoyment of the property and when the exclusion became known to him. Exclusion by a co-owner of other co-owners will not become adverse to those other co-owners until they become aware of it but none the less there may be exclusion in fact. Where a guardian takes possession of the property of the ward, the presumption is that his possession is taken on behalf of the ward but the presumption is not irrebutable. 35 B. 79 dist. The word "exclusion" in Art. 127 of the Lim. Act involves a mental as well as a physical element. Not only the physical act but also the intention accompanying the act has to be looked at Where therefore a co-sharer holds the property under an express assertion of his title to hold as sole proprietor and makes gifts to other co sharers as such sole proprietor, there is exclusion of the latter and the gifts do not save limitation. ——Arts. 130 and 131—Right to levy assessment—Claim that tenancy is rent free.

Art. 130 of the Limitation Act can have no application unless and until the land is found to be rent free ; the mere non-payment of rent for a period does not bar the landlord's right to have the rent assessed and to recover rent from his rent. Where the suit is not for the resumption or assessment of rent free land, but for the assessment of mal land presumably liable to be assessed, the circumstances that rent has not in fact been paid for more than 12 years before suit is not per se sufficient to support a decree of dismissal. The right to have rent assessed must continue so long as the relationship of landlord and tenant continued in respect of land liable to be assessed. The right can only be lost by one or other of the modes recognised by law. The rights to levy assessment upon rent free land is governed by Art. 130 and is consequently extinguished if no suit to enforce the right is instituted within the time allowed. On the other hand under Art. 131, the right to levy assessment, would, as a recurring right accrue when there has been a demand and refusal, only in those cases where the relationship of landlord and tenant or landlord and occupant had ever existed, Once the right is established, then the non-payment of rent or assessment would not be sufficient to enable the tenant to begin to set up a title by adverse possession. There must be some overt act such as refusal to pay the rent or assessment, before time begins to run. Case-law reviewed. (Mookerjee and Cholzner, JJ.) AKBAR SARCAR v. RAMESH CHANDRA MOITRA.

Act, but a suit for the assessment of land presumably liable to be assessed. (3) the fact that the rent had not been paid more than twelve years before suit is not per se sufficient to support a decree for dismissal of such suit for the right to have the rent assessed must continue so long as

A claim that the plaintiff is the mutawalli of a mosque and as such is entitled to all yeomiah allowance received by a rival claimant is governed by Art. 120 of the Lim. Act. Article 131 does not apply to a perpetual right to receive an annual or a monthly allowance. The mere fact that sums of money are paid periodically does not make the right a periodically recurring right. Where the right is always vested in some person to receive periodical payments, and being vested in one person at one time, passes away at another time to somebody else, such a right is periodically recurring right in the true sense of the term. 4 Cal. 683 foll. ——Art. 131—Suit to establish right to offerings of temple—Claim for arrears.

A suit for a declaration that plff is entitled to a certain share in the offerings of a temple is a suit to establish a periodically recurring right under Art. 131. Where a person claims to share in the offerings made to a temple he can bring a suit at any time within 12 years from the date when he first asserted his right and did not have it recognised even though his right originated at a previous date. The Article has nothing whatever to do with a suit to recover arrears. (Stuart, J. C.) JAGDEO v. MATHURA PRASAD.

———Art. 132—Instalment bond— Waiver — Acceptance of overdue instalments.

A mortgage bond provided for payment of the debt in twelve instalments the first falling due in Pous 1308 and others in the month of Pous of each of the next 11 years ending with 1319, It was further provided that on the default in payment of any one instalment the creditor would be entitled to recover the entire amount due under the bond with interest thereon at 2 per cent. per mensem though the other instalments are not due. The plaintiff alleged that the first instalment was duly paid and the instalment of 1309 to 1311 together with interest thereon were paid and accepted although the payments were made out of time and the suit was brought for the subsequent instalments. The main defence was that the suit was barred by limitation. Held (1) that it is a general rule that where money is payable by instalments with a provision that the whole of the money will become due on default of payment of one of the instalments, the money becomes due when default is made in any of the instalments. (2) An exception has been engrafted upon the general rule in certain cases, viz., that if the right to enforce payment of the whole sum due upon the default being made in payment of an instalment has been waived by subsequent payment of the overdue instalment on the one hand receipt on the other, then the penalty having been waived, the parties are admitted to the same position as they would have been in, if no default had occurred. (3) The payment and acceptance of overdue instalments in the present case constituted a waiver and the plaintiff was entitled to recover the subsequent instalments. ———Art. 132—Instalment bond — Starting point—Option to mortgagee to sue on default of payment interest or after period fixed.

Where there is an option to the mortgagee to sue for the whole amount on default of payment of interest or to wait until the period fixed, he must sue for the whole amount when the cause of action therefor accrued first. 188 P. ———Art. 132—Instalment bond—Arrears of interest—Omission to sue, if amounts to waiver.

A mere omission to sue is not sufficient proof of waiver. A mortgage bond of 11—8—1890 provided that interest was to be payable yearly, the mortgagee being entitled to recover arrears of interest by suit and that after 10 years if the land was not redeemed, he should be entitled to recover principal and interest by suit. Only a small sum having been paid towards the interest in the early years, the mortgagee sued the mortgagor for principal and interest. Held, that inasmuch as the plaintiff had the adoption of suing every year, the suit was governed by article 132 of the Limitation Act and plaintiff could not recover interest that had become due 12 years prior to the institution of the suit. (Chevis and Shadilal, JJ.) JAHAN KHAN v. CHANDI SHAH. 122 P. W. R. 1915 : 141 P. W. R. 1916 : 29 I. C. 854 : 113 P. L. R. 1916.

———Art. 132—Instalment bond—When accrues Right of action.

A mortgage executed in favour of a widow dated 1st Nov. 1888 provided for the payment of the principal on 1st Nov. 1899 and for the annual payment of interest at 6¼ per cent. per year with a stipulation for the payment of principal and interest at 12 per cent. per annum from the date of default in payment of the interest without raising the plea of future instalment on the liability of the mortgage property. In a suit by the assignee of the widow it having been found that the widow could assign away the interest that remained due on the date of the assignment but not the principal debt, and the interest not having been paid as provided for, it was contended that the suit was barred by limitation. Held, (1) that the mortgagee was not bound to take advantage of the default clause and that the right of action did not consequently accrue until the date provided for payment of the principal arrived (2) The suit being governed by Art. 132 of Sch. I of the Lim. Act, it was not time-barred. 28 I. C. 910 Dist. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) NARNA v. AMMANIAMMA. 39 Mad. 981 : 4 L. W. 77 : 20 M. L. T. 174 : 35 I. ———Arts. 132 and 120—"Money charged on immoveable property—Suit to enforce puisne mortgage against balance of sale proceeds in the hands of prior mortgage."

Certain lands were subject to three mortgages, the first and third in favour of defendant and the second in favour of the plff. In a suit on the first mortgage, the second mortgagee was made a party but the surplus sale proceeds after satisfying the decree were withdrawn by the first mortgagee in execution of a decree obtained by him on the third mortgage without impleading the second mortgagee as a party. The second mortgagee sued on his mortgage, seeking a decree against the deft. for the amount with interest of the surplus sale proceeds withdrawn by the deft. Held, that the surplus sale proceeds represented the security which the plff. had under his mortgage and did not cease to represent that security owing to the deft. having wrongfully and in fraud of the plff withdrawn them from the Court and that the suit was governed by Art. 132 of the Lim. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 132—Money charged on immoveable property.

on the property. He acquires the rights and powers of the prior mortgagee one of which is to enforce the charge already existing subject to the law of limitation. A right to re-imbursement is a different thing from a right to subrogation. The right to re-imbursement arises on a contract express or implied, to reimburse ; and the party who claims the right enforces it in his own right and not in the right of another. Consequently the right does not arise until he has discharged the debt of another. But the right to enforce a security by virtue of subrogation is a right which equity concedes to a person who, not being primarily liable to discharge an obligation, does discharge it and it is a right to demand the performance of the original obligation, and the application thereto of all securities held by the creditor. It is a claim which is enforced in the right of the original creditor and only because the person discharging the obligation becomes clothed with the rights and powers of the original creditor. It may be that the right to enforce the security in his own name arises on the date of the assignment to the person claiming the right of subrogation. But the limitation which has already commenced to run will not cease to operate just because the creditor has assigned the security to another person. An equitable assignee stands on no better footing and can only enforce the security in the right of the creditor and therefore subject to the law of limitation that would affect the creditor. ———Art. 134—Good faith— Transferee from mortgagee—When entitled to claim — Absolute title.

If it can be shown that the transferee from a mortgagee knew that the title of his transferor was not free from doubt and such transferee took no steps whatever to clear up that doubt he can hardly claim the benefit of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act. Semble. To claim the benefit of the article the transferee must show that he neither had knowledge nor reason to believe that his transferor's title in the property transferred was not a full proprietary one. ———Art 134—Good faith — Knowledge of limited interest.

Knowledge of the limited nature of the transferor's title will not disentitle the transferee from taking advantage of Art. 134; but it will be an important piece of evidence in judging what interest the transferee intended to take, 2 C. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 134—Good faith.

———Art. 134—Good faith —Applicability of article.

Art. 134 of the Act applies only when the transferee from the mortgagee obtains the transfer with the belief that the transferor had an absolute title to make the transfer. ———Art. 134—Good faith— Purchase from mortgagee— Effect — Knowledge — Burden of proof.

A person who purchases from a mortgagee with full knowledge that the latter has only a mortgagee right cannot claim the benefit of Art. 134 even though the sale may ostensibly be one of full proprietary right. A person who purchases a right which he honestly believes to be full proprietary right and which is so described in the deed of sale can claim the benefit of the title, even though by the exercise of diligence he might have discovered that his transferor was only a mortgagee. Mere constructive notice without actual knowledge is not sufficient to deprive the purchaser of the benefit of the Article. The burden of proof is on the person who asserts that a transaction was something different from what it purports to be to substantiate that assertion. If the plffs. seek to take the case out of the Article by alleging knowledge on the part of the transferees that the vendor's title was that of a mortgagee, they must prove it as a fact. ———Art. 134—Good faith—Material question.

To determine whether art. 134 applies the question of good faith is very material. If he has not acted in good faith and has paid valuable consideration he acquires a title after the lapse of the period under Art. 134. If the transferee takes the property in good faith without notice of the trust and for consideration no occasion for applying that article arises. The transfer by a possessory mortgagee of the mortgaged property as it were his own, stands however, on a different footing. If the transferee has notice that the transferor has no higher interest than that of the mortgagee he cannot acquire a higher right than that which the transferor actually possessed within his knowledge or curtail the period of limitation provided by Art. 148. Where the transferee purchases in good faith and for a valuable consideration without notice that the transferor had no ———Arts. 134 and 144—Involuntary transfer—Execution sale of trust property for personal debts of trustee—Limitation for recovery of trust property.

The purchaser of trust property in execution of a personal decree against the trustee is clearly within the terms of the exception to S. 10 of the Lim. Act and consequently he is not prevented by reason of the fact that the property was to his knowledge trust property after the date of the decree, from relying on the provisions of the statute which limit the time within which suits must be brought for recovery. A suit to recover the trust property is governed by Art. 144 of the Lim. Act as the property has been acquired under an execution sale and possession retained throughout by the purchaser. A purchaser at an auction sale cannot get the benefit of Art. 134 of the Lim. ———Art. 134—Involuntary transfer—Redemption suit by subsequent mortgagee—Sale in execution of rent decree—Subsequent mortgagee not made party—Effect.

Art. 134 should be construed strictly and it applies only where there has been a purchase from a person who is actually the mortgagee of the property. There must be a subsisting mortgage at the time of transfer and plea of limitation should be specifically alleged. A purchaser in execution of a mortgage decree does not become a mortgagee of the property within Art. 134 A sale of part of a mortgaged property in execution of the rent decree by the first mortgagee without joining the subsequent mortgagee to the suit is altogether void. Possession under transfer.

———Art. 134—Possession under transfer—Suit by trustee to recover trust property mortgaged by predecessors and foreclosed by mortgagee—Mahomedan Law.

A suit by a succeeding trustee to recover possession of trust property, mortgaged by his predecessor and foreclosed by the mortgagee is governed by Art. 134 of the Lim. Act and is barred if brought more than 12 years from the date of the mortgage, from which time limitation began to run and not from the date when the defendant obtained possession of the property. Per Richardson, J A suit to which Art. 134 applies must be a suit to recover possession. The plaintiff must be out of possession and the defendant in possession. The transfers chiefly contemplated are apparently transfers for value in excess of the limited powers of the trustee or mortgagee. Where the transfer is effected by a registered instrument that date is the date of the instrument. To construe the date of the transfer as the date on which the transfer is followed by possession is to import into the Article words which are not there. Where the possession of the trustee is that of a mere manager under a duly constituted trust it is immaterial whether the transferee takes with or without notice of the trust. Under Art. 134 of the Act the transferee without notice and the transferee with notice are on the same footing. Where the transferor is a mere manager he is not the ostensible owner. Nor has the transferee anything corresponding to the English "legal estate" to set over against the prior equity of the beneficial owner : the legal ownership and the prior equity are generally speaking both in the beneficiary. The element of hardship in the case of a transferee without notice is minimised by the system of registration. (Richardson and Huda, JJ.) NARAIN DAS v. KAZI ABDUR RAHIM.

———Art. 134—Scope of.

The first portion of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act refers to a case where the transfer by the trustee is accompanied by delivery of possession to the transferee so as to render possible and necessary the institution of a suit for recovery of possession, for instance, in cases of sale, usufructuary mortgage, lease and exchange. It has no application to a case of simple mortgage. The second half of art. 134 of the Limitation Act provides only for a case where the deft.'s vendor purports to transfer full ownership when in fact he has only a mortgage right to transfer; it does not refer to the case of a purchaser from a mortgagee of the interest of the mortgagee as mortgagee. 21 Mad 151 foll. ———Art. 134—Scope of—Transfers from mortgagees and trustees—Difference—Notice.

A transfer by a mortgagee does not stand on the same footing as a transfer by a trustee. Where there is valuable consideration, the question of good faith is practically immaterial in the latter case on account of S. 64 of the Trusts Act. But where the transferee from a mortgagee purchases in similar circumstances, without having any notice that the transferor had any higher interest than that of mortgagee, he is protected by Art, 134 from a claim by a mortgagor. ———Arts. 134 and 148—Transfer of absolute right—Mortgagee selling absolute interest in property—Redemption.

A mortgagor's right to redeem subsists until it has been extinguished by act of parties or order of a Court. Act of parties means, act of parties to the transaction. No assertion of adverse title by a mortgagee during the currency of a mortgage can count for limitation as against the mortgagor whose right to redeem continues for a period of 60 years. Therefore if a mortgagee sells the mortgaged properties out and out to a stranger, the purchaser's possession is not adverse against the true owner, the mortgagor. A suit for redemption would lie under Art. 148. (Piggott, J.) PANNA LAL v. RAMESHAR SAHAI. 29 I. C. 403.

———Art. 134—Transfer by trustee—Delivery of possession—Simple mortgage.

The first portion of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act refers to a case where the transfer by the trustee is accompanied by delivery of poesession to the transferee so as to render possible and necessary to institution of a suit for recovery of possession, for instance, in cases of sale, usufructuary mortgage, lease and exchange. It has no application to a case of simple mortgage. The second half of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act provides only for a case where the defts'. vendor purports to transfer full ownership when in fact he has only a mortgage right to transfer ; it does not refer to the case of a purchaser from a mortgagee of the interest of the mortgagee as mortgagee 21 Mad. 151 Foll. Art. 134 of the Lim. Act does not apply to sales in execution of decree 25 M. 99 foll. (Mookerjee and Cuming, JJ.) CHARU CHANDRA PRAMANICK v. NAHUSH CHANDRA KUNDOO. 50 Cal. 49 : 1923 Cal. 1.

———Art. 134—Transfer by trustee—Suit to set aside—Limitation—Starting point.

The Art. 134 applies to a suit to recover on behalf of the trust properties alienated by a mutawalli and the time runs from the date of alienation. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) MAHAMAD KASIUDDIN v. SABHA KANTON.

———Arts. 134 and 144—Transfer by trustee—Endowed property—Alienation by mahant--Suit to set aside—Limitation.

S 10 of the Limitation Act controls Art. 134 of the Act and gives the clue to its meaning. Art. 134 refers to cases of "specific trust". Neither under the Hindu nor under the Mahomedan Law is any property conveyed to a shebait or mutwalli in the case of a dedication, nor is any property vested in him. Consequently a suit to recover property dedicated to a religious endowment but improperly alienated by him is governed by art. 144 and not by art 134 of the Lim. Act. 44 M. 831 P. C. Rel. 51 I. ———Art. 134—Transfer by trustee—Sale by mahant of property given to him in trust.

Where the property was not conveyed to the Mahant for his personal use but sold to him for the benefit of the mutt the transaction is a conveyance in trust within the meaning of the Art. 134. The head of a mutt is a trustee and not a life tenant or a corporation sole. Where the Mahant of a mutt sued to recover possession of certain lands sold by his predecessor more than twelve years after the sale the suit was barred under Art. 134. ———Art. 134—Transfer by trustee--Alienation by mahant—Suit to set aside—Limitation.

The endowments of a Hindu Mutt are not "conveyed in trust" to the head, save as to any specific property proved to have vested in him for a specific and definite object. Art. 134 does not therefore apply where the head of a Math has alienated the properties not proved to be subject to a specific trust, (Das and Bucknill, JJ.) MAHANT RAMRUP v. LAL CHAND MARWARI.

———Art. 139—Expiry of lease—Holding over—Non-payment of rent—Adverse possession by tenant.

A suit by a landlord to recover possession from a tenant is governed by Art. 139 of the Limitation Act. A tenancy by sufferance would not of itself make the possession of the holder rightful, so as to prevent limitation from running. But that proposition is subject to one important qualification, namely, that if the landlord does anything to indicate his assent to the continuance of the tenancy that would itself be sufficient to convert the tenancy by sufferance into a tenancy from year to year. The receipt of rent by the landlord is such an act and would convert the tenancy by sufferance into one from year to year. 37 Cal, 674 followed. The effect of holding over upon payment of rent to the landlord was that the tenants must be regarded as tenants form year to year and the tenancy was terminable only by six months notice expiring with the end of a year of the tenancy. The possession of one trespasser can be tacked on to that of another and a continuity of adverse possession may result thereby only when the interests of both are not different and antagonistic. Article 140 applies to the case of a person succeeding to an estate as an heir and not to cases where having succeeded he creates a life estate in favour of some other person himself and then comes in as a remainderman; Article 141 on the other hand applies only to a case of a person succeeding as a reversioner entitled to succeed on the death of a female heir who has succeeded as such and not in any other capacity. A remote reversioner suing to recover possession of property improperly alienated can do so within 12 years from the time when the right to possession accrues to him. ———Arts. 140, 142, 144 and 139—Suit by lessor against trespasser.

Article 140 governs suits against a trespasser by a lessor for the recovery of his leased-out lands, as it does not necessarily postpone limitation till it falls into possession. But the case is different when the trespasser asserts his right of tenancy only. The limitation runs against the landlord from the expiry of the lessee's tenancy if the lessor's right is complete and if no right against tenant is acquired by adverse possession under the statute by the trespasser. Art. 144 is applicable because his possession would be considered adverse against the lessor after the termination of the lease. This Article (140) also governs the suits by remainderman and reversioner against all persons including trespassers and not merely those holding a limited estate on the termination of which the remainder or reversion falls in. This Art. 140 has no application against a tenant as Art. 139 governs suits against him. (Abdur Rahim and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.) AMBALAVANA CHETTY v. SINGARAVELU ODAYAR.

It does not apply to suits by persons claiming through the female, obviously therefore it does not apply when the female holds absolutely. younger daughter died in 1908. In a suit instituted in 1918 by the grandsons of the last male owner for recovery of the property from the alienees on the ground that the alienations were not supported by legal necessity, Held, that under art. 141 of the Lim. Act, the period of limitation began to run only from the date of the death of the surviving daughter and that the suit was not barred. ——Art. 141—Starting point—Suit for possession by reversioner.

Once limitation begins to run, it does not stop except in the cases specially provided for by the Lim. Act. In 1894 plaintiff's father sued for a declaration that certain alienation by a Hindu widow were invalid but the suit was dismissed on the ground that there was a nearer reversioner one Balusamy. On the death of the widow in 1897, Balusamy sued for possession but his suit was dismissed in 1916 on the ground that his adoption was invalid and he was not a reversioner. Plaintiff sued for possession in 1919. Held, that the suit was barred by limitation. It could not be said that at any time the plaintiff's right was satisfied and that on account of the annulment of that satisfaction a fresh cause of action arose. 12 M.I. ——Arts. 141 and 134—Starting point—Surrender by widow.

A suit by a purchaser of the equity of redemption from a mortgagee to whom it has been surrendered is governed by Art. 141 and not by Art. 134 as the former cannot be considered to have "purchased mortgage property" within the meaning of the latter. Art. 134 will apply only when the purchaser acts in the bona fide belief that he is purchasing the whole estate and not merely a mortgage interest. (*Wallis, O. C. ——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner—Starting point—Onus of proof.

Art. 141, Lim. Act, is inapplicable when time has once commenced to run against the last full owner, as in such a case it continues to run and is not suspended or in any way affected by the mere circumstance that the owner is succeeded by a female entitled to a woman's qualified estate. After the statutory period has run out, all persons claiming through the owner are barred. The Article makes it clear, that the reversioner has 12 years after the death of a Hindu or Mahomedan female to establish his right as heir to the last full owner and it lies upon the party in possession to prove that he has got a better title. ——Art. 142—Dispossession—Meaning of—Discontinuance.

Art. 142 of the Lim. Act refers to dispossession or discontinuance of possession. Dispossession implies the coming in of a person and his driving out another from possession. Discontinuance of possession implies the going out of the person in possession and his being followed into possession by another. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 142—Dispossession.

——Art. 142—Dispossession—What is—Acts done on portions of property—Effect of.

There is no dispossession within the meaning of Art. 142 of the Lim. Act unless there is termination of the possession of the rightful owner followed by the actual possession of another. As long as reliable evidence of acts of ownership is forthcoming there is no difference between the proof of possession on the case of jungle or uncultivated lands and that in the case of cultivated lands. 5 C. ——Art. 142—Dispossession—Order under S. 145, Cr. P. Code.

Where a Criminal Court makes an order under S. 145, Criminal Procedure Code, and awards possession of immoveable property but that order is found to be made without jurisdiction, a suit to recover possession is governed by Art. 142 and not by Art. 47. (Mookerjee, A. C. J. and Fletcher, J.) BHARAT CHANDRA v. RAM SUNDAR ——Art. 142—Dispossession— True owner obtaining possession by force—Limitation.
60 I. C. 860.

Possession of the true owner however obtained, counts in his favour for the purpose of art. 142 of the Lim. Act, in a suit brought by him for the recovery of possession on establishment of title. (Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ.) HARI DAS v. DEBENDRA RAM BANERJEE. 45 I. C. 548.

——Art. 142—Dispossession—Meaning of.

If the legal possession remains with the true owner even though property is attached under S. 146, Cr. P. Code, the attachment does not amount to dispossession of the owner or discontinuance of his possession. Dispossession implies the coming in of a person and the driving out of another in possession. Discontinuance of possession takes place when the person in possession goes out and is followed by another who takes possession of the land. Attachment under S. 146, Cr. P. C. is not dispossession or discontinuance within the meaning of Art. 142, Limitation Act, (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY v. BHARAT CHANDRA ROY.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 142—Ejectment suit.

——Art. 142 — Dispossession—Discontinuance of possession—What constitutes.

Under Art. 142, the Court should find the starting point of dispossession or discontinuance of possession. Dispossession implies an ouster from possession followed by the possession of another person. Therefore a finding that the deft. was not in possession for twelve years before suit implies that plaintiff brought his suit within twelve years of his dispossession. 29 Cal. 518 (P.C.) foll. (Coutts and Dass, JJ.) MADAN MOHAN SINGH v. BRIJ BEHARI LAL 1 Pat. L. T. 505 : 5 Pat. L. J. 592 : 1921 Pat. 29.

——Art. 142—Dispossession—Proof of within 12 years.

When a plff. sues for possession on the allegation that while in possession he was dispossessed by the deft. he must show the time of dispossession and he must bring the suit within 12 years from that date. (Das, J.) BHIKHAN QASSAB v. MARDAN ALI.
56 I. C. 40.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Dispossession—Co-sharer—Adverse possession.

The presumption is that the possession of one tenant-in-common is the possession of the other. And though allegations of dispossession and discontinuance of possession bring the suit under Art. 142, Lim. Act, yet in the case of a suit for possession by a tenant in-common, the onus lies on the deft. tenant in-common to prove when the joint possession ceased. (*Pratt, J. C. and Hayward, A. J. In 1898, the plff.'s husband sold to her two houses by a registered document in satisfaction of her mohur (dower). In one of the houses the plff.'s husband continued to reside as before till his death in 1911. On his death the defts, having forcibly taken possession of the house, the plff. sued for possession. The Lower Courts rejected the claim first, on the ground that the document was without consideration, and secondly, that the claim was barred by time. Held, that the document being a document of advancement, no consideration was necessary. The suit was in time, for the residence by the husband from 1898 to 1911 was permissive and on behalf of the plff. and not adverse. Where defendant got possession of joint property under a mortgage decree against some of the co-parceners on a mortgage executed by them and where the co-parceners were pro forma defendants to a suit by the other co-parceners, the possession of the decree-holder is not necessarily permissive, simply because the co sharers were pro forma defendants. Possession following title.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Possession following title—Dispossession within 12 years — Vacant land.

Where the plaintiff establishes his title to the property he could rely upon the presumption that possession goes with the title. If there is no satisfactory evidence in rebuttal the presumption must be given effect to. No doubt if the suit comes under Art. 142 of the Lim. Act time begins to run from the date of the dispossession. But if the plff. alleges he is dispossessed within 12 years of the suit, then the question must arise, according to the circumstances of each case, how far the plff. has correctly fixed the date of dispossession, and how far the onus lies on the deft. to show that that date was wrong 43 I. A, 192 ; 48 I. A, 395 Rel. It is for the plaintiff, in a suit for ejectment to prove possession prior to the dispossession which he alleges. At the same time on the question of evidence the initial fact of plaintiff's title comes to his aid, with greater or less force according to the circumstances established in evidence. Where plff. purchased two open spaces of land in a court sale and was placed in possession of them and more than 12 years after the delivery of possession, sued to eject the deft, a person claiming to be a subsequent purchaser from the judgment debtor. Held that the plaintiff having established his title to the property could rely on the presumption that possession follows title in the absence of strong and clear evidence to rebut it. Possession of open sites goes naturally with the possession of the property which they adjoin. (Macleod, C. J. and Coyajee, J.) MAHAMAD SAHIB IBRAHIM SAHIB v. TILOKCHAND. 24 Bom. L. Submerged land.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Submerged land—Dispossession—Diluviated lands—Periodical submersion—Adverse possession—Lim. Act, S. 2 (4)—Independent trespassers.

The term "dispossession" though not defined in the Lim. Act is well understood. A man may cease to use his land because he cannot use it, as when it is under water. He does not thereby discontinue his possession; constructively, it continues until he is dispossessed and upon the cessation of the dispossession before the lapse of the statutory period, constructively it revives. There can be no continuance of adverse possession, when the land is not capable of use and enjoyment, so long as such adverse possession must rest on de facto use and occupation. Leigh v. Jack, 5 Ex. D. 264; 274; 29 I. A. 104 Rel. The annual cultivation of parts of diluviated lands when they emerge during a portion of the year is not a dispossession of the owner of the lands within Art. 142 for during their next submersion the true owner's possession revives. There may be circumstances to link together various portions of ground so as to make the possession of a part as it emerged, amount constructively to a possession of the whole 24 C. 256; 259, Ref. Where land is diluviated during a part of every year, there cannot be continuous adverse possession of the same under Art. 144 of the Lim. Act, as during each submersion the true owner gets into constructive possession of the land. 29 I. A. 104 applied. In order to make out a case of adverse possession for the statutory period, the defendants in the case could not tack on their possession to that of the Government who had released the reformed lands to the defts. on the grounnd they were the persons entitled to them. In such circumstances, the defendants do not derive their liability to be sued from or through the Government within S. 2 (4) of the Lim. Act. ——Arts. 142 and 144—Submerged land—Discontinuance of possession — Rights of true owner and trespasser.

Where land becomes submerged it is constructively in the possession of its lawful owner. Consequently where a trespasser has been in possession of lands which at intervals of 4 or 5 years become submerged, there is an interruption of the possession of the trespasser and a revival of the possession of the true owner during the period of submersion. Consequently the trespasser's possession is not continuous and he cannot acquire a title by advere possession. (Gokul Prasad and Sulaiman, JJ.) RAM NAIN MISIR v. DEOKI MISIR, 20 A. L. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 142—Submerged land.

——Art 142—Submerged land—Trespasser—Derelict land—Abandonment—Submersion of land temporarily by floods

The presumption of ownership which would exist in favour of the holder of a perfect title during the period the land remained derelict cannot be made for the benefit of a holder of an imperfect title. Thus a trespasser whose title is not perfected by adverse possession cannot tack on to his period of possession the period during which the land remained derelict. The requisite factor for the application of this principle is the factor of abandonment and the question is whether the land did or did not remain derelict. Such a principle cannot be applied where there has been no actual submersion of the land in the proper sense of the term and no abandonment but which has only been flooded in parts by temporary floods which interfered for short periods with the use to which it could be put. 29 Cal. 518 (P. ——Arts. 142 and 144—Submerged land—Suit for possession—Limitation.

In a suit for possession on dispossession the onus is on the plff. to prove possession in him within twelve years of the suit and he cannot shift the onus on to the deft. by showing his own possession at any period prior to twelve years before suit. But if plff. shows that his possession continued up to the time when the land was submerged his possession is presumed to continue throughout the period of submersion when the land was reformed within 12 years of the suit unless deft. too proves the contrary, 8 Cal. 744 foll. ——Art. 142—Submerged land—Suit for possession—Limitation.

It lies on the plffs. to prove possession and dispossession within 12 years suit but possession is not the same thing as actual user. The true rule is that where land has been shown to have been in a condition unfitting it for actual enjoyment in the usual modes at that such a time and under such a circumstance that state naturally would and probably did continue within 12 years before the suit, it may properly be presumed that it did so continue and that the plff.'s possession continued also, until the contrary is shown. 9 Cal. 744 foll. Waste Land.

——Art. 142—Waste lands—Onus of proof in suits for possession—Case of jungle lands and diluviated lands—Principles applicable to.

In a case where plaintiff sues for possession, alleging dispossession by the defendant the onus is on him to prove his possession and the factum of dispossession within twelve years of suit. Even if he proves title there is no onus on the defendant to show that plaintiff has lost his title by adverse possession. Case-law fully considered. Possession is not necessarily the same thing as user. The nature of possession to be looked for and the evidence of its continuance must depend on the character and condition of the land in dispute. Where the land is incapable of actual enjoyment, as in the case of diluvion by a river, if the plaintiff shows his possession down to the time of the diluvion, his possession is presumed to continue so long as the lands continue to be submerged. In cases where the land is not incapable of enjoyment, but may produce some profit, though trifling in amount and only of occasional occurrence as is often the case with jungle land, it would be unreasonable to look for the same evidence of possession as in the case of a house or cultivated field. All that can be required is that pltf. should show such acts of ownership as are natural under the existing conditions of the land and in such cases his possession is presumed to continue so long as the state of the land remains unchanged unless he is shown to have been dispossessed. In waste and jungle lands possession may be exercised by grazing of cattle, putting up boundary marks, fences, etc. They form no exception to the general rule that plaintiff must prove possession and dispossession within 12 years. In such a case, where plff. proves title, there is a presumption in his favour where having regard to the nature of the land, possession cannot be expected to be proved by actual acts of user and enjoyment. But in such a case where plff. comes to court alleging an exercise by him of acts of ownership which he fails to prove, he cannot be allowed to turn round and rely on a presumption arising from title. For that would apply only to cases where from the nature of the land no definite acts of possession are possible. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) RAKHAL CHANDRA GHOSE v DURGADAS SAMANTA. 26 C. W. In order to extinguish the right of the real owner the adverse possession must be continuous. Acts of possession exercised at intervals over different portions of land in different years cannot amount to adverse possession. ——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Limited interest—Rent free tenure—Adverse possession.

Where in a suit for assessment of rent the plaint proceeds on the assumption that there was no relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties and the evidence also shows that the defts were in possession not as tenants but wrongfully and without any right, and the defts. have been in possession for more than 12 years on their own account to the knowledge of the plff. though they claim no more than a rent-free title, the suit is barred by limitation (*Jenkins, C. —— Art. 144 and S. 3—Acquisition of title—Limited interest.

The words "possession of the deft." do not by reference to the definition in S. 3 include the possession of a co deft. still in possession under a different title. The adverse possession of a deft. must be of the same nature as that sought by the plff. Thus possession as permanent lessee is not adverse as against proprietor in a suit by proprietor. ———Arts. 144 and 141—Applicability—Suit for possession of taluka—Oudh—Evidence Act, S. 116—Oudh Estates Act (1809), S. 22 Succession.

At the time of annexation of Oudh a Thakur held a Taluka on whom it was settled at the first summary settlement. He died issueless in 1857 and his widow who belonged to Ammithia Thakur family, took possession and continued it till the Lord Canning's Proclamation in 1858. Second summary settlement was made with her wherein she was described as the widow of the Thakur. Subsequently she declared that she had no intention to give possession to Ammithia Thakurs. In 1859, the letter of the Governor-General was published by which she got a sanad of primogeniture and her name was entered in lists one and two. After her death in 1893 a collateral of her deceased husband took possession of the Taluka. But her brother's grandson, one R, sued the collateral for possession of the Taluka and got a decree in 1900 and in 1911 brought a suit in ejectment against the present plff. who was in possession of one of the villages and who set up under proprietary title on the ground that his predecessors were in adverse possession for many years on payment of revenue and cesses. The plff. was proved to be not an under-proprietor and thus R got the decree. The plff, in 1913 sued R. claiming to be the nearest male heir of the Thakur and thus entitled to possession in preference to R. R based his title under S. 22 (6), Oudh Estate's Act, pleaded limitation and also res judicata Held, under S. 22, Oudh Estate's Act, R was the righful heir of the widow and that the case was governed by Art 144 and not Art. 141 of the Lim. Act, but as the plff. was entitled to succeed not as the heir of the widow but of her husband, Art 141 applied and the suit was barred. (*Lindsay, J. C. and Stuart, A. J. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 144—Immoveable property.

A suit for possession and mesne profits with the declaration that an entry in the Record of Rights is correct is governed by the 12 years' limitation. (Das, J.) TAFAZUL KHAN v. MOHAMMAD BAKSHI KHAN. 52 I. C. 361.

Immoveable Property.

———Art. 144—Immoveable property—Right to cess.

The uninterrupted enjoyment of right to levy summary cess for more than twelve years renders the right unimpeachable. After that period, any claim to resist the levy of summary cess as illegal both in its origin and its continuance, is incontrovertibly time-barred. The right to levy a cess is immoveable property within the Act. (Beaman and Hayward, JJ.) MAHASHANKAR v. MAHASHANKAR. 36 Bom. 174 : 12 I. C. 716 : 13 Bom. L. R. 1047.

———Art. 144—Immoveable property—Fishery.

Fishery right in another's waters is not immoveable property but an interest in immoveable property under Art. 144 of the Lim. Act (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) LOKENATH v. JAHANIA. 12 I. C. 305 : 14 C. L. J. 572.

———Art. 144—Immoveable property—Interest in parjot, charai and charsai dues.

The rights to parjot, charai and charsai dues should, for purposes of limitation, be deemed to be an interest in immoveable property. (Lindsay, J. C.) SHEORAJ SINGH v. DEBI BAKHSH SINGH. 46 I. C. 439 : 22 O. C. 119.

———Art. 144—Immoveable property—Right of fishery—Nature of—Acquisition—Limitation.

A right of fishery of whatever nature is not strictly an easement. It is either an interest in immoveable property or a profit a prendre which may be either in gross or appurtenant to a dominant tenement. The question of acquisition of such rights must be determined by reference to the nature of the right claimed and proved to have been exercised. If it is a mere right to fish not excluding the lawful owner it would appear to be an easement within the description of the word in the Limitation Act and can be acquired by 20 years' uninterrupted enjoyment. If it is an exclusive right of fishery it is an interest in immoveable property and can be acquired by 12 years' adverse possession involving an ouster of the rightful owner. Such a right contains all the essential elements of property and even if it may properly be described as a profit a prendre, it has also the distinctive features of an interest in immoveable property. Even if S. 26 of the Limitation Act applies, it would not bar the operation of Art. 144 and S. 28 if the right came under both descriptions. (Miller, C. J. and Mullick, J.) MESSRS. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 144—Possessory title.

The rule that possession of one co-owner is the possession of all does not apply where there is nothing to show that the property possessed was ever the common property of them all. Held, that plaintiff had failed to show that he continued to be a co-sharer at the date of suit. ——Arts 144—Partition suit— Zamindari Estate—Adverse possession—Art. 127 does not apply.

The possession of the Zamindari Estate by the daughter from the date of her succession, is exclusive and adverse to the claims of the other branches, within the meaning of Art. 144 of the Act and consequently a suit for partition of the estate is governed by Art. 144. Art. 127 has no application to such a case. (Wallis, C. J. and Sadasiva Aiyar, J.) KEESARA VENKATAPPAIYYA v. NAYANI VENKATARANGA RAO. 43 Mad. 288 : 59 I. C. 978 : 38 M. L. J. 149.

——Art. 144—Partition suit — Tenants-in common.

Art. 144 applies to a suit for partition between tenants-in-common although a tenant has acquired his rights by a purchase at court auction. In such a suit, there can be no question of adverse possession because the possession of one co-tenant is the possession of all persons entitled as tenants-in-common. (*Wallis, C. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 144—Proof of title.

Proof of title.

Adverse possession in order to bar by limitation a suit for the possession of land must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent so as to show that it is possession adverse to the competitor. When a person establishes his title to land and proves that he has been exercising during the currency of his title various acts, of possession, then the quality of those acts even though they might have failed to constitute adverse possession against another, may be abundantly sufficient to destroy that adequacy and interrupt that exclusiveness and continuity which is required from any person challenging by possession the rightful title. ——Art. 144—Proof of title—Onus on defl. to prove adverse possession.

In cases coming within Art. 144 of the Lim. Act, if the plaintiff has succeeded in proving a clear title, the burden lies on the defendant to prove adverse possession for the statutory period, and possession to be adverse must have all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness. 41 A. 669 ; 6 Pat. ——Art. 144—Proof of title—Adverse possession.

Proof of identity together with the absence of evidence by the defendant does not establish a title to property, when the plff. claiming it was absent for 40 years. He must let in strong and cogent evidence to satisfy the court as to his title. (Fletcher and Cuming, JJ.) ABDUL SOVAN v. LAKSHMI PRASAD AGARWALA. 50 I. C. 870.

——Art. 144—Proof of title—Onus—Suit for possession.

In cases under Art. 144 of the Lim. Act it is not incumbent on the plff. to establish possession within 12 years of suit. He has to prove title and it then rests on the defendants to show that he and those under whom he claims have been in possession for over 12 years before suit. (*Prideaux, A.J. ——Art. 144—Proof of title—Evidence on both sides valueless.

Per Curiam (Jwala Prasad, J. dissenting) :—Where in an ejectment suit, the possession as to evidence on both sides is valueless, the plff. is deemed to have failed to satisfy the burden of proving his possession within that period by merely proving his title and possession at some antecedent period. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art 144—Reversioner.

On the failure of an owner to pay the Government assessment, his estate or interest in the land is forfeited or rather determined, and under a sale for arrears of revenue what is sold is not the interest of the defaulting owner but the interest of the Crown, subject to the payment of the Government assessment, and therefore the time limited by the Limitation Act only commences to run from the date of the sale. Delivery of symbolical possession does not in any way affect the possession of, or give start to a fresh period of limitation against persons who are not parties to a suit or execution proceedings. This rule is applicable to the case of purchasers at sales for arrears of revenue. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) JOBEDA KHATUN v. TULSI CHARAN DAS.

——Arts. 144 and 127—Starting point—Sale of joint family properties—Stranger purchaser taking possession — Suit to recover property—Knowledge.

The plaintiff's undivided uncle and another uncle's son sold in 1898 certain properties of the joint family to the first defendant. Some of the properties sold were leased to the vendors, but in 1901 they relinquished the same. In 1902 some of the lands sold were in the cultivation of the vendors. After 1902 the properties were always in the possession of the purchaser, the first defendant. In a suit by the plaintiff to recover possession of the properties from the first defendant, held, that the suit was governed by Art, 144 of the Lim. Act and not by Art. 127 and adverse possession commenced to run at least from the year 1902, when the vendors ceased to cultivate the properties they had alienated. Under Art. 144 it is not necessary for the defendants to prove the exact date, when the plaintiff became aware that he had been excluded from a right to share in the joint family properties. 23 B. 137, 37 B. 84 foll; 25 I. ——Art. 144—Starting point—Adverse possession—Alienation by Mahant—Position as regards properties vested in idol and Mahant—Distinction.

Where property is in a juridical person and such property is transferred by a person who is only representative and manager of that juridical person then there is adverse possession to the right to the juridical person from the date of the alienation. The act of alienation in such a case is a direct challenge upon the title of the idol. But where the title is in the Mahant or shebait the act of alienation is not a challenge upon the title of the idol, though the property may be endowed property in the sense that its income has to be appropriated to the purposes of the endowment, and there is no adverse possession so long as the person making the alienation is alive, and possession becomes adverse only when a new title has come into existence capable of maintaining the suit and which has not approved of or acquiesced in the alienation. The possession of the zemindar may become adverse to the patnidar in a variety of ways, e. g., when the lands are settled by the zemindar with tenants or when the patnidar after being invited to give and take the land does nothing and the zemindar thereafter makes other arrangements either for holding the lands in khas or for settling the same with ijardars or the like. ——— Arts. 145 and 49—Deposit—Suit for recovery—Limitation—Death of depositary.

Art. 145 is a special article applicable where the depositor seeks to recover from the depositary moveable property deposited and time runs from the date of the deposit. Art. 49 is on the other hand a general article for the recovery of specific moveable property or for compensation for wrongly detaining the same and time runs from the date when the property is wrongfully taken or when the detainer's possession becomes unlawful. All actions for the recovery of a deposit of moveable property are comprised within Art. 145 and no exception is made where demand and refusal make the continuance of possession unlawful. The fact of possession by the depositor, after demand being wrongful does not make art 49 applicable. Where the original depositor dies and the subject matter of the deposit goes into the hands of his heir, the latter remains an involuntary bailee thereof and a suit for recovery of the deposit would still be governed by art. 145 of the Lim. ——Art. 146—Mortgage of oil-well—Further advance.

A mortgage of an oil-well was executed in 1875, while in 1879 the mortgagor received a further advance and executed a document to evidence the same. The nature of the second transaction was in dispute, the mortgagor contending that it was a further charge and the mortgagee that it was a sale. A suit for redemption of the mortgage was brought in 1908. Held that if the transaction amounted to a sale, the vendee was in adverse possession for over twelve years and that if it was a mortgage the right to redeem accrued more than 30 years before suit and that in either case, the suit was barred. (Lord Moulton.) NGA LU GALE v. NGA PO THAN.

——Art. 148—Mortgagor getting a redemption decree but not executing it—Mortgage by the mortgagee as owner—Sale in execution thereof—Effect on the mortgagor.

In 1861 the mortgagor usufructuarily mortgaged the property to the mortgagee and sued for redemption which was decreed upon payment of a certain amount but the mortgagee remained in possession as the property was not actually redeemed. In 1889 the mortgagee mortgaged it describing himself as absolute owner and the property was sold in execution of a decree on the latter mortgage and purchased by the decree-holder who sold it to the deft in 1904. In 1915 the heirs of the original mortgagor sued for redemption of the mortgage of 1861, held, that Art. 144 and not Art. 148 or Art. 134 was applicable. Art. 148 is intended to protect the interest of the mortgagor against the mortgagee in possession or the person who holds the interest as a mortgagee including the heirs or assigns as such. It applies only for redemption suits instituted against mortgagees or persons claiming under them and does not apply to suits against strangers. (*Mears, C. ——Arts. 148 and 105—Suit for surplus profits from usufructuary mortgage—C. P. Code, O. 34, Rr. 7 and 9.

A claim of a mortgagor for recovery of overpayment or the surplus profits received by the mortgagee is a relief included in a suit for redemption governed by Art. 148 of the Lim. Act. But such a suit would be governed by Art. 105 of the Act where mortgagee gave up possession after the mortgage debt had been satisfied and the mortgagor entered into possession otherwise than by means of a suit for redemption. ——Art 148—Applicability of—Suit to redeem a charge under S. 95, T. P. Act.

Art. 148 of the Limitation Act is inapplicable to a suit for redemption of a charge in favour of a co-mortgagor who has redeemed the whole mortgage and has thus obtained a charge under S 95, T. P. Act, on the share of other co-mortgagors. Such a suit brought more than 12 years after the creation of the charge is barred by time, under Art. 144 of the Lim. Act. (Richardson and Walmsley, JJ.) PURNA CHANDRA PAL v. BARADA PRASUNNA BHATTACHARJEE. 46 Cal. 111 : 45 I. C. 783 : 22 C. W. N. 637.

——Arts. 148 and 144—Co-mortgagors—Redemption by one—Suit for possession by the others—Limitation.

A co-mortgagor redeeming the whole mortgage does not become a mortgagee of the portion redeemed belonging to other co-owners, but becomes merely a charge holder, and art. 148 of the Lim. Act refers only to a suit against a mortgagee and has no application to a suit against a charge holder. The rule that ordinarily one co-sharer cannot hold adversely against another co-sharer proceeds upon a rebuttable presumption that the co-sharer in exclusive possession is holding on behalf of the other co-sharers. This presumption is rebutted when it is shown that the co-sharer in possession denies the right of the other co-sharers to enter into joint possession until they have paid to him their share of a charge upon the property which he has detrayed. (Campbell, J.) WAZIR v. GIRDHARI. 1923 Lah. 311.

——Art. 148—Starting point—Lakha Mukhi—Usufructuary mortgage.

The starting point for limitation in respect of a suit for redemption of a lakha mukhi mortgage is the same as in the case of an ordinary usufructuary mortgage and the suit is governed by Art. 148 of the Lim. Act. (Petman, J.) KHANDU LAL v. FAZAL. 51 I. C. 956 : 1 Lah. 21.

——Arts. 148 and 144—Accessions to mortgaged property—Suit for.

Upon redemption a mortgagor is entitled to take over the accessions to the mortgaged property on payment of the cost of the acquisition and a suit for possession of the accession is not one for redemption governed by Art. 148, but is one governed by Art. 144. (Chevis, J.) KHUDADAD KHAN v. GIRDHARI RAM.
42 I. C. 468 : 163 P. W. R. 1917.

——Art. 148—Mortgage—Period of redemption—Applicability to trespasser.

The period of 60 years fixed for redemption applies only to cases for the recovery of possession from a mortgagee but not from a person coming into possession of the mortgaged property as a trespasser. ——Arts. 148 and 144—Mortgage—Redemption by alienee from co-mortgagor—Suit by others—Limitation.

A co-owner redeeming the whole of the mortgage is not a mortgagee but a mere charge-holder and a suit by the other co-owners for possession on payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage-money is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 148. ——Arts. 148 and 134—Transfer by mortgagee—Reconveyance—Redemption.

Where a mortgagee transfers the property as proprietor and subsequently gets possession of the property before his transferee acquired a title by 12 years, the mortgage is subject to redemption within the period given by Art. 148. ——Art. 148—Redemption suit—Limitation—Onus.

The burden of proof in redemption suits, is on the plff primarily to show that he has on the date of suit, a subsisting right of redemption. The burden is not discharged by showing that the mortgage subsisted upto within 12 years before suit. (Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.) DIDAR HUSAIN v. GAYAPRASAD. 42 I. C. 119 : 4 O. L. J. 494.

——Art. 148—Mortgage—Redemption.

A transfer made in the year 1830-1831 was interpreted to be a mortgage with possession in 1858 1859 and in 1868 the parties got themselves recorded in the Revenue papers as mortgagor and mortgagee according to their desire. Held, a suit for redemption in 1914 was barred. ——Arts. 148 and 144—Scope — Suit by one mortgagor against co-mortgagor for possession—Article does not apply—Record of rights—Evidentiary value.

Art. 148 provides for a suit against a mortgagee to redeem or to recover possession of immoveable property mortgaged. But a suit by a mortgagor against a co-mortgagor to recover possession of his share of the mortgaged property is not a suit for redemption nor a suit for possession of immoveable property mortgaged. This suit must be governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 148. The possession of the defendants co-mortgagors, as alienors does not, in any way, contradict the ulterior proprietary right of the plaintiffs mortgagors. It must be established that the defendants have been in possession for twelve years on an assertion of a hostile title to the knowledge of the plaintiffs. The entry in record of rights would not operate to the prejudice of the plaintiffs even if it has recorded the exclusive title of the defendants, unless it has been established that the plaintiffs had knowledge of the entry more than twelve years before suit. Limitation under Art. 158 of Sch. I to the Act, for objections to an award begins from the date of notice of filing of the award and not from the date of filing of the award. (Tudball, J.) SHEO BAKSH v. SRI RAM. 63 I. C. 399 : 19 A. L. J. 404.

——Art. 158—"Court", Meaning of—Calcutta High Court Rules.

The word "Court" in Art 158 of the Lim. Act means the court and not its chief ministerial officer e.g., the Registrar in the case of a High Court. "Submission" means submission to the court and not to the Registrar, Rule 1 of Ch. 23 of Hechle's Rules is not in conformity with sch. II, para. 10, C.P.C. (Sanderson, C.J. and Woodroffe, J.) SOVA CHAND BHUTORIA v. HURRY BUX DEORA. 46 Cal. 721 : 63 I. C. 46 : 23 C. W. N. 280.

——Art. 158—"Submission of the award to the Court"—What is not.

The presenting of an award without the knowledge of the parties before the date fixed for its filing is not submission of the award to the Court for the ten days-time allowed for filing objection to begin to run. 28 I. C. 427. (Johnstone, C. J.) JAWAHIR SINGH v. MEHR SINGH. 34 I. C. 250 : 14 P. W. R. 1916.

——Art. 158—Objection ten days after award—Notice.

Under Art. 158 of the Lim. Act the period of ten days is to be counted from the date when the award has been submitted to Court, even though no notice has been given thereto. 124 P. R. 1880, Diss. (Shah Din, J.) SAHIB RAI v. CHAIT RAM. 96 P. L. R. 1915 : 28 I. C. 427 : 30 P. W. R. 1915.

——Art. 158—Award—Objections—Time.

It is not necessary to allow ten days for objections, where an award has been accepted by the parties. (Scott-Smith, J.) SOHAMARI BAI v. CHATTARAM. 27 P. W. R. 1914 : 23 I. C. 591 : 69 P. L. R 1914.

——Art. 158—Decree not to be passed before 10 days—Award—Decree passed on—No time for objections—Effect of.

A court has no jurisdiction to pass a decree in terms of the award within the 10 days allowed by Art. 158 of the Limitation Act for filing objections to the award. 9 M. L. T. 391 and (1912) M. W. N. 32 foll. The mere fact that the parties agree to be bound by the award and not to object thereto does not prevent them from impeaching the award on the ground of fraud and collusion, (Odgers, J.) T. L. RUNGIAH CHETTY v. T. GOVINDASAMI CHETTY. 15 L. W. 160 : 1921 M. W. N. 793 : 45 M. 466 : 1922 Mad 179.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 158.

——Art. 158—Application to set aside award.

There is no limitation for making an application to remit an award for re-consideration of the arbitrators owing to an illegality apparent on the face of it. The period of ten days is not applicable to proceedings under para. 12 or 14 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code. (Spencer, J.) MAMIDDI APAYA v. YEDAN VENKATASWAMI. 24 M. L. T. 102 : (1918) M. W. N. 477 : 47 I. C. 597 : 8 L. W. 171.

——Art. 158—Time how reckoned—Notice of submission of award.

The period of 10 days is to be computed from the day in which the parties receive notice of the submission of the award and not from the day on which it is actually received. (Prideaux, O. A. J. C.) SITARAM v. RUPRAM. 42 I. C. 266 : 13 N. L. R. 172.

——Art. 158—Objections to award—Amendment.

A court has discretion to allow an additional ground of objection to the award beyond time, by way of amendment of the objections filed within time or to entertain it of its own motion if the objection would render the award invalid. (Lindsay and Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. Cs.) BHAGWAN DIN SINGH v. FAKIR SINGH. 20 I. C. 773 : 16 O. C. 233.

——Art. 158—Application to make the award a rule of Court—Written statement by deft.

Art. 158 cannot possibly apply to a written statement by the deft. in an application to have an award made a rule of Court. (Lindsay and Rafique, A. J. Cs.) BADRUDDIN HASAN v. AMIR BEGAM 13 I. C. 520 : 14 O. C. 308.

——Art. 158—Limitation—When commences.

An application to set aside an award must be made within 10 days of the filing of the award and notice of such filing given to the parties. (Po. Han, J.) SHEIKH ABDULLA v. M. V. R. S. FIRM. 2 Bur. L. J. 229 : 1924 R. 153.

——Art. 158—Application to set aside award—Limitation—Starting point.

The limitation prescribed by Art. 158 for an application to set aside an award commences to run from the date of submission of the award to the Court and not from date of service of the notice. (Crouch and Boyd, A. J. Cs.) KALIANBARTHI v. ROCHANBAI. 27 I. C. 371 : 8 S. L. R. 190.

——Art. 158—Setting aside award—Time when begins to run.

For an application to set aside an award, time begins to run from the date when the award is submitted to the Court, not from the date when notice is given to the party of the submission of award. (1897) Sindh S. C. R. 1 Overruled : 29 C. 167, foll. (Fawcett, A. J. C.) MANSOOR v. MINSAHEBDIN. 13 I. C. 234 : 5 S. L. R. 125.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 160.

——Art. 160—Review Petition—Illness, if sufficient ground.

Where the absence of all the applicants or their counsel is not explained satisfactorily, though one applicant may be ill, no sufficient cause is made out for restoration of a dismissed application for review. (Rattigan, J.) KALU v. SOWARIA. 16 P. W. R. 1915 : 27 I. C. 703 : 68 P. L. R. 1915.

——Art. 161—Small Cause Court—Review—Deposit.

An application for review of judgment of a Small Cause Court was made on the last day of the period prescribed for limitation but without deposit of the amount of the costs or security for the same as required by S. 17. On the following day the Court allowed the applicant time for making the deposit which was eventually made and the application for review was granted. Held, that the application failed to comply with S. 17 and was barred under Art. 161, Lim. Act. It was doubtful whether S 5, Lim. Act applied to the case at all as the application was made within time. (Saunderson, C. J. and Walmsley, J.) ABDUL SHEIK v. MAHOMED AYUB. 24 C. W. N. 380 : 56 I. C. 551 : 31 C. L. J 197.

——Arts. 162, 164, 168 and 169—Ex parte—Application to set aside—Limitation.

If a plaintiff or appellant seeks to set aside an Ex-parte order, limitation runs only from date of the order but if a defendant or respondent seeks such relief he can, in cases where he has not had due notice, count limitation from the date of his knowledge of the order. The benefit which the law allows only to a defendant or respondent cannot be allowed to an appellant. (Chevis, C.J. and Le Rossignol, J.) BISSA MAL v. KESAR SINGH. 1 Lah. 363: 58 I C. 789 : 2 Lah. L. J. 249.

——Art. 162—Application—Limitation—Starting point.

Where notice has not been served on the applicant limitation for an application for rehearing the appeal dates from the time when applicant has knowledge of the decree. (Chevis, J.) DAULAT RAI v. JAGAT RAM. 47 I. C. 962 : 96 P. R. 1918.

——Art. 163—Provision mandatory.

Art. 163, Lim. Act is intended to be strictly followed and the Court has no discretion to enlarge the period of 30 days therein prescribed. (Broadway, J.) BANO MAL v. BANO MAL. 27 P. W. R. 1920 : 55 I. C. 55 : 116 P. L. R. 1920.

——Arts. 163, 181 and 182—Execution by Collector—Application to send papers back.

An application to send the papers back to the collector when returned by him for some reason is governed by Art 181 or 182 of the Act according as it may be for the continuance of the previous application or for taking a step-in-aid of execution, and not by Art. 163. (Kanhaiya Lal A. J. C.) LAL BASANT SINGH v. LAL, SRIPAT SINGH. 55 I. C. 485 : 18 A. L. J. 235.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 164.

——Art. 163—Dismissal for default—Application by representative of deceased plff.—Limitation.

An application for restoration of a suit dismissed for default, by the representative of the deceased plff. more than 30 days after the dismissal is time-barred. (Lindsay and Rafique, A. J. Cs.) HABIB SHAB v. DEBI BAX SINGH. 14 I. C 221.

——Art. 164—Application to set aside ex parte decree passed when Act of 1877 in force—Law applicable.

A decree was passed when the Lim. Act of 1877 was in force, but a process for execution was issued for the first time under the Act of 1908. On an application by the judgment-debtor to have the decree set aside. Held, that the limitation to be applied was that under the law existing at the time when the application was made. 12 Bom. L. R. 730 Ref. (Chamier and Piggott, JJ.) JIA BIBI v. ILAHI BAKSH. 37 All. 597 . 30 I. C. 573 : 13 A. L. J. 837.

——Art. 164—Knowledge of decree—What constitutes.

The words of Art. 164 of the Lim. Act mean something more than mere knowledge that a decree had been passed in some suit, in some court against the applicant. The applicant must have knowledge not merely that a decree has been passed by some court against him, but that a particular decree has been passed against him in a particular court in favour of a particular person for a particular sum. (Shah, A. C. J. and Crump, J.) BAPU RAO SAKHARAM v. SADHU BHIVA. 47 Bom. 485 : 25 Bom. L. R. 74 : 1923 Bom. 193.

——Art. 164—Applicability.

The limitations laid down in Art. 164 applies to the case of a defendant only. (Imam and Chapman, JJ.) ABHOY CHARAN BASAK v. SAROJA SUNDARI BASAK. 24 I. C. 27 : 41 Cal. 819.

——Art. 164—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside.

If the right of a deft. to make an application to set aside an ex parte decree was lost under Art. 164, Lim. Act (1877) before the passing of the Act of 1908, the provisions of Art 164 of the Lim. Act of 1908 cannot revive the right having regard to S. 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897. (Brett and Carnduff, JJ.) NEHAL CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY v. NERODA SUNDARI GHOSE. 15 I. C 551 : 39 Cal. 506.

——Art. 164—'Knowledge', Meaning of.

'Knowledge' in Art. 164 means certain and clear conception of a fact, i. e. of the decree in the particular case and not of a decree. 11 Bom. L.R. 1296, Foll. So we cannot attribute the knowledge of the petitioner's brothers to him when he lives far away from them. (Mookerjee and Teunon, JJ.) KUMUD NATH v. JATINDRA NATH. 38 Cal. 394 : 13 C. L. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 164.

——Art. 164—Extensions.

Time cannot be extended under S. 151, C. P. C. or Lim. Act, S. 5. (Chevis, J.) KHAIRATI v. UMAR DIN. 1922 Lah. 266.

——Art. 164—Summons not duly served.

Where summons is once served, absence of notice of adjourned hearing will not attract the application of Art. 164. (Chevis, J.) LAL DEVI v. AMAR NATH. 57 I. C. 15 : 2 U. P. L. R. (L) 128.

——Art. 164—Starting point—Knowledge of decree.

Where a person falsely took out substituted service upon allegations which were false, and based on that an ex parte decree was passed, an application to set the latter aside made within 30 days of the defendant's knowledge of the decree was within time. Notice in such a case could not be said to be "duly served." (Chevis, J.) RAM KISHEN v. MULA. 1924 L. 191.

——Art. 164—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Subsequent application—Continuation.

The mere fact that the original application to set aside an Ex parte decree which was made in time was consigned to the record room did not in any way necessitate a fresh application. A subsequent application must be considered as merely in continuance of the suspended original application. Consequently no question of limitation arose in the case. (Shadi Lal and Wilberforce, JJ.) BARKAT ULLAH v. FAZAL MAULA. 55 I. C. 824.

——Art. 164—Ex parte order—Order for payment under S. 150 of the Companies Act.

The limitation applicable for setting aside an ex parte decree under Sec. 150 of the Companies Act of 1882 is that provided by Article 164. (Scott Smith and Wilberforce, JJ.) HINDUSTAN BANK, LTD. v. MIHARAJ DIN. 1 Lah. 187 : 55 I. C. 820 : 2 Lah. L. J. 291.

——Art. 164—Knowledge—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Onus of proof

In an application to set aside an ex parte decree the burden of proving want of knowledge of the decree within thirty days of the application is on the applicant. (Wilberforce, J.) SUGHRU MAL HARCHARAN DAS v. SHAM LAL GOKAL CHAND. 46 I. C. 777 : 146 P. W. R. 1918.

——Art. 164—Ex parte decree—Setting aside—Commencement of period.

An application to set aside an ex parte decree made within thirty days from the time the defts. were informed of its passing, is not barred though it was made more than thirty days from the passing of the decree. (Scott-Smith, J.) RAGHBIR v. DAULAT RAM. 111 P. L. R. 1916 : 36 I. C. 32 : 137 P. W. R. 1916.

——Art. 164 and S. 3— Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Limitation.

Art. 164 applies to an application to set aside an ex parte decree made, after that Act came into force, the decree being passed before the Act came into force ; S. 3 clearly lays down a rule to that effect. (Johnstone, J.) ZAIBUL NISSA v. GHULAM FATIMA. 70 P. L. R. 1911 : 10 I. C. 823 : 265 P. W. R. 1911.

——Art. 164—Ex parte order—Order in execution.

Art. 164 applies not only to decrees but to orders in execution which are decrees in C. P. C. (Ayling and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) SUBBIAH NAICKER v. RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR. 37 Mad. 462 : 26 M. L. J. 189 : (1914) M. W. N. 205 : 22 I. C. 899 : 1 L. W. 251.

——Art. 164—Setting aside ex parte decree—Executor of deceased defendant not brought on record—Limitation.

An application on 30th September 1912 for setting aside an ex parte decree passed on 28th August 1912 by the executor of a deceased defendant is barred by Art. 164. The word "defendant" is wide enough to include the executor of the original defendant (since deceased) though not on record. (Waite, C. J. and Oldfield, J.) S. VENCATASUBBIER v. KRISHNAMURTHI. 38 Mad. 442 : 14 M. L. T. 396 : 21 I. C. 568 : (1913) M. W. N. 899.

——Art. 164 — Knowledge — Defl. alleging service of summons but no knowledge decree.

Art. 164 applies only when the defl. has knowledge of the decree where summons was not duly served but not to a case where the defl. alleges service of summons but that he had no knowledge of any of the proceedings. (Benson, J.) SANKARA AIYAR v. SUBBIAH AIYAR. 13 I. C. 642 : (1912) M. W. N. 361.

——Art. 164—C. P. Code, O. 9, R. 13—Substituted service.

The matter of the time at which defendant first had knowledge of the decree only becomes relevant after he has proved that substituted service ought not to have been ordered or was not duly carried. Unless he can do one of these things his application is barred by time. The notice of the application for final decree being as effectual as if it had been served on him personally, the limitation for his application to set aside the ex-parte decree runs from the date of the decree. (Batten, J. C. and Hallifax, A. J. C.) PANJAB RAO v. BALLIRAM. 1923 Nag. 13.

——Art. 164—Ex parte decree—Notice—Executing a process of enforcing judgment.

Attachment of money belonging to the judgment-debtor in the hands of the decree holder is an execution of a process for enforcing judgment (Stuart, J. C.) RAGAB ALI SHAH v. UPPER INDIA COPPER (PAPER) MILLS CO., LTD. 17 I. C. 420 : 15 O. C. 289.

——Art. 164—Application to set aside ex-parte decree.

No appeal lies against refusal of an application to set aside an ex parte decree. No inherent power to extend time prescribed by art 164 is granted to a court. (Coutts and Ross, JJ.) AJODHYA MAHTON v. MT. PHUL KUER. 1 P. 277 : 1923 Pat. 61 : 1923 P. 479.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 164.

——Art. 164—"Duly Served"—Meaning of—C. P. Code, O 5, R. 19.

The words 'duly served "in Art. 164 of the Lim. Act are used in the same sense as in O. 5, R. 19 of the C P Code and means "served" in such a manner as to give the deft. information of the proceedings taken against him. (Pratt, J, C. and Hayward, A. J C.) KESARCHAND KESHEWJI v. LAKHAMSI RAISI, 42 I. C. 611 : 11 S. L. R. 71.

——Art. 164—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Summons not served.

A defendant who has been duly served cannot get an ex parte decree set aside unless he can show that he was prevented unavoidably from appearing at the hearing and Art. 164 is a bar if he does not seek to set it aside within 30 days after the decree. Duly 'served' in Art. 164 cannot be construed to exclude a case where a summons was not served in sufficient time. (Crouch, A. J. C.) KASARCHAND KESHAVJI v. LAKSHAMSI RAISI. 27 I. C. 351 : 8 S. L. R. 163.

——Arts. 165 and 181—Excessive execution—Restoration.

An application by the judgment-debtor for restoration of property seized in excess of his decree by the decree-holder can be made within 3 years of the date of seizure as Art. 181 of the Lim. Act, governs the case. Art. 165 which prescribes 30 days is not applicable, (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) ABDUL KARIM v. ISLAMUNNISSA BIBI. 38 All. 339 : 34 I. C. 231 : 14 A. L. J 401.

——Arts. 165 and 181—Execution of decree.

An application by judgment-debtor for redelivery of property not covered by decree alleged to have been delivered is governed by Limitation Act Art 181 and not Art. 165. (Macleod and Shah, JJ.) RASUL MALIK v. AMINA HANIF. 24 Bom, L. R. 771 : 46 B. 1031 : 1922 B, 271.

——Art. 165—Scope of.

Art. 165 of the Limitation Act applies only to proceedings under O. 21, R 100, C. P. Code. (Greaves and Ghose, JJ.) BAHIN DAS PAL v. GIRISH CHANDRA PAL. 1923 Cal. 287.

——Arts. 165 and 181—Application for restoration of possession.

Art. 165 was not intended to apply to an application by judgment-debtor. Art. 181 applies to an application for restoration of possession 38 A 339, Foll 21 M. 494 and 25 A. 343, dissented from. (Shadi Lal and Dundas, JJ.) SHARFU v. MIR KHAN, 1 Lah. L. J. 230.

——Arts. 165 and 166—Excessive execution—Restoration.

Application to set aside sale of plots not specified in mortgage-deed, and the decree for sale and for recovery of possession comes under Art. 165 and not under Art. 166. (Lindsay, J.C.) RAJA RAM v. ITRAJ KUNWAR. 24 I. C. 137 : 17 O. C. 94.

——Art. 166—Execution sale—Irregularity—Purchase without leave.

Purchase by decree-holder without obtaining leave to bid is irregular and not void and an application to set aside is governed by Art. 166. (Scott, C. J. and Heaton, J.) GANESH NARAIN KHARE v GOPAL VISHNU APTE. 41 Bom. 357 : 39 I. C. 3 : 19 Bom. L. R. 75.

LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 166.

——Arts. 166 and 181—Execution sale—Application to set aside—Property—Not liable to sale—Limitation.

Art. 166 is not limited to applications under O. 21, Rr 89 to 91 of the C. P. Code. It is perfectly general and refers to an application under the Code to set aside a sale in execution of a decree. An application to set aside a sale in execution of a decree passed against the father, on the ground that the property sold belongs to the applicant and not to his father is governed by Art. 166. (Chitty and Walmsley, JJ.) SATISH CHANDRA KANUNGE v. NISHI CHANDRA DUTTA. 54 I. C. 431 : 46 Cal. 975.

——Art. 166—Provision—Mandatory—Application to set aside sale.

The court cannot extend limitation in case of application to set aside sale. (Shadilal, C. J.) GENDA MAL v. MUNSHI RAM. 57 I. C. 224.

——Art 166 — Execution sale—Fraud—Limitation.

An application to set aside an execution on the ground of fraud must be made within the time prescribed by Art. 166 of the Lim. Act. To avail himself of S. 18 of the Act the applicant must show that he was by fraud kept from the knowledge of his right to apply for the sale to be set aside. (Broadway, J.) BASHI RAM v. HASSAN MAHOMED. 51 I. C. 447.

——Arts. 166 and 181—Sale by Insolvency Court—Fraud—Limitation.

An application either of an insolvent or of his creditor for cancelling, on the ground of fraud, a sale of immoveable property by the Insolvency Court in realising the assets of the insolvent is governed by Art. 181 and not Art. 166. A Court has inherent power to try such an application. (Scott-Smith, J.) AFZAL ALI v. AMAR ALI. 36 P. W. R. 1914 : 23 I. C. 397 : 107 P. L R. 1914.

——Arts. 166 and 181—Application to set aside an execution sale, on the ground of illegality—Application governed by Art. 166.

An application to set aside an execution sale on the ground of illegality though falling under S. 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure and not under O. 21, R. 90, is governed by Art. 166 of the Limitation Act not by Art. 181 and should be made within thirty days from the date of the sale. Where an application is made after 30 days of the sale to set aside an execution sale on the ground that the proclamation of sale was not made in the village where the property was situate Art. 166 of the Limitation Act bars the application. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 166.

Where an execution sale is alleged to be fraudulent and collusive, the period of taking proceedings to set aside the sale, in the case of fraud would be three years from the time when the sale took place or when the plaintiffs knew of the fraud. 74 I. C. 202 : 1919 Pat. 386.

———Arts. 166 and 181—Execution sale—Application to set aside—Fraud—Limitation.

It does not make any difference whether an application to set aside an execution sale was made under O. 28, R. 90, or S. 47, C. P. Code, so far as limitation is concerned. Art. 181 of Lim. Act applies only to applications for which no period of limitation is prescribed elsewhere in the schedule but all applications for setting aside a sale in execution of a decree are governed by Art. 166 of the Lim. Act even though the ground for setting aside the sale should be fraud or any other reason. All applications to set aside a sale in one sense come within S. 47, C.P. Code, as that section provides that all questions arising between the parties and relating to the execution of the decree shall be determined by the executing court. The effect of Art. 166 of the Lim. Act cannot be evaded merely by stating on the application itself that it is brought under S. 47, C. P. Code as well as under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code. An application beyond period prescribed by Art. 166 would be time barred unless, it can be shown that the applicant's right to set aside the sale was concealed from him by the fraud of the respondent. In such a case under S. 18 of the Lim Act time would only begin to run when the respondent first became aware of the fraud. (*Miller, C. ———Art. 166—Not restricted to applications under O. 21, R. 100, C. P. C.

Art. 166 of the Act applies to all applications on whatever grounds to have an execution sale set aside, and is not restricted to applications under O. 21, R. 90 of the C. P Code. (Jwala Prasad and Adami, JJ.) BABUDAS NARAYAN SINGH v. MUHAMMAD YUSUF alias BHEKHO.

——Art 168—Dismissal for default—Restoration—O. 41, R. 10 (2) of C. P. C.

Even if Art 168 of the Limitation Act does not apply to an application for the restoration of an appeal dismissed under R. 10, O. 41, C. P. The sale of properties to the decree-holder auction-purchaser was confirmed on 16th Jan. 1911. On 9th Nov. 1912 and 4th Dec. 1912 he made applications for delivery of possession but they were both dismissed by an order dated 4th Dec. 1912, on the ground that he was unable to identify the land. A third application was made on 4th July, 1913 but on 30th July 1913 the Court ordered on it, "No one to take delivery. Petition dismissed". Finally on the 16th April 1915, the purchaser again applied for delivery of possession but was met with a plea of limitation. Held per Abdur Rahim, J. (Oldfield, J., contra) that there being no evidence to show that the order of dismissal on 30th July 1913 was made after hearing the purchaser, it must be deemed a dismissal only for statistical purposes; and (2) that the application of 1915 might be treated as one for execution of the general order for delivery made on 4th July 1913 and being in that view merely a continuation of the prior proceedings was not barred by Art. 180. ——Art. 181—Application for order absolute in mortgage suit—Starting point.

Art. 181 of Lim. Act, 1877, governs an application for an order absolute under S. 89, T. P. Act and limitation commences on the date of the appellate decree, and no fresh starting point is furnished by the Privy Council dismissing an appeal for want of prosecution, 36 A. 350 ; 36 A. 284 Ref. ——Art. 181—Applicability—Consent decree in a mortgage suit.

It is quite clear that an application for making a conditional decree passed by consent absolute, would be governed by the general Art. 181 which applies to all applications for which no period of limitation is provided elsewhere in the Limitation Act or by S 48, C. P. C. Even where there is a condition in the decree that until one judgment-debtor's share is found to be insufficient no steps are to be taken against the other judgment-debtor, the right to apply against b th accrues at the same time. The right to apply for order absolute is one thing and the determination of the question as to which property should be sold first is another. (Stuart and Sulaiman, JJ.) BALDEO DAS v. PITAMBAR.

———— Art. 181—Applicability—Decree for redemption—Right of mortgagor to deposit money at any time.

The position of a mortgagor who has obtained a decree is very different from that of a mortgagor who still has to bring a suit. In the latter case all sorts of defences may be pleaded and it may be found that his right is barred by limitation or by renunciation or that the claimant is not in fact the legal representative of the original mortgagors or that the integrity of the mortgage has been broken. In fact until a decree has been passed there is no certainty whether or under what conditions he may be entitled to recover the property but once he has got a decree in his favour his right is definite, ascertained and final, subject only to his depositing the money. The manner in which a redemption decree is to be enforced is not a mere matter of procedure but a question of right. The right of a mortgagor to deposit the money under a decree nisi is a continuing right which may be exercised at any time until an order absolute is passed and an application to deposit the money is not governed by Art 181 of the Limitation Act. Execution Sale.

———— Arts. 181 and 182 (7)—Execution sale—Execution against estate—Wrong legal representative on record—Effect.

Where execution is to issue, unless the decree is paid within 6 months of the decree, an application in execution is governed by Art 181 and the period is 3 years from the time when the right to apply accrues. Even if Art. 182 (7) applied, time begins to run only from after the expiry of the period of 6 months provided for payment in the decree. Where execution is sought against the estate of the judgment-debtor, the fact that a wrong legal representative's name was originally entered in the application, will not vitiate the proceedings. ——— Art. 181—Mortgage decree—Right to apply for a final decree—Limitation--Starting point—Amenament of decree.

A preliminary decree for sale by a mortgagee was passed on 25—1—1917. Time was given to the mortgagees up to 22—3—1917 to pay up the decree amount. On 28—4—1917 a clerical mistake in the decree was corrected and the sum of Rs. 2,486 was substituted instead of Rs. 2,350 as being the decree amount. On 27—4—1920 plff. applied for the passing of a final decree. Held, that the right to apply accrued on 22—3—1917 and that inasmuch as the application was made more than 3 years after that date it was time-barred. There was no alteration in the decree and it cannot be said that the decree as amended on 28—4—1917 was a new decree. ———Arts. 181 and 182—Mortgage decree—Preliminary decree for sale under T. P. Act—Expiry of the time fixed for payment—Application for order absolute -Limitation.

A preliminary decree for sale was passed under the T.P Act. Before the expiry of the time fixed by the decree for the payment of the mortgage money, the new C. P. Code came into force. Held, that a final executable decree was passed under the T. P. Act notwithstanding that the direction in the decree for sale of the property was made conditional on default of payment of the amount due by a certain date. The remedy of the mortgagee was to apply for an order absolute. The enactment of the C. P. Code did not give the mortgagee a right to apply for a final decree. The period of limitation for the mortgagee's application was that fixed by Art. 182 and not by Art. 181 of the Lim. Act. 32 M. L. J. 455 not foll. ———Arts. 181 and 182—Revival of execution—Continuity of proceedings of last application—Execution interrupted by appeals of judgment-debtor.

The last application for execution was made on 3-7-02. On the objection of the judgment-debtor, which was overruled by the first court, the High Court remanded the case, and it was ascertained by Commissioner that the judgment-debtor was entitled to a certain deduction, and so on 29-6-1907, the objection of the judgment-debtor was allowed in part. On the same day, the Court passed the following order "Case put an end to after decision of the objection." The judgment-debtor again appealed to the High Court, but his appeal was dismissed on 4-3-10. On 6-12-10 the decree-holders applied for execution. Held, that the present application was one to continue further, the execution proceedings which had been interrupted by the two appeals of the judgment-debtor to the High Court, that there was nothing in law to compel the decree-holder to proceed with execution during the appeal, more especially when the amount for which execution should be levied depended on the decision of the Appellate Court, that Art. 181 applied, and that the application was not barred. 27 A 334 (P. To make the provision of the Act apply to the execution of a decree, the decree must be such as to be capable of being enforced. ——Art. 182—Applicability—Mortgage—Preliminary decree against joint mortgagors—Ex-parte decree against one deft. set aside on application—Fresh decree—Application for order absolute—Limitation—Order on prior application—When res judicata.

A mortgagee obtained a decree against his mortgagors of whom S. was ex-parte on 25-8-1900 and it was made absolute on 21-12-1901. S. applied and got the ex-parte decree as against her set aside, but on 15-8-1902 a decree was also made against her which was confirmed on appeal on 16-11-1914. The decree-holder applied for an order absolute for an order for sale on 15-12-1905. but his application was granted only as against S. The decree-holder again applied on 21-12-1905 for execution by way of sale against all the defts. Held. that the execution was not barred. The earlier decree of 1900 having been treated by the Court and the parties as a mere step towards granting the relief, the later decree of 1904 which completed it, gave for the first time to the respondent decree-holder a right to joint execution. Under Art 179 of the Lim. Act, 1877, time began to run from 27-11-1905 when the order absolute was made on the decree of 1904 The dismissal of the prior application of 15-2 1905 did not operate as res judicata to the application of 21-12-1905, the latter being based on an order absolute which was different from and later than the prior order. It might have been more in accordance with strict procedure if the Court had set aside the whole judgment on the application of S. and had proceeded to retry the case against all the defts. The irregularity however had worked no wrong and was of no consequence. (Lord Mersey.) ASHFAQ HUSAIN v. GAURI SAHAI.

———Art. 182—Continuation of proceedings—Revival of prior application—Circumstances justifying inference.

A consent decree was made on the 26th June 1915. On the first application for execution made on the 24th June 1916 the court directed a writ of attachment to be issued. The writ being returned unserved, the court on the 4th August 1916, directed a fresh attachment to issue. The decree-holder was ordered to file process and process-fees within five days. This order was carried out. But on the 5th August, 1916, the judgment-debtor filed a petition under O. 21, R. 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure to the effect that the decree had been satisfied out of court and consequently no execution could issue on the basis thereof. The objection was numbered as a separate case. The two cases were adjourned from time to time and on the 9th December 1916, the objection case as well as the execution case came up for consideration. The objection case was dismissed for default. Afterwards the following order was made in the execution case: "The pleader for the decree-holder has no objection to his case being dismissed provided he gets his costs. The execution case is dismissed for default. The decree-holder will get his costs." Subsequently on the 27th November, 1919, the present application was made: Held that the execution proceedings which had been initiated on the 24th June, 1916, had been suspended by reason of the objection taken by the judgment-debtor. As soon as the objection was abandoned on the 9th December 1916, it became the duty of the court to proceed with the application for execution. The order for dismissal made on the 9th December, 1916, should be treated as equivalent to an order for striking off the case or removing it from the file for the convenience of the Court. 23 All. 114 Ref. An application for execution of a decree may be treated as one in continuation or revival of a previous application, similar in scope and character, the consideration of which has been interrupted by the intervention of objections and claims subsequently proved to be groundless or has been suspended by reason of an injunction or like obstruction. 37 Cal. 796 ——Art. 182—Continuation of proceedings—Continuation of a prior execution application—Modes of execution prayed for different—No continuation.

An application can only be considered as a continuation of the previous application, when it is similar in scope and character to the former application. Where the former application asked the court, in form and in substance, to sell the properties of the Judgment-debtor, other than those which were comprised in the mortgage bond, and the next application in form and in substance asked the court to realise the money from the Judgment-debtor by his arrest and detention in prison, Held, that it is quite impossible to regard the second application as a continuation of the previous application. Res judicata.

A suit was filed in the court of a munsif having jurisdiction and a decree was passed by the appellate court in 1910. Petition for execution was filed before the munsif who had succeeded the munsif that tried the case. He had no jurisdiction to try cases of the suit amount. This was in April 1913 On 14th July a second application was made to a munsif having only ordinary powers The District Judge held that a munsif having ordinary powers had no jurisdiction to entertain this execution application but in a subsequent decision he held that the petition of 14th July 1915 was not time-barred because the munsif had powers to receive the application even though he had no power to pass proceedings on it. Held, that the finding that the munsif had no jurisdiction to execute the decree had become res judicata between the parties in as much as it was not taken into appeal and that the application of 3rd February did not operate to save limitation under S. 14 of the Lim. Act as was held by the District Judge. (Fletcher and Newbould, JJ.) DHUKI RAM DHOK v. MATABI BIBI. 39 I. C. 795.

bearing the proper stamp is supplied to the Court. The decree is then engrossed on the stamp paper and signed by the Judge. A decree for partition was signed by the Judge on the 2nd January 1920, no stamped paper having been furnished till on or shortly before that date. The judgment was pronounced on 25-3-1914. The delay in signing the decree was due not to any fault of the Court or to any cause beyond the control of the parties but solely to the delay of the parties in supplying the requisite stamped paper. Held, that the circumstances disclose no ground for saying that limitation did not run from the date of the decree as provided in Art. 182 of the Limitation Act. An order dismissing an appeal for default does not deal judicially with the suit and is not an order adopting or confirming the decision appealed from. The appellant is in the same position as if he had not appealed at all.

Where an appeal pending before the Privy Council is dismissed for want of prosecution the decree of the lower court is not constructively turned into a decree of His Majesty in Council. The only decree which is in existence is that of the lower court. The period of limitation for executing such a decree is three years under Art. 182 and not 12 years under Art 183 of the Limitation Act. Where a mortgage decree was passed before C. P. The meaning of the words "Where there has been an appeal" in Art. 182 (2) is where there has been an appeal against the decree or order for the execution of which an application is made. Therefore where in a suit against several defendants a decree is given against some and the suit is dismissed with costs against others and the former set alone appeal, and the decree for costs in favour of the other defendants is not appealed against, Art. 182 (2) does not apply and the application is barred if filed after three years of the date of the original decree when an appeal does not imperil the whole decree. ———— Art. 182 (2)—Applicability of — Abatement of appeal Limitation—Starting point.

A mortgagor brought an appeal against a decree obtained by the widow of the mortgagee but he impleaded along with the widow another representative and heir of the mortgagee who had obtained a decree and was declared successor to the mortgagee's estate. But the declared successors died during the pendency of the appeal. As none of his representatives was brought on record the appeal against him abated Afterwards the widow and the mortgagor compromised and the Appellate Court passed a decree in accordance therewith. In an application for executing the original decree by the successor's representatives it was contended that limitation began to run against the applicant from the date of abatement, Held, the successor's representative could not apply as the successor was not party either in the original or appellate decree and the original decree was merged into appellate one The order of abatement is not a final decree or order within the meaning of Art. 182 (2) of the Act and hence incapable to give a fresh start of limitation. ——— Art. 182 (5)—Step-in-aid—Application in accordance with law.

An application for execution would not be bad even if it seeks relief not strictly claimable. If a person other than the one entitled to apply applies or if the person entitled applies for execution in a mode and for a relief outside the decree the application is not in accordance with law because the decree execution of which is sought is not the decree to which the application purports to relate but some other decree not existing. An application for execution seeking some or all of the reliefs given by a decree though the Court after consideration comes to the conclusion that the particular relief cannot be granted is still an application in accordance with law if it meets in substance the requirements of the C. P. C. or any other law relating to execution. An application asking for relief given till the happening of a certain event is still an application in accordance with law even though it does not ask for that relief to which he is entitled in a certain event. Omission to file inventories with the darkhasts cannot affect the question whether the darkhasts are substantially in accordance with law. The words "In accordance with" have no reference to the likelihood of the application succeeding or to the competency of the Court to grant any particular relief prayed for. If the application complies with the forms and procedure the application is in accordance with law. ——— Art. 182 (5) — Step in-aid — Application for adjournment—Application eventually dismissed—Effect of.

The question whether an application is or is not a step-in-aid of execution, must depend upon the circumstances of the case. Objections under S. 47, C. P. Code, were filed on 17—4—1917 and on 28—4—1917 the decree-holder applied for time for obtaining copies of the objections and citing witnesses. The case was adjourned to 26th May and then to 23rd June and again to 25th June. No written statement was necessary to be filed and no witness was as a matter of fact cited. On the 25th June, the decree-holder's pleader stated that he would not prosecute the case any further and the execution case was accordingly dismissed for non-prosecution. It became unnecessary therefore to proceed with the objection of cases which were disposed of on the next day. A subsequent application for execution was filed on the 26th April 1920 and objection was taken that it was barred by limitation. Held, that under the circumstances of the case, the application for time filed by the decree-holder on 28th April 1917, did not constitute a step-in aid of execution. Nor could the subsequent application be considered as one in continuation of the prior application as it asked for different reliefs from the previous one. An oral application to the Court to enter partial satisfaction of a decree is a step-in-aid. Even where there is no actual application on the record such an application may be presumed, in cases where the order made in execution is of such a nature that the Court would not have made it except upon an application for that purpose. ——Art. 182 (5)—Step-in-aid—Proper Court—Application in accordance with law—Meaning of—Application to transfer decree for execution—Court having no pecuniary jurisdiction—If a step-in-aid of execution.

An application to transfer a decree for execution is a step-in-aid of execution, if it is in accordance with law. The terms "applying in accordance with law" mean applying to the court to do something in execution which by law that court is competent to do. It does not mean applying to the court to do something which either to the decree-holder's direct knowledge in fact or from his presumed knowledge of the law he must have known the court was incompetent to do. Hence an application to transfer a decree for execution to a court which was pecuniarily incompetent in jurisdiction, is not a step-in-aid of execution. Where a decree is passed jointly against several persons notwithstanding the fact that it is to be executed against some of them only in case the decree-holder failed to realise it from the principal judgment-debtors, an application for execution against the latter saves limitation for an application for execution against the former. Art. 182 (5) in so far as it relates to a "step-in-aid of execution" contemplates an application which is not an initial application for execution but is an application to take some step to advance an execution proceeding which is already pending, e. g., an application to bring to sale properties

A "counter-statement" filed by the decree-holder in answer to an application by the judgment debtor to enter up satisfaction of the decree is not a "step-in-aid" when there was no petition for execution pending at the time. Nor could the time, during which the application to enter satisfaction was pending, be deducted in counting the period of limitation against the decree-holder as the pendency of that application in no way prevented the execution of the decree. 43 Mad. 185 and 43 Cal. 660 distd. The plaint in a suit by the decree-holder under S. 53, T. P. LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), Art. 183.

An application for restitution in pursuance of a Privy Council decree is in substance one to enforce a decree of the Privy Council and is governed by Art. 183. The words "to enforce" in Art 183 are wider than the words "to execute" in Art. 182 and should be interpreted as equivalent to "give full effect to". ——Art. 183—Decree of Privy Council—Execution—Revivor.

An application to enforce a decree of the Privy Council must be made within 12 years of the accrual of right to enforce, or the date of revivor. Where on an application for execution notice is issued under O. 21, R. 22 and the Court has decided that the decree is still capable of execution, there is a revivor within the meaning of Art. 183. Where an order in Council is sent to a Subordinate Court for execution without any notice to the judgment-debtors it is not a revivor of the order. (*Chamier, C. ——Art. 183—Revivor of decree—Transfer of decree—Issue of notice under O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code—Leave of Court.

An application for the transfer of a decree does not amount to a revivor of it nor does the issue of a notice under O. 21, R. 22, C.P.C. amount to any such revivor. But where execution cannot proceed without leave of the Court the granting of that leave is a revivor of the decree. The period of limitation for execution of a decree of the High Court commences from the date of the decree. It is for the executing Court to deal with the questions of limitation and the mere fact that the High Court as transmitted its decree for execution does not mean that it was not in its opinion barred. ———S. 62—Lunacy—Inquisition for ascertaining—Procedure—Preliminaries.

An inquisition under S. 62 of the Lunacy Act once started must be prosecuted to the very end. Before such an inquisition is ordered or started, there ought to be a careful and thorough preliminary enquiry and the Judge ought to satisfy himself that there is a real ground for an inquisition. An application for an inquisition should ordinarily be supported by affidavit or by examination on oath of the applicant and by a medical certificate of some doctor as to the condition of the alleged lunatic. It would also be desirable in many cases that the Judge should seek
